INSTANT REFRESHMENT BLENDER DRINKS

Tropical Storm and Strawberry Yogurt Frost are blender-quick ideas which you'll want to serve often. Both are taste-tempting, healthful treats.

These blender drinks are delicious any time of the day. For example, they are nourishing ways of replacing the calories youngsters burn up with after-school activities.

Tropical Storm would also make a super breakfast for those people who "don't have time for breakfast." It's packed with protein from instant nonfat dry milk and an egg. More good nutrition and flavor come from unsweetened pineapple juice and a ripe banana. Blend the ingredients with ice cubes until frosty and frothy. A Tropical Storm blender drink with whole-grain toast breakfast meets 20% of the U.S. RDA of the eight major nutrients excluding niacin. Garnish the drink with a pineapple chunk and a sprig of mint, if desired.

Instant nonfat dry milk and yogurt provide protein power for Strawberry Yogurt Frost. Frozen strawberries turn it into a really frosty blender drink. Strawberry Yogurt Frost is a delicious alternative to "empty calorie" snacks and desserts.

While both blender drinks are appealing and cooling during the warm months, they're also good ideas to serve throughout the year. All of the ingredients, including bananas and frozen strawberries, are almost always available.

TROPICAL STORM
(Makes 3 cups)

3/4 cup (6-ounce can) unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled
1 egg
1/3 cup Carnation Instant Nonfat Dry Milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 large ripe banana
12 ice cubes

Place all ingredients in blender container. Cover and process on high until smooth. If desired, garnish with pineapple chunk and sprig of mint.

STRAWBERRY YOGURT FROST

1 1/4 cups (10-ounce carton) frozen, sweetened, sliced strawberries
1/3 cup Carnation Instant Nonfat Dry Milk
1 cup plain yogurt
3/4 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cut frozen block of strawberries in half. Put strawberries, nonfat dry milk, yogurt, water, and vanilla in blender container. Cover and process on high until smooth.

Volume 69 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, September 15, 1980 Number 72

Soil Survey Crews To Map Land In Beltrami County

Beltrami county soil survey is beginning an eight-year project to examine, classify and map all the soils within the county. The soil survey is a method of gathering information about the soil and organizing it so people are able to make wise decisions on this national resource.

Because of the county's large size, over 1.5 million acres, the soils of the county will be mapped by two crews headquartered in Thief River Falls and Bemidji.

Working out of the Thief River Falls area soil conservation office are soil scientists Ward Aas and Michael Oja. Aas is employed by the soil conservation service and Oja by the University of Minnesota agriculture experiment station. Aas previously worked on soil surveys in Kittson and Norman counties and Oja worked on the Pennington county soil survey and soil surveys in Nebraska and Michigan. They will map the soils in the northwest part of Beltrami county, an area of 12 townships about 276,480 acres in size.

Working out of the Bemidji office is soil survey party leader Richard Rolling. Rolling is responsible for the soil survey and is employed by the soil conservation service. Rolling was party leader for soil surveys in Cottonwood county and the Red Lake Indian reservation in Clearwater and Beltrami counties. He also has done agricultural interpretive work while serving with the Peace Corps in Kenya, Africa.

Jeff Belkert and Dan Hanson, employed by the University of Minnesota agriculture experiment station, complete the Bemidji soil survey staff. Bilkert graduated from Ohio state university with a degree in soils and natural resources and has worked on soil surveys in Ohio and in Itasca county. Hanson graduated from the University of Minnesota with a degree in soils and forestry. Hanson's experience is as a crew leader for the young adult conservation corps and with Boise Cascade's forestry inventory program. He also worked eight months on the Pennington county soil survey.

Beltrami county soil survey is a cooperative effort of the USDA soil conservation service, University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station and Beltrami county. Funding for the Beltrami soil survey and other soil surveys in Minnesota counties is the result of 1977 legislation when state funds were made available for financing the Minnesota soil survey program. Total funding for the soil survey is shared by the federal and county governments. Beltrami county soil survey had its conception when the county commissioners voted in favor of a soil survey and agreed to fund the county's share.

The soils of the county will be mapped on 2.5 inches per

Green Thumb Workers Speak Out At Area Meet

Approximately 90 Green Thumb workers recently attended the second of two sessions conducted yearly in the area to discuss their needs and concerns in preparation for the next White House conference on aging to be conducted in December of 1981.

Members present included those workers from the counties of Red Lake, Pennington, Polk, Norman, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Lake of the Woods. There are presently 800 Green Thumb workers in Minnesota, according to Paul Anderson, state director from Wadena who was in attendance at the session conducted in the Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday.

During the sessions, Green Thumb workers discuss job related activities and receive consumer information related to their jobs and lifestyles, Anderson explained. They also discuss major problems they would like to see corrected including such things as transportation, inflation, high taxes and government spending.

Green thumb is an employment project for senior citizens, Anderson stressed. Persons work for a variety of public agencies including schools, nutrition programs, senior centers and community action programs. The program hires and assigns rural senior workers to local project sponsors who operate programs necessary for the growth of the community, according to a recent brochure on the program. Workers are employed on projects approximately 20 to 24 hours each week.

To be employed on the Green Thumb senior worker program, persons must be at least 55 years of age or older (there is no maximum age limit), have a rural background or be rural residents and have an annual income below the current federal low income guidelines.

Also in attendance at the MIKE MOORE, Region 1 director of the area agency on aging (AAA) from Crookston, was one of several speakers who appeared at a meeting of Green Thumb workers from the area conducted at the city auditorium Thursday. The sessions, conducted twice yearly, are one step in getting rural input on present issues and problems before the White House conference on aging is conducted.

City Receives Funds To Study Waste For Heat

City of Thief River Falls has won $6,000 in an energy conservation competition sponsored by the Minnesota league of cities with money provided by the Minnesota energy agency. Thief River Falls was one of six state winners and took top honors in the 5,000 to 9,999 population category. Judging was in August.

Thief River Falls will use the award to study how practical it will be to burn municipal waste to heat public and commercial buildings.

The other cities in Minnesota chosen to receive cash awards are Moorhead, Richfield, Fairmont, Circle Pines and Delano. The awards vary from $3,000 to $8,000, based on population.

Minnesota league of cities sponsored the energy-saving competition to encourage local communities to implement conservation programs. Funds were provided by the energy agency as part of its community outreach program.

Jim Main, deputy director of the energy agency and one of the competition judges, said the contest is only a beginning. "All proposals will be available to communities statewide enabling them to draw on some very creative ideas." Gary Grufman, energy specialist for the league of cities feels local communities will benefit from a general distribution.

"Most of the concepts involve low capital expenditure and are educational ideas that can bring people together on energy conservation."

Task Force On Highways Sets Hearing Here

Governor's task force on highways for economic vitality is making its third bus tour of the state in northwestern Minnesota on September 17 and 18. Committee members will hold public hearings September 17 in Thief River Falls and Ada.

Meeting here will be from 10:30 a.m. to noon in Lon's restaurant, followed by a luncheon from noon to 1:30 p.m. Reservations are available at $4 each from the chamber of commerce office.

Task force members hope to learn about the economy and roads of the region through which they travel from on-bus experts, visual experience and public meetings.

—Recommend long range highway needs to assure the state's economic vitality;

—Estimate funding necessary to satisfy those needs;

—Prioritize highway objectives;

—Recommend improved resource utilization;

—Recommend alternative funding sources; and

—Recommend a strategy for implementation.

Task force members are interested in the transportation needs of the area and, perhaps more importantly, hope to learn what funding sources are seen as the most effective means of paying for our transportation system.

The task force will take both oral and written testimony at both Thief River Falls and Ada public meetings. Participants may register immediately prior to the meetings.

After the meeting in Thief River Falls, the bus tour will take the task force through the Red River valley to Ada and will include stops at local grain elevators. After the meeting in Ada, the committee will travel to Fergus Falls for the night, before continuing to Alexandria for a hearing on the 18th.

Oakland Park Needs Items For Anniversary

Clothes and records are needed for a '50s dress-up day and sock hop to be conducted at Oakland Park nursing home during the home's 25th anniversary celebration week noted September 22-28.

Anyone having any clothes of any size or shape as well as records from the 1950s is asked to call 681-1675.

Northland Band Rehearsals To Begin Tonight

Rehearsals for the Northland community band will resume today (Monday) in the college auditorium at 7 p.m., according to returning director, Les Torgerson. Weekly rehearsals during the fall quarter will be conducted in preparation for the annual musical concert in November.

A feature of this year's autumn musicale concert will be Dr. John Zdechlik, an internationally recognized composer, as guest educator.

Membership in the Northland community band is open to all interested band instrumentalists from throughout northwestern Minnesota. As in the past, members will include Northland college students, area vocational-technical students and residents from throughout northwestern Minnesota.

During Torgerson's sabbatical leave last year, the band was under the direction of Doug Engstrom, band director at Lincoln high school. "According to comments I have heard, the 1979-80 season was a huge success. I wish to thank Doug for his enthusiastic and competent leadership," Torgerson said.

While Torgerson was on leave, he did graduate study at Arizona state university where he concentrated on music education. He was granted an assistant position in instrumental music education and supervised student teachers. He also studied under Dr. Douglas R. McEwen in advanced choral conducting.

Keith Charbonneaus To Live In Thief River Falls

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Charbonneau are at home in Thief River Falls at the Countryside Trailer court following an exchange of marriage vows at St. Bernard's Catholic church, and a wedding trip to the Brainerd and Minneapolis areas.

The bride, the former Laurie Ann Hedlund, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hedlund, Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Charbonneau, Pembina, N.D.

Rev. James Bernauer was the celebrant. Terry Lemer and Terry Courneya, were the lectors and Douglas Courneya and Todd Broadwell, the servers. At the organ was Kristy Gerardy. She played a number of nuptial selections for the prelude, "Wedding Processional" and "Love's Theme," for the processional, and "Joy" for the recessional. During the ceremony, Chris Kays sang "God, A Woman and a Man," "The Wedding Song," as the couple lit the unity candle, and "If" and "Walk Hand in Hand," following Holy Communion.

Forming the altar and background setting were arrangements of white gladioli, peach carnations, babies' breath and greenery. The center pews were marked with white satin bows and peach roses.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white silk with a chiffon overlay trimmed in lace. The fitted bodice was styled with a Queen Anne neckline and long, sheer sleeves enhanced with lace appliques. Complementing her skirt was a flowing chapel-length train edged with corresponding lace. Her veil of double-tiered bridal illusion, edged with scalloped lace, fell from a matching headpiece. She carried a bouquet of peach and white roses, accented with babies' breath, greenery and white ribbon streamers. Her only jewelry was a silver cross, her gift from the groom.

Maid of honor was Connie Hedlund, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Janeen Rooker, Jeri Lundin, Thief River Falls, Karen Sparby, Grygla, friends of the bride, and Cecelia Charbonneau, Pembina, sister of the groom. All wore peach gowns with pleated skirts topped by matching capes. Their peach hats were trimmed with white daisies and white ribbon streamers. They carried bouquets, similar to the bride's. Their engraved bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Flower girl was Karen Maruska, a cousin of the bride. Her white floor-length gown, made by her mother, was trimmed with peach ribbon, matching the ribbon in her hair. Ruffles enhanced the bodice and hemline. She carried a basket filled with miniature peach roses, white daisies, babies' breath and greenery. Her necklace was a gift from the bride. The rings were carried by Troy Maruska, a cousin of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a summer brown Chancellor tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt. His boutonniere was a miniature peach rose.

Best man was Delray Beito, Middle River, a friend of the groom. Groomsmen were, Karl Chromy, Jay Kverno, Thief River Falls, friends of the groom; Kevin Charbonneau, Grand Forks, N.D., and Craig Charbonneau, Pembina, brothers of the groom. The groom wore a white tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a peach carnation boutonniere, matching the boutonnieres worn by his attendants.

Serving as ushers were Joe Kraska, Thief River Falls, Brad Schumacher, Grand Forks, Glenn Mosher, Williams, and Jon Nelson, Hallock, friends of the couple. They, like the fathers of the couple, wore attire similar to the groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hedlund selected a light peach floor-length gown with a blouson bodice and pleated skirt. The groom's mother wore a dark peach floor-length gown fashioned with split cape sleeves. Their corsages were of peach roses, babies' breath, greenery and ribbon. All the flowers at the wedding were of silk and were made by the bride and her mother.

Honored guests were Mrs. Anna Biehert, Titusville, Fla., great-grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Phil Hedlund, Minneapolis, godmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. (Effie) Carlson, Kimball, and Dr. and Mrs. Lenas Hedlund, Rochester.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed in the church parlors were Gordon and Mary Klabo, Pembina, friends of the couple. Mary Charbonneau, Grand Forks, sister of the groom, was at the guest book. Donna Charbonneau, Pembina, another sister, and Kim Maruska, a cousin of the bride, were at the gift table. Gift bearers were Debbie and Joni Courneya, friends of the bride.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered chocolate and white wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with peach roses and sweet peas.

Between tall Roman columns, which seperated the bottom tiers, was a flowing water fountain. Between the upper tiers were a miniature bride and groom; and topping the cake was a "Heart of Birds" ornament. Extending from the cake to two heart-shaped cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom, were stairways with a miniature bridal party on the steps. The cake was cut and served by Retta Klemisch and Claire Courneya, friends of the couple. Pouring coffee were the bride's aunts, Darlene and Mary Maruska. The groom's cake, a Kransekake, was served with the punch, ladled by Arma Jean and Darrell Haseleu, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.

Waitresses were Beth Hallstrom, LeAnn Klosterman, Jackie Ulrich and Mary Courneya, friends of the couple. Mrs. Clara Cloutier was in charge of preparing and serving the buffet meal, and Katherine Kinsman and Claire Courneya, were in charge of decorating.

In the evening, a wedding dance was held at the Meadowbrooke ballroom in Middle River with music provided by "The Last Resort." A buffet at the dance was served by friends of the couple.

On the evening prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a barbecue for the wedding party and out-of-town guests. Cooking and serving the barbecue were friends of the couple: Pat and Retta Klemisch, Clayton and Sharon Mack, and John and Sue Wolbeck.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at two showers: a personal shower given by her attendants, and a miscellaneous shower given by Kristy Kohler and Julie Gilbert, friends of the bride.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

With the tentative date less than a month away for a vote on a $15 million school bond issue in our district, there seems to be a serious void of information to the voters. To have a true expression of the desire of the affected community on October 14, the dissemination of more and better information is a must.

Perhaps because of past experience as an elementary, secondary and collegiate school administrator, I have received numerous questions from district residents about the proposal. Since I am not very familiar with the local school operation I believe that it would be beneficial if the questions and comments were aired publicly and answered responsibly by local school officials. Following are some of the questions which have been raised:

(1) Which parts of our school were condemned; by whom, and what were the deficiencies?

(2) Has an attempt been made to get an accurate estimate of costs to remedy those deficiencies? If so, what were the projected costs and how were they arrived at?

(3) Why is the vote on the bond issue scheduled during the busiest time of the year for an agricultural community? Why not hold it later in the winter or early spring after there has been more time to thoroughly study the situation?

(4) What enrollment figures does the school census show for the next six years? What are the enrollment projections beyond six years and on what are the projections based?

(5) If the school would be built on the proposed site, wouldn't it mean that all of the high school students in town would also have to be bused? What would the additional cost for buses, drivers' salaries and fuel be per year?

(6) Wouldn't it also mean that many students in town would have to leave home earlier and get home later each day?

(7) When the new AVTI building was being proposed at its present site, one of the supporting promises was that it would eliminate the comingling of AVTI and high school students. Isn't the location of the present high school building proposal counter-productive toward that end?

(8) Although inflation is a factor, might it not be a wise investment of money to buy some additional decision-making time; especially in light of such factors as a national election with major economic implications, a disastrous year for farmers with a ripple effect on our businessmen and, a series of anemic profit and loss statements from local industry?

(9) Why is there so much confusion over projecting the approximate cost of the $35 million project (principal plus estimated interest) to each property owner? Aren't these projections usually made with the district valuation data for the current year?

(10) Since the real catalyst for student learning is the instructor and not a physical facility with aesthetic pleasingness, would we receive a greater rate-of-return on our educational dollar by holding down our debt service on buildings and paying our teachers more so as to hold and secure high caliber personnel?

(11) Is it true that part of a building built in 1956 is being condemned? Shouldn't the longevity of a commercial-type structure be considerably longer than 24 years if it received proper maintenance? If not, the proposed new building would be defunct the same year as the last payment was made on the $35 million debt.

(12) If a remodeling route was taken would it not be advantageous to our community, as local, bonded builders could bid on projects and hence provide local employment?

(13) Although parents of parochial school students do have a choice as to the institution they prefer to have their children attend, it must be recognized that they provide dual financial assistance to the district, as they provide the education for a sizeable number of students for which the district would otherwise be educationally responsible and, they support the public school with their tax dollars. Would it be fair to laden them with an even heavier tax burden while they conduct their classes in a building older than the one that the public school would be abandoning?

It would be greatly appreciated if school officials would respond to the above regardless of how trite the questions and comments seem. The very fact that they are being asked indicates a greater need for public awareness on the issue and providing such should enable the electorate of our district to make a better decision on the fate of the building proposal.

Sincerely,
Dennis McCullough

(Editor's Note: We have encouraged school board chairman Ken Wiebolt to respond to Mr. McCullough's questions in the next issue of the Times. Please save this public opinion letter as a reference in connection with that response.)

Dinner Theater Presentations Set At Lon's

"Answers," three one-act comedies, written by Ernest Thompson, will be presented as a dinner theater by the Chameleon Theatre Co. Inc., at Lon's Restaurant and Pub in Thief River Falls September 18, 19 and 20 and again September 26 and 27 with a buffet dinner beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The three stories are based on the supposition that a policeman from across the country, a senator and a television soap opera star take up the offer of an ordinary person.

Last two plays are directed by Carol Peterson, who is assisted by Gjernes. Sheri Anderson is in charge of props and sets and Pat Johnson is handling publicity.

For more information and reservations call Lon's at 681-3138.

Three From TRF Are Volunteers At UND Program

Three from Thief River Falls were among 109 upperclass students volunteered to lead information and discussion sessions for the recent new student orientation program at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

University's enrollment services office conducted the program to introduce new students to the buildings, offices and academic procedures that will be a part of the 1980-81 academic year.

Serving as Student orientation Squad (SOS) leaders, these upperclass students conducted sessions on study skills, career planning, student health, library tours and campus tours. Throughout the sessions they answered new students' questions about academic and social life.

Prior to the start of orientation, the SOS leaders attended an extensive training session covering orientation goals and directions, leadership training, communication skills and facts about the campus and city.

Co. Women's Federation Is Formed Here

Formation of a Pennington county women's federation took place Thursday at a meeting held at the Diane Freeman residence. Sharon Howard of Goodridge acted as temporary chairwoman and 10 members were present.

Purposes of the organization are to employ speakers, provide aid to county leaders and discuss various bills being considered for congressional or legislative action.

Next meeting will be held at a date to be announced in October when Mary Ellen Miller, an active participant in Congressman Arlan Stangeland's 1978 congressional campaign, will be the speaker. Anyone interested in joining the federation may contact Mrs. Howard at 378-4346.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Ronald Lindberg
623 North Knight
Thief River Falls

Snickerdoodle Cookies

1 cup soft shortening (part butter)
1½ cups white sugar
2 eggs
2¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt

Method: Mix shortening, sugar and eggs thoroughly. Measure flour, combine with dry ingredients and stir in. Roll into balls, size of a small walnut. Roll in mixture of two tablespoons sugar and two teaspoons cinnamon. Place two inches apart on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in a 400 degree oven. These cookies will puff up at first and then flatten out. Makes about five dozen two-inch cookies.

These cookies are a favorite in the Lindberg family. At the time Mrs. Lindberg was called, she was baking them as a treat for her husband's hunting trip. The Lindbergs have three children: Pauline, seventh grade; Jennifer, third grade; and Kristi, in kindergarten. Mrs. Lindberg's present hobby is latch hooking. Her husband, who is employed by city engineers, Stewart and Walker, enjoys hunting and fishing. Lindberg is a member of Trinity Lutheran church, and Mrs. Lindberg and the children are members of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Production Credit association of Thief River Falls has announced plans to build a new office building in the southeastern part of the city along highway 59. The building will be about 8,000 square feet in size, providing space for both the main and branch offices. There will be a total of 13 offices, board room and other work areas.

The building will be mostly one story, with two stories in the center, and will be of brick construction. The building is designed to utilize passive solar heat, with other heat provided by natural gas and electricity.

Need for the new building has been created by the large increase in the number of farmers borrowing from PCA and the dollars required to operate a farm business. Loan volume is over $31,000,000 loaned to area farmers, point of purchase agreements with area dealers for machinery sold, plus bank participation agreements with seven area banks for agriculture loans. PCA also provides related services for credit life insurance, credit disability insurance, hail insurance, and Agrifax, an electronic farm records system.

State Official To Meet With Local Leaders

On September 24 Kent Eklund, Minnesota commissioner of economic development, will be in Thief River Falls to meet with local business and civic leaders. This meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. at the city council chambers.

"The meeting is being conducted to give us a chance to express local concerns about economic problems. Suggestions will be welcomed for any legislative changes that could help to stimulate our economy," states Dr. Donald Goodrich, Thief River Falls alderman who is arranging the meeting.

Eklund is scheduled to meet the same morning with Ken Severinson, president of Arctic Enterprises.

Area Farmers Get Hay From Agassiz Refuge

More than 500 tons of wild hay was recently obtained by local farmers from Agassiz national wildlife refuge due to the extreme drought conditions which occurred in northwestern Minnesota.

Farmers were notified of the emergency hay program through local newspapers and radio stations in early July. Although several interested farmers elected not to obtain hay on the refuge, 12 permits were issued and haying began July 16.

Dry conditions permitted access into marsh areas where most permittees obtained their hay. A total of 534 tons of hay was obtained at a cost of $4,366.

Two From TRF Earn Degrees

Sharon Vaugn Nelson Erickson and Paul J. Lendobeja of Thief River Falls were among the 52 graduates receiving graduate degrees from Bemidji state university at the conclusion of the 1980 summer session.

Both Erickson and Lendobeja completed an M.S. degree in industrial education - vocational education.

School Board Meets Sept. 22

Regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education will be held Tuesday, September 22, at 7 a.m. at the school district service center.

Ortloff Named Postmaster At St. Hilaire

Appointment of Marlene Ortloff as postmaster at St. Hilaire effective September 6 has been announced by John P. Doran, regional postmaster general for the 13-state central region.

Mrs. Ortloff joined the postal service in February of 1977 as a part time flexible clerk at the St. Hilaire post office and also worked part time at the Thief River Falls post office.

Mrs. Ortloff was born and raised in the St. Hilaire area where she and her family presently live. She is active in community, church and youth groups there.

Postmasters are selected on merit and appointed by the postmaster general. Applicants are not subject to Senate confirmation.

NW Minnesota Bankers Meet In Bemidji

District meetings, being conducted in seven locations throughout the state, are headed by MBA president Richard E. Gandrud of Glenwood. Gandrud said 2,000 bankers are expected to attend the sessions.

Open to officers, staff members and directors of full-service banks in the 15 county district, the Bemidji meeting will provide information on key trends and developments in the banking industry.

Bankers attending the meeting will elect district officers for the 1980-81 year and endorse nominees for MBA elected officers.

Holt 4-H Club To Meet Thurs.

Holt 4-H club will meet Thursday (September 25) at 7 p.m. at the Holt village hall. Members are to come to the meeting dressed for the scheduled hayride. Records will also be due.

Ag Loan Demand Dropped During Second Quarter

Demand for agricultural loans at banks in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, and northwestern Wisconsin unexpectedly declined during the second quarter of 1980, but should increase during the third quarter. The decline in loan demand in the second quarter, as reported by the 117 rural bankers responding to the July agricultural credit conditions survey, published by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis, reflected a further drop in farm earnings and a continuation of high interest rates on agricultural loans.

In the bank's March survey, most bankers expected loan demand to rebound in the second quarter. Their expectations for increased demand were based on the belief that ag loan rates would decline substantially from the high level reached at the end of March, and that these lower interest rates would more than offset the expected weakening in farm earnings.

These expectations were not fulfilled. To begin with, farm earnings continued to be held down by steadily increasing production costs combined with little, if any, growth in revenues. Farm revenues, in the second quarter were curtailed by a weakness in prices of farm commodities and reduced expected yields due to drought. Crop prices for wheat, corn and soybeans did not rise enough to offset the drought-caused production losses and prices for hogs and cattle dropped markedly.

According to the Fed, weaker farm earnings in the second quarter reduced demand for ag loans because they caused farmers to cut back expenses, which they ordinarily finance with bank loans. The proportion of survey respondents that described current spending as below that of the previous year rose to 68 per cent in the second quarter, while the proportion that described spending as greater than a year ago declined.

A second factor cited by the Fed as contributing to the decline in agricultural loan demand during the second quarter was that bank agricultural loan rates did not drop materially from the very high levels prevailing at the end of March when surveyed bankers made their predictions. The average rate on short-term agricultural loans reported by survey respondents declined one percentage point, from 16.4 per cent at the end of the first quarter to 15.3 per cent at the end of the second — too small a drop to offset the adverse impact of farm earnings on loan activity.

Why ag loan rates declined so little is not clear, especially in light of the steep decline in market rates during the second quarter. Even though the federal funds rate declined from 19.4 per cent to 9.4 per cent from the end of March to the end of June, ag loan rates hardly budged. Some survey respondents attributed the small decline in ag loan rates to the fact that their own cost of funds did not decline as rapidly as money market rates, because a large share of their deposits is in six-month money market certificates. Loan rates thus could not be reduced rapidly without obliterating profit margins.

Surveyed bankers expected agricultural loan demand in the Ninth district to improve somewhat in the third quarter. They based their expectations mainly on the assumption that ag loan rates would decline markedly, thereby reestablishing the historic relationship with money market rates. Moreover, they expected that farm earnings, while remaining generally weak, would not reduce lending activity below the second-quarter level.

Recent data suggest that bankers' midyear expectations for ag loan demand in the third quarter could be realized. While money market rates have started to increase again, there is room for ag loan rates to drop. In addition, farm earnings may be increasing now. Although the severe drought may still be reducing farm output somewhat, the price of this output has increased sharply since midyear. Prices of corn, wheat and soybeans increased between 10 and 15 per cent in July over June, and hog prices rose more than 25 per cent over the same period.

Stress Control Of Wild Oats To Boost Crops

With university researchers estimating that one million acres of northwestern Minnesota farmland are infested with wild oats, farmers are becoming increasingly aware of the need to control this serious weed menace.

In fact, the more researchers and farmers have come to understand the weed, the more they've reached the conclusion that the wild oat is here to stay, and must be dealt with as a key element in a grower's regular farm management program.

Why is this one weed so damaging? To begin with, the wild oat reduces yields in grain and oilseed crops by robbing them of the moisture, nutrients, light and space they need for healthy growth. A strong competitor, flexible enough to adapt itself to just about any growing situation, the wild oat presents a number of problems which can compound each year if left uncontrolled.

"Each wild oat plant allowed to go to seed can produce as many as 250 seeds, presenting a potential reinfestation problem that will grow more serious yearly," contends David Hanson, weed control specialist.

"To add to the problem, wild oats will not germinate simultaneously in any single year. Not only can farmers experience a number of wild oats 'flushes' within a growing season, but wild oats seeds can lay dormant in the soil for as long as eight years awaiting the right growing conditions before beginning to compete with the crop.

"The bottom line," Hanson continues, "is that if a farmer's field has ever had wild oats, there are seeds in the soil just waiting for suitable conditions to germinate and reinfest the field. This fact of life has convinced many farmers to make wild oats control a top priority item in their regular farm management programs, considering it a necessary step towards healthy crops and good yields," he states.

According to Hanson, research results indicate that the most opportune time to treat wild oats is before they emerge to compete with young, unestablished crops.

"Data collected over the years in North Dakota has shown time and again that wild oats can cost farmers substantial yield if allowed to reach even a two-leaf stage," he asserts. "Application of a pre-emergent herbicide can help maximize yields by controlling early-germinating wild oats as well as a number of wild oats 'flushes' within a given season."

Grain and oilseed farmers committed to getting the most crop from their land are finding that one of the yearly practices necessary to achieve this goal is wild oats control.

Visibility Is Safety Factor For Pedestrian

Minnesota public safety commissioner John Sopsic has asked Minnesotans to prepare for earlier night hours in the months ahead by wearing light, bright or white clothing and using reflective tape.

With more people walking because of the energy crisis, the need for protective measures is greater. The same applies to bicyclists who are appearing in more frequent numbers.

The state's pedestrian traffic toll through August 29 was 58, six less than on the same date in 1979. Overall, the preliminary traffic toll through the same date was 503 compared to 555 a year ago.

"Many pedestrian deaths could have been avoided if the pedestrian had been seen by the motorist," Sopsic said.

The surest way to be seen, when walking or running near the road, is to wear reflective tape on outer-garments or a reflectorized arm band. Reflective material can be attached to shoes or worn in other ways.

"Fall and winter with shorter days and more hours of darkness mean greater danger to pedestrians. Motorists should be on the alert for school children and joggers," Sopsic said.

Alice M. Kerr, Once Resident Of TRF, Dies

Mrs. Alice Mary Kerr, 76, of 1228 Fifth Street, Bremerton, Wash., died August 19 at Belmont Terrace Nursing home. Mrs. Kerr, was a former long-time resident of Thief River Falls.

Private funeral services were held at Bremerton, where she was bruied.

Mrs. Kerr, the former Alice Mary Bugge, was born May 22, 1904 in Thief River Falls to Chris and Lena Bugge. In 1925, she was married to Harold Hall Kerr. She left Thief River Falls in the 1940's and lived for a time in Chicago, Ill., before moving to Bremerton, Wash.

She is survived by two daughters: Joan Danielson, Bremerton, and Mrs. Tom (Lois) Monroe, Quilcene, Wash.; five grandchildren: Stephen Monroe, Bremerton; Jeffrey, Carol and John Monroe all of Quilcene; and James Nichols, Bremerton; two great-grandsons: James Nichols, II; and Alexander Monroe.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Art (Emma) Osmoe, Glenwood, and two brothers: Ernest Bugge, New York City, and Ruben Bugge, St. Petersburg, Fla.

One sister and severn brothers preceded her in death.

Clara Overum Dies Sept. 15; Rites Thurs.

Funeral services for Clara Overum are tentatively set for Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at Our Saviours Lutheran church with Rev. Eugene Enderlein officiating. Interment will be in the Bethlehem cemetery.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home after 3:00 p.m., Wednesday, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's Times.

Request Made To Pay For 'U' Faculty Hike

A request for $74.4 million to pay for a 31 per cent faculty salary increase over the next two years will be part of the University of Minnesota biennial request to the legislature.

The salary money request was approved recently by the board of regents, along with a request for $103 million in capital improvements.

If granted, the 17 per cent increase in the first year and 14 per cent increase in the second "would make some partial but by no means complete restoration of the enormous loss of buying power suffered by the faculty in the past 10 years," university president C. Peter Magrath told the board.

Magrath made the pay increase proposal to the board in July, telling the regents at that time that low salaries encourage top faculty members to look for more lucrative posotions outside of eudcation.

The $103 million capital request includes four projects contained in the bonding bill drawn up during the last legislative session. The bonding bill died in the last moments of the session.

For the first time, the request for building and remodeling money is arranged in priority order, a ranking requested by Gov. Al Quie. The four projects included in last year's bonding bill are a new building for agronomy and plant genetics and additions to the plant pathology and soil science buildings, a new music building, an addition to the business administration building, and a new building for the Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs.

The order of the four projects was decided — with the agronomy project coming out on top — only after several motions suggesting different orders were considered and hinged on the ranking of the Humphrey institute building in relation to the others.

Moorhead regent William Dosland's motion to separate the Humphrey institute building from the other three, calling it "an unranked item of special emphasis," was defeated on a 7-4 vote after several regents urged that such a designation would have little meaning for legislators.

"We have a clear moral obligation here," said Minnesota regent David Lebedoff. "We went out and raised a lot of money, not from the Minnesota taxpayers. We told these people, 'Your money will take care of the program, and we'll take care of the building.' Now it seems like we're welching on the deal" by suggesting that the building not be ranked.

Magrath told the board that it is "almost impossible to set these priorities" since each of the projects in question is "vital."

The board approved the order on a nine to four vote, with the agronomy building first, the Humphrey institute second, the music building third and the business administration addition fourth.

Dosland said that moving the Humphrey institute up from its original fourth place spot — the administration's recommendation — to the second place was inappropriate. "The Humphrey institute is still in its embryo stage," he said. "Each of the other requests is tied to a well-developed, long-term program."

In other action, a plan to seek a limited travel agency license for the International Study and Travel association passed on a five to four vote, with two regents abstaining.

The regents' action gives the ISTA authority to seek a license from the International Air Transport association to sell airline tickets for international flights and connecting domestic flights. The ISTA helps students develop travel plans tied to education.

The plan has been opposed by local travel agents who feel that their business will suffer through "unfair" competition from a nonprofit institution.

The resolution limits advertising of the service to university publications and specifies that the service will concentrate on faculty, staff and students. After one year, the resolution will expire and will have to be renewed by the regents.

mile aerial photography. Soil scientists use hydraulic probes or hand operated portable probes to examine the soil to a depth of 60 inches. Some soil characteristics they use to separate soil types are the color, texture, drainage, pH, slope and permeability of the soil. Each soil type, or soil series as named by the soil scientists, is standardized according to national guidelines stating what soil characteristics are allowed for every soil series.

Party leader Rolling states, "In the northwest part of the county we exepct about 30 soil series and in the main part of the county an additional 30 soil series plus we've uncovered about 45 to 60 new series," party leader Rolling states.

Samples of the soils collected during the field season are sent to the soils laboratory at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul. The data forms the basis for the engineering and other interpretive tables in the published report. Soil scientists use this information and rate each soil according to specific uses such as suitability for basements, septic tank absorption fields, source of ground of sand, sewage lagoons and forestry interpretations.

Potential users of the soil survey are farmers, city, county and regional planners, engineers, foresters, architects, appraisors, assessors, home buyers, sanitarians, and anyone else who buys land, plans or regulates land use or makes a living from the land.

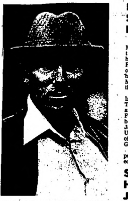
Foreseeable uses of the soil survey would be to help farmers more accurately predict yields, especially over a long period of time or on land they have not previously farmed. Knowledge of different soil series and textures can help farmers "fine-tune" their fertilizer and pesticide application, helping to eliminate costly overuse.

The soil maps can also located problem areas where drainage, slope, erosion control or other specific management may be required, particularly on unfamiliar ground. Soil maps can also show soil series with low bearing strength. Heavy machinery operators can avoid organic (peaty) soils that inherently have low bearing strength.

The information in the soil survey report can enable city planners to plan for future growth, steering clear of areas which may cause problems for new homeowners, the city of both. An attempt can also be made to keep prime agricultural land in production and direct city expansion to less productive soils.

Beltrami county soil scientists have been working since spring of 1979 setting up new series, making an identification legend of all the series in the county and transecting the county establishing geomorphic regions. Mapping of the entire county is scheduled to be complete by the fall of 1987 and the published soil survey is scheduled to be available for the public in 1990.

The Thief River Falls office is located at Third and Knight and the Bemidji office is at 722 Fifteenth street.



PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS during the last acre ceremony held for completion of the soil survey in Pennington county were Albert Koop, left, member of the Pennington county board of commissioners, and Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director who served as master of ceremonies for the program.

Green Thumb Workers Speak Out At Meet

session, among other various area speakers, was Mike Moore, Region 1 director of the Area Agency on Aging (AAA) from Crookston.

The Green Thumb program has been in operation for 14 years, he said, and employs 17,000 people nationwide. During the session conducted Thursday throughout the day, Moore explained various problems facing senior citizens today, and requested their input on the current problems — and many seniors spoke out.

The regional forum is one step in getting to the White House conference on aging, Anderson said. Its intent is to get rural input. Senior citizens correspond at the sessions by using the information gathered in their work activities in the region, which includes problems encountered while "on the job."

It was also noted by Moore that September 23 will be the date of a meeting on the regional White House conference on aging, sponsored by the Northwest Regional Development commission, University of Minnesota (UMC) in Crookston, Tri-Valley Opportunity council, Inter-county community council, and the Northwest community action agency.

The meeting, which will be conducted at UMC from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., will host Katherine Sehlin, state chairman for the White House conference on aging from St. Paul, who will discuss purposes and reasoning behind the conference.

A second speaker at the meeting will be Mary Darling from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis who will discuss "Nutrition for the Elderly." The large group discussions which will take place at the meeting will include challenge (concerns) and proposal (solutions) segments, according to Moore.

It was also noted Thursday that October 20-21 the Green Thumb program will be sponsoring six state rural mini-conferences in Sioux Falls, SD. For further information on the results of this conference, written correspondence may be directed to Green Thumb Inc., Box 310, Wadena, MN 56482.

More Persons Eligible For Jobless Pay

Approximately 3,900 additional persons may be eligible for federal-state extended unemployment insurance benefit payments as a result of a United States district court action, Commissioner Rolf Middleton of the Department of Economic Security announced.

Court action resulted in an eligibility date of July 20, 1980, rather than August 24, 1980, as previously set by the U.S. Department of Labor. Action affected the formula used by the Department of Labor in determining the beginning date. August date affected 29,000 claimants.

Minnesota Department of Economic Security has notified by mail those persons identified as being eligible. Persons who filed their first claims for unemployment benefits on or after July 29, 1979, and who did not receive a notice, should contact their nearest area unemployment insurance office.

Eligible unemployed workers will receive the same weekly benefits they have been receiving but only for half the number of weeks for which they qualified under the regular unemployment insurance benefits.

For instance a person who has exhausted a 26-week unemployment compensation claim could receive another 13 weeks at the same weekly benefit rate, while a person who received 12 weeks of benefits would be eligible for another six weeks.

Extra benefits were "triggered on" in Minnesota and 30 other states because of the high national unemployment rates. An additional 19 states and Puerto Rico had been paying extended unemployment insurance benefits because of their own high unemployment rates.

Msgr. Merth Services Held At E. G. Forks

Msgr. A. I. Merth, 87, of Crookston, former priest of St. Bernard's Catholic parish, Thief River Falls, died September 4 at the Villa St. Vincent at Crookston. He had been a resident of the Villa for several years.

Funeral services for Msgr. Merth were held Monday, September 8, at the Sacred Heart Catholic church in East Grand Forks. Burial was in the Resurrection cemetery.

Monsignor Alexander I. Merth was born Jan. 8, 1893 at Sleepy Eye. He attended Pontifical college Josephium in Worthington, Ohio and was ordained into the priesthood on June 14, 1919 at Columbus, Ohio.

From 1919 to 1922, he served as assistant pastor at the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception at Crookston. After leaving there, he served as pastor at Stephen until coming to Thief River Falls.

From 1924 until 1947, he was priest of St. Bernard's parish. Under his leadership and due to his deep interest in children, teaching them Christian doctrine and leading them in athletics and sportsmanship, St. Bernard's parish school was opened in the fall of 1925. He was also instrumental in the restoration and continued upkeep of St. Bernard's cemetery.

From 1947, until his retirement in 1971, he was pastor of the Sacred Heart Catholic church in East Grand Forks. While there, the church, high school, gymnasium, grade school, rectory, and an addition to the convent were built.

During his years in the priesthood, he was known for his fiery and evangelical sermons. He received numerous honors in the diocese, including chairmanship of the priests senate, superintendent of schools in the Diocese of Crookston, and consultor to the bishop. In 1955, he was named a domestic prelate by Pope Pius XII.

After his retirement, he moved to Melrose and lived there from March 1973 until June of 1976.

He is survived by three brothers, Rev. John Merth, Moorhead, and Rudolph and Matthew, both of St. Paul; and a sister, Mrs. Helen Pluth, Grey Eagle.

Mrs. Olga Leach, 71, a resident of Thief River Falls since 1955, died Saturday at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Funeral services for Mrs. Olga Leach will be held Tuesday at 11:00 a.m., at St. John Lutheran church with Rev. Barrie Henke officiating. Interment will be in the Wylie cemetery.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Irma Ritala Services To Be Held In TRF

Mrs. Irma Ritala, 71, of Minneapolis, died Friday at the Fairview-Southdale hospital in that city. Mrs. Ritala was a former resident of Thief River Falls. Among her survivors is her sister, Mrs. Elvin (Bernice) Dahl of this city.

Funeral services for Mrs. Irma Ritala will be held in Thief River Falls on Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel where the body is reposing. Rev. Jonathan Law, pastor at the United Methodist church, will officiate. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Services Held Here For Mrs. Joe Dostal, 77

Funeral services for Mrs. Joe (Jeanette) Dostal, 77, of this city were held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church. Mrs. Dostal died Tuesday at St. Mary's Nursing home in Detroit Lakes.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the services. Mrs. Dorothy Larson was the organist and Mrs. Melba Penning, the soloist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Dostal, the former Jeanette Solheim, was born Jan. 13, 1903 at Blooming Prairie to Iver and Marie Stengrimson Solheim.

On March 2, 1926, she was married to Joseph Dostal in Thief River Falls. The couple made their home in Thief River Falls until July of this year when they became residents of St. Mary's Nursing home in Detroit Lakes.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran church and was active in Trinity Lutheran Church Women and the Women's Chorus of Trinity. She was also a member of the DeCor club of the Thief River Falls Federated Women's clubs.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Keith (Paula) Wittnebel, Detroit Lakes; three grandchildren, and three sisters: Mrs. Thomas (Vi) McNeally, Duluth; Mrs. Clifford (Gudrun) Lunke, Edina; and Mrs. Inger Vingren, Duluth.

Four brothers and two sisters preceded her in death.

Mrs. Merrill Skoglund Dies At Roseau

Mrs. Merrill (Arlyne) Skoglund, 41, of Roseau and formerly of the Goodridge area, died Friday, September 5, at the Roseau Area hospital following a week's illness.

Funeral services for Mrs. Skoglund were held Tuesday, September 9, at 2:00 p.m., at the First Baptist church in Roseau. Rev. Curtis Thompson and Rev. Robert Ludwig, pastor of the Assembly of God church, officiated. Interment was in the Oak Hill cemetery with the Helgeson Funeral home, Roseau, in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Skoglund, the former Arlyne Delores Alma Wilkens, was born March 2, 1939 in Thief River Falls to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilkens, now deceased. She attended school in Goodridge, lived in Illinois for two years, and then returned to Goodridge. In 1963, she moved to Roseau and was married there on October 12 of that year to Merrill Skoglund. Since then, she had lived in Stafford township, Roseau county, where she and her husband were engaged in farming.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mary Clark, Thief River Falls, two sons: Eugene and Mark Skoglund, both of Roseau; two brothers: Melvin and Raymond Wilkens, both of Grygla, and a sister, Mrs. Arnold (LaVera) Homme, Fargo, N.D.

She was preceded in death by one brother, Lloyd.

B. Hjalmer Lee Of Newfolden Dies On Wed.

B. Hjalmer Lee, 80, of the Newfolden community, father of Vernon Lee of Thief River Falls, died Wednesday at the Karlstad hospital.

Funeral services for Hjalmer Lee were held Saturday at 10:00 a.m., at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden. Interment was in the Opdahl cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times

Paul Nornes Services Held At Winger

Funeral services for Paul Nornes, 43, who lived for a time in the Gatzke community, were held Saturday, September 6, at the Dovre Lutheran church in Winger. Nornes died August 4, in Los Angeles, Calif.

Rev. Bruce Dalager officiated at the services. Mrs. Robert Bursheim was the organist and Rev. and Mrs. Dalager sang. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Carlin Funeral home, Fosston, in charge of arrangements. Military honors were accorded by the Fengestad-Solie post of the American Legion.

Paul Irving Nornes, a son of the late Elias and Annette Nornes, was born July 2, 1937. He attended elementary school in Winger and Gatzke, and was attending McIntosh high school when he joined the U.S. Army in January of 1955. While in the service, he earned his high school diploma. He spent most of his military service in Europe. Upon his discharge in December of 1957, he attended Bemidji State college where he received his bachelor of science degree in 1960. He taught at the Greenbush high school from 1960-61 and at the Pasco, Washington public schools from 1962-64. During the summer of 1961, he attended the University of North Dakota. He also attended two summers and a full year at Colorado State college. He then taught in colleges for short periods of time in Missouri and South Carolina. He lived for a time in New York City and since December of 1978 had lived in Los Angeles, Calif.

Public Waters Inventory Is In Progress

Counties in the southern part of Minnesota are now in the process of inventorying the basins and streams which meet the definitions of "public waters" as defined by State Statutes 105, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Whether or not a particular basin (including wetlands) or streams will be classed as a public water depends on size, physical characteristics and ownership of surrounding lands.

When the inventory is completed, each county will have a map which will delineate those public waters where a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) permit is required before alterations of course, current, or cross section can take place below the ordinary high water mark (OHW).

The OHW is defined for watercourses as the elevation of the top of the bank of the channel. For reserviors and flowage, the OHW is the operating elevation of the normal summer pool. Generally, it is the point where the natural vegetation changes from predominantly aquatic to predominantly upland.

Any work done below the OHW is within the beds of public waters or wetlands and is therefore subject to the permit authority of the DNR.

In each county the county board of commissioners is taking the lead role in the inventory process with information and comment from local soil and water conservation district(s), Watershed district(s), other local, state and federal agencies and concerned citizens.

The inventory was initiated in southern Minnesota and is scheduled for completion over the entire state in late 1982. Further information of the public waters inventory status in respective counties can be had by calling the DNR division of waters at (612) 296-0508.

Crime Groups Surround Car Theft Rings

Official estimate of auto thefts in the United States for 1979 shows an alarming total of 1,100,688. That's an increase of about 11 per cent over 1978 and some 100,000 more than the previous record number of thefts in 1975, according to the National automobile theft bureau's annual report recently issued.

The newly reported increases go hand-in-hand with the growing takeover of auto theft by organized crime. The Federal Bureau of Investigation reports that the recovery rate has dropped from nine cars of 10 stolen in 1967 to six of 10 in 1978 — an indication of professionals at work, since the cars they steal are seldom recovered.

Auto theft's complexion has changed — from one of primarily teen-agers who steal cars to joyride for a few hours — to a "business" run by professionals. Amateurs have no trouble finding cars unlocked with keys in the ignition. Of course, the professionals do not overlook such easy pickings either. But the master car thief can make off with even a locked car in less than a minute.

"Everyone is affected by these thefts through higher insurance costs," an insurance spokesperson said. "One company alone paid out $121.5 million in auto theft claims in 1979."

Role of professional car thieves is growing at the same time as is the involvement of "chop-shops" in which stolen vehicles are cut up for parts and the parts sold.

"This 'chop-shop' operation is being taken over by organized crime," FBI director William H. Webster said recently. "If it remains a lucrative business, these criminal groups will attempt to establish even more control."

Webster said the "chop-shops" are vicious, very competitive businesses. And 14 gangland-style killings in Chicago and four in New York have been linked to "chopping." The FBI had more than 600 "chop-shop" operations and theft rings under investigation last December, "more than at any time in our history."

Arrests and prosecutions are hard to come by because the stolen parts that are fenced have carried no identification numbers.

But beginning with the 1980 model year, Ford Motor company is marking major component parts of the Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark VI with their vehicle identification numbers (VIN) to deter "chop-shop" operations and control the illegal trafficking of stolen parts. Auto insurance companies, the NATB and the U.S. Justice department will assist in tracking the results.

A comparable marking program with Cadillac Sevilles and Eldorados was announced in January, 1980 by General Motors. It is expected that a similar cooperative tracking effort will be undertaken with the assistance of insurers, the NATB and law enforcement people. The VIN of these GM and Ford cars will be printed on special security labels that cannot be altered.

These new programs are the latest in the vigorous anti-theft efforts of law enforcement agencies, legislators, the insurance industry and auto manufacturers.

But if the crime of auto theft is to be significantly deterred, motorists also must help to protect themselves and their cars against criminals.

From the consumer's standpoint, vehicle thefts can be reduced if certain simple precautions are taken. The most important is to never leave keys in an unattended car, even when running a quick errand. Approximately one out of five thefts have been of unlocked cars with the keys in the ignition. "Lock it and pocket the key" is a valuable slogan to remember. It has been used successfully in anti-theft campaigns in many states, most recently being in 1979 in Missouri and Oklahoma and in a similar program in 1980 in southern Nevada.

APPROXIMATELY 90 Green Thumb workers appeared at a special session conducted in the Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday to present their concerns and problems to various speakers appearing at the meeting. The sessions, conducted twice yearly, offer senior citizens the chance to speak out on current issues and express their needs in preparation for the White House conference on aging.

PATROLMAN RICK SELBY (Tim Barrus) tries to prove to swinging Mandy Morgan (Lori Kaml) that he really is the one who gave her a speeding ticket two years earlier and was promised "A Good Time." Scene occurs during one of the three one-act comedies written by Ernest Thompson which will be presented as a dinner theater production by the Chameleon Theatre Co., Inc. at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls September 18, 19 and 20 and September 26 and 27. Buffet dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Viking Era Exhibit Set At Minneapolis

"The Vikings" will come to Minneapolis.

Largest and most comprehensive exhibition ever assembled on the colorful seafarers of ancient Scandinavia will open to the public at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts March 3 of next year foa two-months stay, it was recently announced by Institute Director Samuel Sachs II.

In what Sachs called "a most significant decision in our favor against great odds," the Institute was able to convince the British Museum, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, and the lenders of hundreds of priceless items in the show to change policy and allow the exhibition to make its last stop in Minneapolis. It had previously been announced that the only U.S. showing would be at the Metropolitan. The exhibition was assembled by the Birtish museum in association with the Metropolitan museum and was to be limited to these two institutions.

Sachs said "The Vikings" will be the largest undertaking in terms of cost and scope in the museum's history. "Bringing this great exhibition here will afford all citizens, especially those of Scandinavian heritage, a rare historical look at the colorful Viking world of ancient times." Sachs said the museum is planning for an attendance of 250,000 persons during the two-months run.

Exhibition brings together over 500 objects on loan from 45 museums and other collections in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Great Britain, Ireland and Germany. Included are major archaeological treasures as well as exquisite gold and silver jewelry, delicately ornamented objects of gilt bronze, and carvings in stone, wood, ivory and other materials.

Wealth of material in the exhibition is organized to show the development of Viking art and to show the Vikings as warriors, traders and explorers in Europe and the North Atlantic from the 8th century to the 11th century A.D.

The age of the Vikings extended from shortly before A.D. 800, when the Viking ships first appeared off the coasts of the British Isles and devasted the island monasteries of Lindesfarne and Iona, to the middle of the 11th century. During those two-and-a-half centuries the Vikings fought and traded as far as Morocco and Italy in the south and Byzantium in the east. They colonized the islands off Scotland, established the cities of Dublin, Waterford, Cork and Limerick in Ireland, settled extensively in parts of England, and founded the Duchy of Normandy in France.

The Vikings were the greatest sailors of their time. They fearlessly set out on the high seas at a time when ships rarely ventured out of sight of land. In one of the most spectacular achievements of the age, the Vikings struck out over the Atlantic to discover and colonize Iceland and Greenland, and they were the first Europeans to reach the North American continent.

John LeMoine Returns From Navy Duty

Navy Machinist's Mate 3rd Class John P. LeMoine, son of Richard and Dorothy LeMoine of Thief River Falls, recently returned from deployment with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea.

During the five-month cruise, his ship participated in various training exercises with other U.S. 6th Fleet units and those of allied nations. Port visits were made in Rota, Spain; Mombasa, Kenya; and Naples, Italy.

Forrest Sherman is the Navy's oldest active destroyer. It is 418 feet long and carries a crew of 292. His ship is outfitted with guns, torpedoes and anti-submarine rockets.

LeMoine joined the navy in September of 1976.

Paul Mehrkens At Concordia

Paul Mehrkens, son of Mr. William F. Mehrkens Jr., Thief River Falls, has been accepted as a student at Concordia college, St. Paul, for the fall quarter. Mehrkens is a 1976 graduate of Lincoln high school.

New Law Drops 800,000 Food Stamp Users

Assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said program-tightening measures approved by Congress and signed into law by the President will cause 650,000 people with incomes near the poverty line to lose their eligibility for food stamps in fiscal year 1981. Some 150,000 students also will be removed from the program.

"The law will allow USDA to make needed management improvements in this vital program," Foreman said. "It includes all of the proposals made by the President in March to help balance the federal budget. These include authorization of substantially increased appropriations over the next year to help meet needs caused by increased unemployment and inflation."

Measures that will curb potential spending for food stamps by $148 million this year and $620 million in fiscal 1981 are also included, Foreman said.

Under the new law's funding authority, Congress can legally appropriate up to $9.491 billion for 1980 and $9.739 billion for 1981, she said. Previously, the ceilings were set at $6.188 billion for fiscal 1980 and $6.236 billion for fiscal 1981. The revised authorizations and additional money provided in separate legislation came in time to prevent a threatened delay or suspension of June benefits because of insufficient funds.

"Even with the additional spending, the 21 million people who use food stamps will not receive the same level of benefits as under the previous law," Foreman said. "The new law cancels the cost-of-living adjustment that had been scheduled for July 1 and eliminates one of two cost-of-living increases originally planned for next year. That means only one increase will be allowed in the next 16 months, and that will come in January."

The legislation also makes it harder for people to qualify to receive food stamps, she said. It requires that participants have net incomes below a new, lower poverty line limit, and that they have fewer resources. Effective in July, the maximum net income limit for a family of four will be set at $7,450, and it will not be updated to $8,200 as had originally been scheduled.

Under the present food stamp law, most food stamp households must have assets worth less than $1,750. The new law will lower this limit to $1,500 beginning October 1. Households of two or more people, in which at least one person is elderly, will not be affected by the change. The assets limit for these elderly households remains at $3,000.

Most of the 200,000 adult students (over 18 and under 60 years of age) who now receive food stamps will be ineligible as of October 1. The only exceptions will be low-income students with disabilities or those who: (1) work more than 20 hours a week, (2) head households with dependents, (3) participate in a federal work-study program, or (4) are enrolled in a work incentive program under the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) program.

Other major provisions of the new law aimed at tightening eligibility and management and cracking down on fraud and abuse include:

—Expanded authority for states in verifying information provided by applicants about household size and other factors affecting eligibility and benefit levels;

—Authorization for USDA and the states to set up, with appropriate safeguards, systems for cross-checking income information furnished by applicants;

—A provision for issuance of photo-identification cards in project areas where the USDA secretary of agriculture, in consultation with the inspector general, determines they would be useful in controlling fraud and abuse;

—A requirement that the income and resources of household members who are ineligible aliens be considered in determining the household's eligibility for food stamps and the level of benefits;

—Increased federal payments for administrative costs for those states that substantially reduce program error rates, and reduced federal payments for those that do not; and

—An optional provision that will allow states to determine eligibility and benefits for some applicants and recipients by using "retrospective accounting," a system that takes into account actual income earned in a past month rather than estimated income in the current month.

Foreman said the new law also allows for some expansion of benefits to especially needy groups. "Women and children who live in shelters for battered women will now be considered eligible for food stamps," she said. "Grants provided by state and local governments to needy families to help pay heating bills will not be counted as income in figuring food stamp eligibility and benefits. And, effective in fiscal 1982, benefits will be liberalized for elderly families with high medical bills and for working food stamp families that must pay for care of dependents."

Mattson And Nygard Given Scholarships

Linda J. Mattson and Karla I. Nygard, both of Thief River Falls, are the recipients of Bemidji state university scholarships to attend BSU during the 1980-81 school year.

Bemidji state offers several types of scholarships to recognize students who distinguished themselves as outstanding scholars or have special talents or leadership qualifications.

Linda received a faculty scholarship which is provided by the faculty and staff of the university to recognize outstanding incoming freshmen and community college transfer students. Factors considered are leadership, special interests and talent, and-or scholastic achievement.

Karla received an Alliss scholarship which is made available from funds established by the Charles and Ellora Alliss educational foundation to deserving upperclassmen.

Looking At The Election

Tuesday's primary election results raised several questions that should give the public something to talk about for the next few weeks. First was the low total voter turn-out which is perhaps an indication of voter apathy but more likely a reflection of the lack of contests on the ballot.

When one thinks of the many countries where there is no opportunity to participate effectively in the governing process, one must recognize that Americans do tend to take their opportunities and freedoms for granted.

The low voter turn-out brings up the question of how cross-over voting may have affected the total vote: Because there were no contests on the Independent-Republican ballot, the potential for mischief-making by party enthusiasts so inclined was certainly there. It was a "free" chance to meddle a little as the DFL attempted to select its candidates.

In out opinion, it is possible that some cross-over voting could have made the election as close as it was (230 votes) in the state representative run-off between winner LeRoy Stumpf and challenger Jim Kremer. Since Stumpf was endorsed, the tendency by maverick Republicans would have been to vote for Kremer and attempt to embarrass the DFL organization.

In addition, Kremer's positions on a number of issues had to be considered more in tune with Republican philosophy than stated DFL positions. In fact, Kremer could almost as well have been in the I-R primary as the DFL primary on the basis of issues alone.

Regardless of that opportunity, however, we doubt that the cross-over was very extensive. We suspect that most of the votes cast on the DFL side of the ballot were cast legitimately by primarily DFL voters, and that the I-R vote total was disproportionately low because potential Republican voters stayed at home.

The stay at home decision could have had repercussions if a few more had decided not to vote. In a most interesting election after-thought, the Minnesota secretary of state's office pointed out a little-known law which requires all primary election candidates to get a minimum number of votes to advance to the general election ballot. The number is based on 10 per cent of votes cast for state officers of that party in that district in the previous general election.

Why the knowledge of that law came to light after the balloting had been done — in the light of Secretary of State Joan Growe's professed interest in providing voters with a maximum of election information — is presently somewhat of a mystery. In this area at least, revelation of the law surprised not only the voters but the candidates and officials involved in the election.

The next question raised by the election, and one that will not be answered until November 4, is how much the active DFL primary election campaign will impact on the general election. Will Stumpf's efforts to gain identity and voter familiarity give him an edge over I-R legislative candidate Clyde Christensen who has been working quietly prior to the primary? Will Stumpf have expended energy and funds in the primary which will leave him more vulnerable in the general election drive? Time will tell.

Parting Thought: We predicted LeRoy would shade Jim by 200 votes in the primary. Actual margin was 230. It isn't often we come that close, so we wanted to be sure nobody missed it.

Posing The Problems . . . . Ducking The Solutions

Impact of Gov. Al Quie's order to cut back on state spending will obviously be felt throughout the state and particularly in education where local districts rely heavily on state aids. School districts have not had an easy road for a number of years, and the cut-back order will add a few more rocks, bumps, ruts and washouts.

But the pressure being exerted in education circles to compel the governor to call a special session of the legislature to deal with the question may be a bit improper. Donald Hill, president of the Minnesota Education association and leader of the drive for a special session, gives an indication of that impropriety in the current "MEA Advocate".

No specific tax increases are being proposed by the MEA, he said. "The politicians got us into this dilemma. It's up to the politicians to lead us out. As practitioners, we can only surface the problems," Hill said.

Surfacing the problems, however, does not surface the dollars. And it was the economy, not necessarily the politicians, that created the problem. Financial short-fall in state income from taxation is leaving the state short on money to meet the expenditure budget. States, like people and businesses, really shouldn't expect to spend money they don't have — even for something as important as education.

Hill said that "we're dead serious about having a special session and we intend to throw all the energies of this organization behind that goal." Obviously, he believes there is a crisis which requires most immediate action.

But then he adds, "If the cuts go smoothly, there's no reason to expect that there won't be more in the future."

Ah, yes, the insulation factor. Let's not find out what we can do without because we might not get it back.

We can't fault Hill for attempting to protect his interests. But we can understand the necessity for the cuts and we should try out best to make the best of the situation.

The Best Solution

A newspaper wire story had big news for Minnesotans recently. Middle-income taxpayers in this state pay more income taxes than residents of any other state in the nation.

"Minnesota is No. 1 in income taxes for families with one wage earner and in families with incomes between $12,500 and $50,000, according to a study by the state Department of Revenue," the story explained. But then, maybe that isn't news to Minnesota taxpayers.

There are some interesting ironies in the state's distinction of being Number One in overtaxation. First our current governor campaigns on a platform of lowering taxes, and did, in fact, get tax indexing legislation through the state legislature, but has done very little beyond that to lower the personal income taxes of Minnesotans.

Furthermore, Gov. Al Quie now seems to be leading the state down the road to a deficit budget. And even if he can blame a great deal of the excess spending on the legislature, many Minnesotans expected more from Quie.

Another irony of Minnesota's number one slot in the tax burden race, is the person primarily responsible for collecting those taxes — Commissioner of Revenue Clyde Allen.

Before Allen became the chief collector of taxes he was the chief opponent of taxes. Allen was a former director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association, an organization dedicated to the reduction of personal state income taxes. Confusing, isn't it?

But perhaps the greatest source of amazement between what a typical one-wage-earner family of ours with an income of $12,500 pays in Minnesota, and what the same family would pay anywhere else. Hawaii, for example, is second in overtaxation, with a much higher cost of living, but isn't even close to Minnesota. The same Hawaiian family would pay only $425 in income tax to the Minnesota family's $545. In South Dakota there is no state income tax, and in North Dakota, near the bottom of the taxing scale, a similar family would pay only $109. Quite a gap.

But this situation is not difficult to solve. There are no magic reasons why Minnesotans pay more income tax than anyone else. Our politicians simply spend more money, and voters let them get by with it.

There's no mystery to the state's estimated $90 million shortfall in revenues, when the legislature spends tax money like there will never be another election.

Plenty of state legislators are up for election this year. A few minutes reading up on what each has done to cut our tax burden, and a heavy hand on the voting lever, is the best solution to our income tax problems.

Next seat passenger: "Not if my throwing up won't bother you."

Two youngsters were discussing someone they heard had a glass eye. "You mean one eye is really made of glass?" asked one. "Of course," the older of the two replied. "If it wasn't glass, how could he see through it?"

Tuck House In At Night To Cut Fuel Bill

One of the easiest and cheapest ways to save 25 per cent or more on your winter heating costs is to tuck your house in bed each night, just like you do for the kiddies, suggests the Minnesota energy agency.

"Now if you pull your draperies or shades at night, you've got the right idea, but make sure those draperies fit tightly against the casement; otherwise warm room air can circulate behind the drape and down the cold glass to cool your room," the agency said. "A tightly woven, heavy drapery with a lining is an effective block against heat loss when it is sealed tightly at the ceiling, bottom and sides, using cornices, fasteners or cuphooks."

If new window coverings are in order, you can spend a little or a lot and still get high insulating values to stop heat loss.

Window coverings should be easy to operate (to be effective, you have to use window coverings everyday, and if they are hard to handle, you probably won't); and window covering must form a good seal with the window frame, and be made with good insulating materials to prevent warm air from circulating by the cold window.

Also coverings should be reasonably priced to guarantee quick payback of your investment from energy savings. But good window coverings are more effective than storm windows, so it's worth it to pay a little more. Window coverings should be long lasting and easy to clean.

Commercial window coverings are available on the market. They include insulating shades, shutters and blankets, either motorized or manually operated, and can be installed on the interior or exterior of your home. Many are very attractive. Prices, uninstalled, range from $1-10 a square foot, and carry R (insulating) values from four to 16. Most can be retrofitted to older homes.

Homemade varieties are much cheaper, and are limited in design and ingenuity only by your imagination. One innovative homeowner made panels out of urethane insulation and covered them with contemporary print fabrics. By night, those R-12 panels fight heat loss; by day, those easy to handle panels are attractive wallhangings. Other innovative designs include window quilts, insulated roman shades and sliding thermal shutters.

MN. Counties Eligible For Disaster Aid

A. Vernon Weaver, administrator of the Small Business administration, issued a declaration making disaster loan assistance available in Becker, Beltrami, Clay, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Mahnomen, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties due to the severe drought that occurred beginning in April, 1980.

Six counties adjoining those declared disaster areas are also eligible for the same assistance. They are: Wilkin, Ottertail, Wadena, Cass, Itasca and St. Louis.

In addition, Pennington county is eligible for assistance for damage caused by a hail storm June 3 and Red Lake county for the same hail storm and a tornado which occurred July 11.

Affected businessmen and farmers in the counties may apply for eight and one-half per cent loans with up to 30 years to repay, according to Gov. Al Quie.

Small business concerns, generally retail and service businesses doing less than $2 million in business annually, which have suffered economic injury from the drought threatening their viability, may be eligible for loans of up to $500,000. Deadline for their application is March 5, 1981.

Farmers who have suffered crop loss may be eligible for loans up to the amount of their actual disaster damage. Deadline for farmers' applications is June 5, 1981.

Farmers in 18 of the 21 counties (except for Ottertail, Wadena and Cass counties) were declared eligible for Farmers Home administration loans June 17.

Loan application forms and information may be obtained by contacting the Small Business administration disaster office at room 530, Plymouth Building, 12 south 6th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55401. Telephone number if 612-725-2045.

Lower long distance rates for short distance calls

Now it costs less to call nearby places . . . when you direct dial station-to-station long distance calls. On September 1, your telephone company reduced direct-dial rates for long distance calls to towns up to 40 miles away.*

The new rates make it more affordable for you to shop by phone, call friends and businesses in nearby towns and to make appointments with doctors, lawyers, and professionals who live nearby. The new rates will save you between 12% and 26% on every call that you dial direct within a 40-mile radius.

As examples, here's what it costs now to make 5- and 15-minute direct-dial calls:

A 5-MINUTE CALL COSTS . . .

To a town:	Weekday full rate:	Evening 35% discount:	Night and weekend 60% discount:
10 miles away	34¢	22¢	13¢
25 miles away	71¢	46¢	28¢
40 miles away	$1.19	77¢	47¢

A 15-MINUTE CALL COSTS . . .

To a town	Weekday full rate:	Evening 35% discount:	Night and weekend 60% discount:
10 miles away	84¢	54¢	33¢
40 miles away	$3.29	$2.13	$1.31

Under the new rate plan it costs much more to make long distance calls through the operator. In addition to the regular rate, these charges apply:
- 25¢ for each customer-dialed operator-assisted call charged to a credit card or special billing number
- 70¢ for each station-to-station operator-assisted call, and . . .
- $2.05 for each person-to-person call made through the operator.

Dialing direct is still the most economical way to call long distance . . . especially during discount hours.

For more information on discount rate periods, consult the Customer Guide in the front of your telephone directory.

That was a sharp-looking Grand Rapids football team that beat Thief River Falls 30-6 Friday night. Both teams entered the game with 2-0 records, but the highly-regarded Indians also carried the state's No. 4 Class AA ranking into the contest. And they looked deserving of that honor.

"In the skill positions, they (Prowlers) are probably equal to us," pointed out Grand Rapids coach Bill Soltys, "but they couldn't match us across the front."

Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz was more succinct: "They ate us up," he said.

Still, as much as Grand Rapids was dominating play, Thief River Falls had a chance to be in the game at halftime when nose guard Rick Gobell recovered a fumbled Grand Rapids hand-off at the Indians' 22-yard line with 5:59 remaining in the first half. But a foolish five-yard penalty for illegal procedure immediately moved the Prowlers back to the 27. They got it back to the 10 thanks to a personal foul call against Grand Rapids on a fourth down incomplete pass, but then proceeded to pick up another five-yarder for moving early.

"Those penalties changed everything," noted Schmitz. "We had to change everything just to try to make up for those yards. If we could have scored right there before the half . . ."

He didn't finish the sentence. A score there and a 14-6 or 14-7 score at halftime would have done wonders for the Prowlers. But even though they did manage to get that close by capitalizing on a Grand Rapids fumble late in the third quarter, a Thief River Falls win would still have been unlikely. Grand Rapids simply had a better football team — supposedly the fourth best in the state.

Thief River Falls will host a surprising Staples ball club this Friday, a team that raised a few eyebrows by beating a well-respected East Grand Forks team 14-7 Friday. The Cardinals will bring a 2-1 record to Thief River Falls. The Prowlers will then tackle Moorhead before beginning their season-ending string of Northwest Athletic Conference games against Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

Volleyball Team Faces Moorhead

Toughest test of the 1980 season awaits the Lincoln high school volleyball squad Thursday when the Prowlers host Moorhead at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls has never beaten Moorhead in Volleyball. The Spuds have won nine straight matches against the Prowlers since 1975, and during that span Thief River Falls has never so much as won a single game.

"We've never played up to our potential when we've faced Moorhead," Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss said last year. "We just sit back and let Moorhead control this against us."

Moorhead, the two-time defending Region 8AA champion, is expected to dominate North Half Region 8AA volleyball again this fall. The Spuds have shown great skills when they've played here in the past and anyone interested in catching a look at girls high school volleyball action should enjoy watching Thursday night's match.

TRFAHA Looking For Coaches

Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) is looking for volunteer coaches for the upcoming 1980-81 season.

Coaches are needed at every age level, including the 5-6-year-old Tiny Mites, Squirts, Pee-Wees and Bantams.

If you're interested in helping the program in a coaching capacity, or for additional information, telephone TRFAHA secretary Pauline Johnson, 681-5960, after 2 p.m. The teams are expected to take the ice about November 3.

TRFAHA volunteers are continuing their work in installing an artificial ice plant in the old arena in time for the 1980-81 skating season. The ice is expected to be ready later this fall, but the group is still short funds for the $35,000 project. Individual donations can be presented through the mail by writing to TRFAHA, Box 6, Thief River Falls.

All persons interested in the Thief River Falls youth hockey program are invited to attend a TRFAHA general meeting Tuesday, Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Franklin middle school cafeteria.

Miscellaneous

+ Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer, writing about the impending withdrawl from the Northwetst Athletic Conference by East Grand Forks and Crookston at the end of the 1980 high school football season, suggested that the three remaining NWAC members — Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls, may join with Moorhead to form a new four-team Class AA conference. However, the Prowlers would probably nix that idea since they'd be the only Class A-size school among the four. Thief River Falls would like to continue playing the Lumberjacks, Otters and Spuds, but at the same time would rather be involved in a three-team Class A conference with East Grand Forks and Crookston.

Crookston Outlasts Northland 19-14 In Opener

ON THE FINAL play of the game, Crookston defensive back Dale Snyder came up with a game-saving pass interception in the end zone when he pulled the ball away from Northland receiver Blair Spikes (2) to preserve the Trojans' exciting 19-14 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division win over the Northmen on the Thief River Falls athletic field Saturday afternoon. Northland spent the final four plays inside the Crookston 10-yard line but couldn't put the ball into the end zone in the 1980 season-opener for both clubs.

Mistakes will kill you in sports. University of Minnesota-Crookston and Northland community college both made a bundle of them Saturday afternoon before the Northmen made the final one on the game's last play, allowing the Trojans to escape with a 19-14 season-opening Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division football win on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Outcome of the error-filled contest wasn't decided until Crookston defensive back Dale Snyder snatched a Jeff Westberg fourth down pass from the Crookston four-yard line away from intended receiver Blair Spikes in the right corner of the end zone. That final mistake put an end to a Northland scoring threat that had the Northmen sitting with a second-and-goal from the Crookston one-yard line with 13 seconds remaining.

But an apparent go-ahead touchdown plunge on the very next play was erased when a Northland receiver — far removed from the play — was caught moving before the snap of the ball. The five-yard illegal procedure penalty set the Northmen back to the five. Westberg, who had passed nine yards to runningback Mike Punton to reach the one, followed an incompletion with a quarterback sneak back to the four before putting the ball in the air again on that last play.

And it was Crookston blunders that gave Northland that last chance. The Trojans, after reaching the Northland 29, gave up the ball on downs at the Northland 46 with 49 seconds left by losing 17 yards on three plays — including a fourth down quarterback sack against Dewey King.

An 11-yard Westberg pass to Coby Burslie out of the backfield was lengthened by a 15-yard facemask penalty to the Crookston 26 with 36 seconds on the clock, and an interference call against Tom Sollen on the next play gave Northland a first down at the Crookston 10.

"We were our own worst enemy," sighed Crookston coach Jim Sims. "Our offense put all the points on the board," he said, meaning Northland's, too, since it was a fumble and an interception return by the Northmen that gave them a brief 14-13 lead.

In fact, Northland's defense out-gained its offense. The nonexistant Northland ground game was held to a minus 10 yards and the Northmen finished with a mere 60 yards total offense.

The Northland defense, meanwhile, gained 124 yards, scored two touchdowns, recovered five fumbles and intercepted a pass.

"Our defense played well," confirmed John Helley, who was making his debut as Northland head coach. "I don't think we did anything wrong on defense."

Trailing 13-0 — because of offensive mistakes — Northland closed the gap with 6:25 remaining in the third quarter when defensive end Duane Kjono burst into the Crookston backfield and stole the ball away from back-up quarterback Jim Harris, who was in the process of handing off to one of his own backs. Kjono, who did the same thing in last year's season-ending Northland victory at Crookston, ran 50 yards for a touchdown on the play. Jeff Gobell's conversion kick made it 13-7.

But Crookston won it following a . . . Northland mistake. Kjono's punt was blocked at the Northland 28 with 11:53 left in the game, setting up a 20-yard touchdown run by King five plays later. King rolled to his right on a third-and-12 pass attempt, but fled in the face of a hard rush. His open field scramble took him to the left corner of the end zone. Mark Stock got a piece of Craig Engle' conversion kick that hit the cross bar and bounced back on the field. But the damage had already been done.

All three Crookston touchdowns followed misplays on Northland punts. Trying to punt from near midfield, Westberg was unable to handle a low snap in the first quarter and was tackled at the Northland 48. It took Crookston 13 plays before Brook Buckholz went into the end zone from the one with 53 seconds showing.

Then on Northland's first offensive possession of the second half, a high punt snap went over Westberg's head and wound up as a 33-yard loss on the play back to the Northland 20. King ran the option to the left side to score from the three with just 2:57 elapsed.

"Penalties and poor snaps cost us the game," said Helley. "Those lousy snaps. . . We tired three, no, four different centers."

Offensively, Westberg and Jeff Steuck, who alternated at quarterback on nearly every series, were a combined 9-for-29 passing, with four interceptions. But, defended Helley, they were at a disadvantage.

"We don't have any wide receivers, that's the problem," noted Helley. "Our No. 1 wide receiver, Lyndell Knight, hurt his leg, and our No. 2 receiver, Keny Crouch, had a problem develop with his transfer transcripts. We found out Friday that he was ineligible for today's game."

"I still think we played well, especially on defense," Helley added. "I think we got their respect."

"Northland hit hard," agreed Sims. "We made lots of mistakes, but we're still happy to win."

Northland will be back on the Thief River Falls athletic field Saturday when Mesabi will be here for a 1:30 p.m. game.

Sportsmen's Club Meeting Set Wednesday

Pennington County Sportsmen's club will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the clubhouse.

Guest speakers will be Wally Sparby, who will give a slide presentation on China, and Gerald Maertens, who will give a short presentation on 1980 waterfowl hunting prospects in the Thief Lake area.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

TRF Runners Compete In Grand Forks Meet

Thief River Falls' second cross country outing of the 1980 season sent the Prowlers to Grand Forks Thursday where races were held for boys and girls varsity teams, along with boys junior varsity, freshmen and junior high races.

Moorhead took the boys varsity race with 65 points, followed by Grand Forks Central 71, Grand Forks Red River 91, Thief River Falls 94, West Fargo 98, East Grand Forks 125 and Grafton 140.

Grand Forks Central's Jim Herberg, the defending North Dakota state cross country champion, won the three-mile race in 15:14. Thief River Falls' top time was turned in by junior Bruce Johnson, who ran a sixth place 16:14. Sophomores Lon Aune and Steve Kruta also ran strong races for the Prowlers, finishing 11th and 12th, respectively, in 16:29 and 16:31.

"The boys varsity team ran well, although our fourth and fifth runners placed farther back in the pack than I expected," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer. "Several of our runners just had a bad day. It's hard for everyone to go out and run their best time each meet, but with those people running the way they've shown they can, I'm confident we could have placed second, right behind Moorhead — who as usual has a strong team.

"Some of our kids may have been a little psyched out because we were competing against some strong schools, but I told them if we run up to our capabilities we are a very competitive team. We're a young team and I think some of these guys just need to have a little more confidence in themselves. Bruce Johnson, Lon Aune and Steve Kruta all ran another super race.

Moorhead also took the girls varsity race with 24 points, followed by East Grand Forks 55, Thief River Falls 56 and Valley 90.

Thief River Falls' top finisher in the girls race was junior Susie Hanna, fourth in 14:18 over the two-mile course.

"The girls showed improvement over the past week," reported Dyer. "Susie Hanna again ran a good race. But the greatest improvements were shown by ninth grader Sherry Sabo and eighth graders Jackie Thune and Trisha Armstrong." Those three finished 9-12-13.

Moorhead also came up with a win in the junior varsity portion of the meet, while Schroeder junior high of Grand Forks won the freshman and junior-high meets.

Thief River Falls will compete Tuesday in a 4:30 p.m. meet at Crookston and will run Thursday at 4 p.m. at Detroit Lakes.

GRAND RAPIDS RUNNINGBACK Jim Malwitz looked for running room on an eight-yard gain against Thief River Falls in the first quarter of Friday's high school football game played at Legion Field in Grand Rapids. Rick Gobell (60) and Jim Dillon (30) of the Prowlers closed in on the Indians' star who rushed for 142 yards, bringing his three-game total to 525 yards. Ben Kellin (58) and Todd Christenson (63) were in the middle of the play for the Indians, who beat the Prowlers 30-6.

Publicized Jim Malwitz rushed for his 100-plus yards; quarterback Tony Kellin looked good; halfback Brian Crippa picked up big yardage; and wide receiver Ron Renner was impressive. Those guys gain the yards, score the points and get their names in the paper. But the real stars Friday in Grand Rapids' 30-6 high school football victory over Thief River Falls was the Indians' nondescript interior linemen. They dominated the line of scrimmage throughout the game, allowing Malwitz, Kellin, Crippa, Renner and Co. to rack up the stats as the Indians, rated No. 4 in the Class AA power poll going into the game, rolled to their third straight win.

"At the beginning of the year our offensive line was a question mark," explained first-year Grand Rapids head coach Bill Soltys. "But they're the reason why we're where we are right now. They've done a great job for us."

It was Thief River Falls' first loss after two season-opening wins. The Prowlers, although admittedly being out-played, stayed with the heavily favored Indians through three quarters before seeing a 14-6 score balloon to 30-6 in the final 12 minutes.

The Indians dominated action at the start, running 27 plays, scoring 14 points and owning the ball for 11 of the game's first 14½ minutes. The Prowlers ran three plays and then punted on both of their quick possessions during that span.

Grand Rapids covered 54 yards in nine plays to open the game with a 7-0 lead. Malwitz, who finished with 142 yards on 20 carries to boost his three-game total to 525 yards, rattled off 25 yards on four carries during that drive that was completed when Kellin passed to a wide-open Renner on the right side for an 18-yard touchdown play with 3:28 elapsed. Jim Altobell came on to boot the first of his four perfectly-placed conversion kicks.

A wide-open Greg Erickson dropped a sure touchdown pass in the end zone on Grand Rapids' next possession and the Indians didn't convert a fourth down halfback option pass off a fake field goal attempt from the Thief River Falls 14. But that was only a temporary delay. They got the ball back four plays later and marched 52 yards in eight plays for a 14-0 edge.

Kellin, who hit Crippa and Renner for 14 and 12-yard passes during the drive, tossed a four-yard scoring pass to Crippa out of the backfield 2:21 into the second quarter.

Thief River Falls, after failing to capitalize on Rick Gobell's fumble recovery at the Grand Rapids 22 near the midway mark of the second quarter, got a second chance late in the third quarter when defensive back Jon Stimac picked up a Malwitz fumble at the Grand Rapids 29 and returned it to the 26.

Quarterback Scott Wiebolt scored on the very next play, taking the wishbone option off right tackle with 1:49 remaining in the period. The two-point conversion run was quickly snuffed out by Grand Rapids.

Whatever confidence the Prowlers had built in scoring the first touchdown of the year against the Grand Rapids defense was quickly shattered when the Indians, after a 28-yard kickoff return by Crippa to midfield, scored in seven plays to rebuild the difference to 21-6. Crippa picked his way through the left side on the nine-yard scoring run four plays into the final quarter.

Grand Rapids' next possession made it 28-6 as Malwitz capped a nine-play, 63-yard drive with a straight-ahead dive from the two with 4:53 left.

Final points came when Thief River Falls' Tom Ose was chased and pulled down by Grand Rapids' Jerry Heinrich and Renner on a halfback option pass from the Thief River Falls end zone. The two-point safety came with 3:24 left.

"I'm very satisfied," mentioned Soltys. "We dropped the ball a couple of times to give Thief River their chances, but I really couldn't expect a better performance."

Schmitz wasn't as happy. "I expected to see a good football team, naturally," he said, "but I expected us to play a little better."

HE GOT THE pass away, but Grand Rapids quarterback Tony Kellin was belted by Thief River Falls' Rob Jorstad on this second quarter play in Friday's Prowlers vs. Indians high school football game played at Grand Rapids' soggy Legion Field. Kellin threw two first half touchdown passes in the 30-6 Grand Rapids win.

Tennis Team Beaten 4-1 By Bemidji Girls

Thief River Falls' lone victory came at No. 1 doubles where junior Nancy Swanson and eighth grader Michelle Olson posted a 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 win over Jenny DeWeese and Kristi Bahr.

The Lumberjills swept all three singles encounters, including a 6-0, 7-6 victory at No. 1 singles by Heather Turner, an eighth grade transfer student, over the Prowlers' Christie LaCoursiere.

"Bemidji played extremely well," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "We played okay — the kids tried hard — but it wasn't our best day of tennis."

Thief River Falls, 3-3 in dual meet competition, will be at Detroit Lakes Tuesday for a 3 p.m. match. The Prowlers will entertain Bemidji and Roseau in a Thursday triangular meet beginning at 2 p.m.

Bemidji 4, TRF 1

1. Heather Turner (Bemidji) def. Christie LaCoursiere 6-0, 7-6.
2. Betsie Brademus (Bemidji) def. Pam Wassink 7-5, 6-1.
3. Wendy Enright (Bemidji) def. Kim Lawrenz 6-4, 6-1.

Cross Country Team Plans Car Wash Sat.

Lincoln high school cross country team will be holding a car wash Saturday at the First Northwestern State Bank Southside facility in Thief River Falls from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Cost will be $1 per vehicle.

Purpose of the car wash will be to raise money to cover the expenses for an elementary school Fun Run, scheduled to be held Friday, Sept. 26.

The elementary school Fun Run will be designed to give boys and girls in grades 3-6 a chance to see what cross country running is like, explained new Thief River Falls cross country coach Lynn Dyer. Each participant will receive a ribbon and team points will be kept to determine a school champion at each grade level.

Money raised at the car wash will pay for the awards and other costs involved in running the meet.

TRF Freshmen Top Crookston 22-8 Thursday

Thief River Falls rolled up a 22-0 halftime lead and defeated visiting Crookston 22-8 Thursday in freshman high school football action.

Doug Odegaard scored on a two-yard run on the second play of the game to give Thief River Falls an early lead. Quarterback Dave Stimac, who sprinted 55 yards on a reverse to open the game, passed to Mitch Semanko for the conversion points.

Stimac used the reverse again in the second quarter for a 65-yard touchdown run.

Odegaard went in from 12 yards out and also added the conversion points later in the second quarter to close out the Thief River Falls scoring.

Now 1-1, Thief River Falls will travel to Grand Forks Thursday for a 4 p.m. game against Schroeder junior high.

Senior Citizen Small Game License Sold

Minnesota senior citizens who hunt were reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that they are entitled to a special senior citizens small game license which costs less than the standard license.

The senior citizens small game license costs $5 while the standard license if $7.50. The cost includes a $2 surcharge for wetlands acquisition and an issuing fee of 50 cents which is paid to the license agent.

To be eligible for the senior citizens license, the hunter must be at least 65 years of age and a Minnesota resident.

Senior citizens receive another break if they are waterfowl hunters since they are not required to purchase the state migratory waterfowl stamp costing $3.

Horse Show At Roseau Sunday

Roseau county saddle club's fall horse show will be conducted September 21 at 10 a.m. at the Roseau county fairgrounds.

There will be performance and game classes. Any one with questions may call Judy Hiles at 463-1735.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE quarterback Jeff Westberg had to throw over Crookston defensive tackle Rod Bolstad on this pass attempt during Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division football game played in Thief River Falls. The Trojans defeated the Northmen 19-14 in an exciting 1980 season-opener for both teams.

Crookston, Bemidji Are NWAC Football Winners

Northwest Athletic Conference members Crookston and Bemidji were winners Friday in nonconference football assignments, but the rest of the NWAC — Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks came up short on the third week of the 1980 season.

Crookston routed Park Rapids 28-0 and Bemidji got by Detroit Lakes 19-12, but the NWAC missed a sweep of Mid-State Conference opponents when Staples surprised East Grand Forks 14-7. Elsewhere, a strong Grand Rapids team defeated Thief River Falls 30-6 and Litchfield shut out Fergus Falls 16-0.

That gives the NWAC a three-week record of 10-5 against nonconference foes.

First Northwest Athletic Conference game of the season will be played Friday when Fergus Falls visits Crookston. In nonconference games Thief River Falls hosts Staples, Bemidji entertains Park Rapids and East Grand Forks will be at home against Detroit Lakes — all NWAC vs. Mid-State clashes.

Crookston — Park Rapids

Brent Weiss, who broke loose on a 75-yard touchdown run, Brian Bachmeier, Steve Johnson and Jerry Pahlen all scored for the Pirates, who led 14-0 at halftime.

Crookston racked up 289 yards rushing, with Weiss getting 89 yards on just six carries and Johnson collecting 86 on 20 tries. Park Rapids could manage just 95 yards on the ground and only 23 more passing in losing for the first time this fall. Crookston remains unbeaten.

Bemidji — Detroit Lakes

Pat Erhart rushed for 189 yards on 27 carries, scoring first half touchdowns on runs of 78 and 21 yards, in leading Bemidji past Detroit Lakes 19-12.

Detroit Lakes came back from a 13-0 halftime deficit to pull within 13-12 early in the fourth quarter before Bemidji quarterback John Herath put the game out of reach with a one-yard touchdown run late in the period.

Bemidji out-rushed Detroit Lakes 294 to 24 yards. Detroit Lakes' offense came in the air where the Lakers were 13-for-26 for 260 yards.

The victory improved Bemidji's record to 2-1. Detroit Lakes lost its third straight decision to an NWAC opponent.

Fergus Falls — Litchfield

Fergus Falls continued to have trouble on offense, losing to Litchfield 16-0.

In addition to being shut out for the second straight week, Fergus Falls fell apart on defense, too, giving up 315 yards on the ground. The score remained close only because the 1-2 Otters recovered three fumbles by Litchfield, 1-1.

EGF — Staples

East Grand Forks suffered from inconsistency, fumbles, penalties, a wet field, poor field positions and a shaky offensive effort in losing to surprising Staples 14-7.

Staples built a 14-0 lead before Robbie Sorenson scored early in the fourth quarter for the Green Wave and Jeff Strandell added the conversion kick to narrow the gap to 14-7.

Staples, now 2-1, out-gained East Grand Forks 214-135. The Green Wave also carries a 2-1 record.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q: I am an honorably discharged wartime veteran and wish to be buried in a national cemetery. Can my wife also be buried in a national cemetery with me?

A: Yes. The spouse of an eligible active duty member or veteran who is buried in a national cemetery, or agrees to burial at time of death, is eligible. The veteran must make a written request for a spouse's burial and sign a statement indicating that he or she desires burial in the same cemetery and intends to be interred in the same grave. Also, the spouse of a member of the armed forces of the U.S. lost or buried at sea or officially determined to be permanently absent in a status of missing or missing in action is eligible for national cemetery interment.

FOLLOWING PULLING GUARD Dave Krajsa (62), Northland community college runningback Coby Burslie looked for running room around right end against Crookston during Saturday's MJCAA football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field. The Northmen never got untracked offensively in the 19-14 season-opening loss to the rival Trojans. Northland will host Mesabi Saturday in another 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game here.

Deer Hunters

Our correspondent in Minnesota's Arrowhead area is Don Wendt of Rapids Tackle in Grand Rapids. He is very active in the newly formed Minnesota deer hunters association. The first annual meeting will be held Saturday, Sept. 20, from 1-7 p.m. at Camp Mishawak on Pokegama Lake. Here is the information Don asked us to publish:

"Minnesota has a new sportsman's organization. Minnesota deer hunters association feels it can be the organizational voice of the state deer hunter. Formed from the "core group" of the successful "Save Minnesota Deer" organization, this new organization intends to broaden its scope of interest. The primary purposes of the Minnesota deer hunters organization are to achieve the best possible deer herd and promote high quality deer hunting through the following activities:

- + Present our position to government officials, departments and legislators;
- + Promote good sportsmanship, good hunting ethics and safe hunting practices;
- + Promote and sustain a high-quality deer habitat program;
- + Provide opportunities for deer hunters to meet, share experiences and develop a fraternal spirit;
- + Educate hunters and the general public on the values of the sport of deer hunting;
- + Support enforcement regulations to curtail the illegal taking of deer;
- + Support emergency winter-feeding programs when appropriate;
- + Support efforts to increase opportunities for deer hunting on public and private lands;
- + Establish a position on predator control.

Individual memberships are initially set at $5 per year. First annual meeting to elect officers formally will be in September. Grassroots input by deer hunters will be assured through area representation patterned after the existing 134 state legislative district. Present mailing address is Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, Pokegama Hotel Building, Grand Rapids, MN 55744.

NHF Day

September 27 will mark the ninth annual observance of national hunting and fishing day. The day was established by congress in 1972 as a way to recognize sportsmen for their many contributions to conservation.

Millions of Americans participate in an estimated 2,500 separate NHF day activities each year. Last year, hunting and fishing day received the support of the president, governors of all 50 states and millions of Americans.

Pheasant Release

Montgomery Messenger informs us that more than 400 pheasants were released in the Montgomery-Lexington area. This release was the result of efforts made by Dave and Sue Soukup of Monty, The DNR, the Monty Sno-Busters club and the Lexington Sportsmen's club.

Dave and Sue Soukup received the birds from the DNR in May of this year and they had excellent luck in raising almost all of the birds to full growth. The feed for the birds was provided by the Montgomery and Lexington Sportsmen's clubs.

Several farmers in this area have agreed to leave one acre of standing corn providing feed for the pheasants this coming winter.

Best Fishing

This column has insisted for years that the month of October is the best fishing month. Not only are more limits taken but more big ones are caught.

One example is the crappie. The state record is an even five-pounds. It was taken from the Vermillion river in Dakota county in October of 1940. The lucky fisherman was Tom Christenson of Red Wing.

Just recently the St. Paul Pioneer Press recorded a crappie weighing two-pounds, 12-ounces taken from Lake Willie near Litchfield by Alvin Aisleber of Brownton. Two three-pounders were registered in August.

Bass fishing reaches a peak in October. It is our suggestion that when you go duck hunting next month you also take along your fishing gear.

Goose Festival

October 3-5 Middle River, the "Goose Capital of Minnesota," will welcome hunters to the goose festival, with festivities for the whole family.

There will be a five-and-ten-mile running marathon, carnival, parade, dances and a tug of war.

For more information contact Sally Gentry in Middle River, 222-3763.

Park Rapids Fishing

One area where we have had excellent fishing in the fall of the year is the Park Rapids lake region. Here you will find a greater variety of game fish than in any other area in the world.

Jerry Fuller of Fuller's Tackle Shop has had many fine bass registered at his store. The largest registered earlier this month was a bass weighing seven-pounds, 14-ounces caught on Elbow Lake by Joe Bernican of Ham Lake. A small-mouth bass weighing four-pounds, 14-ounces was taken from Bottle Lake by Kirby Ramblin of E. Peoria, Ill. Ray Lindrees of Park Rapids caught a rainbow trout weighing six-pounds, two-ounces in Bad Medicine Lake.

Deer Hunting Season Is Set At Camp Ripley

Archers wishing to bowhunt in the Camp Ripley military reservation and statutory game refuge will be restricted to bucks only during the 1980 deer season.

DNR wildlife officials announced today that the season will bee three weekends only: Oct. 18-19; Oct. 25-26; and Nov. 1-2. No weekday hunting will be allowed.

Due to lack of response in the deer population following two years of reduced harvest quotas, wildlife officials are further restricting the harvest to legal bucks this year — meaning only those deer with at least one antler three-inches long are legal targets.

Each archer is required to submit a stamped and self-addressed postcard which will be validated and returned as an entry permit by the Department of Natural Resources. Place one 3½ x 5-inch postcard per hunter in an envelope and mail to: Camp Ripley Archery Hunt, P.O. Box 648, Brainerd, MN 56401.

All permit applications must be postmarked no later than Oct. 1 and will be validated and returned about Oct. 10. Late applications or improper applications will not be accepted, and postcards are not transferrable.

No individual may apply more than once and each card will be validated for all three weekends unless a very large number of archers apply.

As in past years, all archers will enter and leave by the railroad gate adjacent to the Mississippi river bridge. Bowhunters will be checked in at the DNR checkstation and must present their validated postcard to gain entrance. Other regulations are similar to past years and will be given to archers as they enter.

The campground will be available from Friday afternoon until Sunday evening. Absolutely no firearms may be transported into the reservation on any person in in any vehicles. Maps and other details will be available at the Brainerd office after Oct. 1.

Surveys show that over 80 per cent of snowmobilers consider it a family sport.

National Hunting, Fishing Day Is Planned September 27

For the fourth consecutive year, President Jimmy Carter has issued a resounding statement of support for national hunting and fishing day and praised sportsmen for their "historic and continuing contributions" to conservation.

"Hunting and fishing are an integral part of the American heritage," said Carter in his statement for national hunting and fishing day, 1980. "These sports are important," the president added, "not just for the recreation they provide, but for the motivation they generate for the conservation of our wildlife and natural resources."

Describing the vital role sportsmen have played in the conservation of the nation's wildlife and natural resources, Carter said, "Dating back to the turn of the century, America's sportsmen have been in the forefront of the conservation movement. Hunters and fishermen were instrumental in the creation of state fish and game departments throughout the country. Conservation-minded sportsmen urged license fees to support these agencies and their conservation programs, and they proposed special excise taxes to pay for land acquisitions, wildlife research and management.

"To date," said the President, "sportsmen have provided more than $5 billion for conservation programs which benefit non-game as well as game species."

The president also pointed out that, as a result of sportsmen-financed habitat restoration programs, there are "more deer, elk, antelope and wild turkey in this country than there were in 1900."

An avid hunter and fisherman himself, Carter summed up the purpose of national hunting and fishing day by saying, "In recognition of the historic and continuing contributions of America's sportsmen, it is fitting to designate Saturday, Sept. 27, 1980, as national hunting and fishing day. On this occasion, sportsmen throughout the country will conduct activities to further conservation efforts at the local, state and national levels. The observance gives me a welcome opportunity to commend them for their initiatives and hard work on behalf of conservation and to urge all Americans to join them in ensuring the wise use and protection of our natural and wildlife resources for the benefit of today's citizens and future generations."

September 27, 1980 marks the ninth annual observance of national hunting and fishing day. Since the first observance in 1972, NHF day has continued to grow in both size and impact. Millions of Americans participate each year in more than 2,500 separate NHF day activities at sportsmen's clubs, schools, shopping centers and wildlife management areas across the country. This year's honorary chairman for NHF day is Terry Bradshaw, star Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback.

Greyhounds Sweep TRF In Volleyball

Fosston, a perennially strong volleyball school, completed a perfect sweep over Thief River Falls teams Thursday when the Greyhounds posted three 2-0 wins over the visiting Prowlers.

The Fosston sweep began with an 18-2, 18-7 C squad victory; followed by an 18-15, 18-11 junior varsity decision; and featured a 20-18, 18-8 triumph in the varsity match.

"Fosston has a strong volleyball tradition — like Roseau in hockey," explained Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "They go out on the court knowing they're going to win. We're still trying to develop that."

Thief River Falls had a chance to take that first game when the Prowlers served twice at 18-17. But they couldn't produce the needed two-point winning margin.

"I think if we would have won the first game we would have won the match," mentioned Stauss.

The Prowlers, who have been serving at a 92-94 per cent efficiency rate, struggled at the line at Fosston, serving just 84 per cent in the first game and then dropping to a season-low 80 per cent in the second game.

Thief River Falls, now 2-3 for the year, will be busy this week as the Prowlers travel to East Grand Forks Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. match; host two-time defending Region 8AA champion Moorhead Thursday at 7:30; and participate in the Roseau invitational Saturday.

Beautiful Autumn

When the leaves turn color this fall one of the most beautiful drives you may enjoy is south on highway 61 through Hastings and Red Wing.

THIEF RIVER FALLS fullback Scott Kezar was looking for running room, but Grand Rapids' Todd Christenson latched on to his arm and stopped the second quarter play for a one-yard loss during Friday's high school football game played at Grand Rapids. The Indians, rated No. 4 in the Class AA state poll, defeated the Prowlers 30-6 in a match-up of 2-0 teams.

Oklee Tips Gonvick 8-0 On Fourth Quarter Score

Richard Bronken hit Brad Gunderson with a fourth down one-yard touchdown pass with 4:58 remaining Friday afternoon to give Oklee a key 8-0 rain-drenched North Tri County Conference high school football win over Gonvick.

"It wasn't our type of weather," mentioned Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "We're going to have to live or die by the pass this year. But we did run the ball pretty well against Gonvick."

The Bobcats, who had an apparent touchdown called back on a penalty four minutes earlier and failed to score from the Gonvick one-yard line with less than two minutes left in the first half, remain unbeaten in nine-man play with a 3-0 record. Gonvick, expected to be a North Tri County Conference title contender, suffered the effects of a demanding season-opening schedule and dropped to 0-3. The Bulldogs have been beaten by McIntosh-Winger, Middle River and Oklee — the three teams they had hoped to be in the running with for the conference crown.

"Defensively we played okay," noted Svaren. "I guess any time you get a shutout you have to be happy defensively."

Oklee will be at Goodridge Friday.

McIntosh-Winger remained unbeaten and Plummer is still winless after the Scots rolled over the Cardinals 52-0 in North Tri County Conference play Friday at McIntosh.

Eight different players scored for the Scots who ran up a 32-0 first half lead.

"Their first team really looked good," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "They blocked awfully well."

Plummer managed to accumulate 204 yards worth of offense. Dean Sletten gained 42 of the Cardinals' 81 rushing yards and added three pass receptions for 65 yards. Ken Fisher completed 4 of 12 passes for 79 yards and freshman Tim Gagner was 5-for-7 for 44 yards.

Goodridge 6

Middle River scored single touchdowns in each quarter Friday afternoon to beat Goodridge 26-6 in the rain at Middle River.

Fullback Steve Bengston scored on an 18-yard first quarter run and added a one-yard touchdown plunge in the second quarter as the Skippers carried a 12-0 lead into intermission. Goodridge had the ball inside the Middle River 15-yard line three times in the first half without scoring.

It became 20-0 in the third quarter on a 20-yard Scott McKeever run and a Bengston two-point conversion before the Huskies' John Cullen scored on a one-yard plunge.

A five-yard interception return by Mike Peterson closed out the scoring in the fourth quarter.

"We improved in a lot of aspects of the game," pointed out Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, whose Huskies were beaten by McIntosh-Winger 49-0 in their opener a week earlier. Middle linebacker Mark Grabowska was credited with 23 tackles for the Huskies who will host Oklee Friday.

Middle River, 2-1, will be at Plummer Friday.

Stephen 12

Sophomore Bill Johnson rushed for 119 yards, caught two passes for 56 yards and scored twice Friday to lead Marshall County Central to a 32-12 Top of State Conference win over Stephen.

The win in the Nordics' 1980 home opener, lifted Marshall County Central for 2-1 for the year, 2-0 in conference play.

"Things were going pretty well," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "Our line was making some nice holes and our backs were running really hard."

Marshall County Central finished with 283 yards on the ground and added 71 yards in the air despite the game-long rain that forced 10 fumbles by the Nordics. They got eight of them back.

Johnson ran three yards for the game's first score and Rick Van Camp scored the first of his two touchdowns as Marshall County Central went up 14-0 in the first quarter.

Doug Schindle responded with a 76-yard kickoff return, but the Nordics took a 20-6 lead into halftime when Allen Lindemoen recovered a fumble in the end zone by teammate Gordy Collin, who had sprinted 30 yards on the play before losing the ball. Collin finished the night with 85 yards rushing.

Vikings Plan Program For Children's Fund

"Evening With the Vikings" sponsored by Minnesota Viking wives on October 16, should double last year's $30,000 success, officials reported this week.

This year's event, to be held at the Carlton Celebrity Room in Bloomington will give 2,500 fans an opportunity to mingle and dine with Viking players and coaches. Players will be seated throughout the dining area. Arrive for the 6 p.m. cocktail hour and meet with each member of the Viking team.

Funds raised at this second annual event support the Vikings' program for research in childhood diseases.

Reservations can be made by calling the Carlton at 854-9300. Tickets available for $50, $75 and $100. Balcony seating at 9 p.m. is available for $15 and includes the Viking program and live auction.

The evening is highlighted by a silent auction featuring a round-trip to London with accommodations and a vacation for two in the Bahamas. Live auction items will feature Viking memorabilia from present and past Viking greats.

+Studies on diabetes in an attempt to understand what causes the damage to blood vessels and other tissues in this disease. The vessel damage in particular is responsible for serious kidney disease often leading to kidney failure and for eye disease leading to blindness. These studies will define how the vessels are injured so that this damage might be prevented.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Pain is a Signal of Some Body Disorder

Pain can be a blessing if it sends the patient to the doctor for treatment, advises the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA).

Pain is a very important manifestation of some disorders in the body. Generally, pain should be evaluated if it is too severe for the patient to endure. The location of the pain may also determine the urgency of a medical evaluation.

Normally the indications of for evaluation of abdominal or chest pain are more urgent then those for a painful finger of toe.

Persistence of pain can also be helpful in judging its importance. It is quite common to dismiss or ignore pains which are brief in duration then pass away. However, even the most insignificant pains should not be ignored if they continue to reoccur without some reasonable explanation.

Persistant chest pains lasting more than twenty minutes and severe abdominal pains which continue for more than two hours are common examples of types of pain which should receive prompt medical attention to determine the severity of the problem. The use of a laxative as a form of self medication for severe abdominal distress is an absolute "no, no" according to the MMA.

Joint pain particularly in children may require prompt medical attention. The urgency of receiving medical care will be determined by observing any changes which may occur in the appearance of the joint including redness, swelling, or inflamation. If there is only pain in the leg or the joint it may be observed. If the pain persists for two or three hours without other noticeable joint symptoms, it might be advisable to consult a physician.

Muscle pain is not a symptom which ordinarily requires urgent medical attention. However, a medical evaluation may be advisable if there is unexplained persistant or reoccuring muscle pain unrelated to some form of physical activity including exercise or overuse of the arm or leg.

Painful feet are frequently due to improper ways of walking or standing. Improperly fitted shoes can also be the source of excruciating foot pain. Some synthetic materials used in footwear can cause discomfort.

It's been a long hot summer and if the weatherman's predictions are accurate there is more to come. Heat waves, high humidity levels and prolonged exposure to the direct rays of the sun have taken their toll in a variety of ways including an unusually high death toll in many sections of the nation.

There isn't much that can be done to change the course of the weather. However, the Minnesota Medical association offers the following suggestions for beating the heat and in general making life a bit more comfortable.

+ Stay out of the sun as much as possible. This is particularly important during the middle of the day when the sun's rays are the hottest.

+ Wear light, loose clothing, the less the better.

+ Drink more liquids than usual. A wide range of beverages — alcoholic, as well as non-alcoholic are perennially promoted as hot weather thirst quenchers. Cool, clear water is still near the top of that list.

+ Take extra salt only on the advice of your physician. Caution in the consumption of additional quantities of salt is urged for the patient with the liver, kidney or heart condition.

+ A shower or a dip in the lake or pool once or twice during the course of the day will help provide a cooling effect.

+ Get plenty of rest and sleep. Don't let yourself get run down.

+ Eat a well balanced diet. Don't overeat. Don't go overboard on salads and cold cuts unless you are that fond of them.

+ Be an early riser. Do your heavy work in the cool of the morning. If this isn't possible, wait till dusk in the evening. Don't try to work in your garden or on the lawn during the hottest hours of the day.

+ Avoid physical exertion on very hot days. Physical exercise is vital in summer as well as winter. The bottom line during hot weather: Don't overdo it whether at work at at play.

An estimated 2,000,000 persons in the U.S. have glaucoma. Half of them are not aware of it, and face vision impairment or blindness without treatment.

Every 12 months an estimated 47,000 people in the U.S. will become blind — that's one person every 11 minutes.

Solar Measures Ease Prices On Energy Bills

"There's something comforting and reassuring about letting the sun warm your body. Sit in front of a south window in the middle of winter sometime, and feel the sun bathe you in its rays," suggests the Minnesota energy agency. "Welcome to the world of passive solar heat."

Passive solar heating systems are characterized by their simplicity and efficiency. Passive solar uses your house as a collector, rather than sophisticated machinery.

Windows and skylights are simple and effective passive solar collectors. If you have avilable area in the south walls of your house, you can give your home a daytime heating boost simply by adding more window area. Skylights also provide solar heating and light if they are sloped to meet the sun properly in winter. Both measures will make a dark, cold room brighter and warmer.

Adding more glass will make the house warmer in the daytime, but window coverings should be added to each window to keep that precious warmth from escaping at night. This is particularly true of skylights, since heat loss is greater through the roof. Fabric covered panels or insulated shades or shutters make attractive blocks against heat loss.

Additional glass will contribute substantially to the heat available in the house, but some kind of storage method is necessary to avoid overheating in the daytime (yes, even during a Minnesota winter) and to store the heat for nighttime use.

One basic method of storing heat is to build a wall behind south facing glass. Water-filled drums are one example, as are water-filled tube walls and trombe walls, comprised of thick masonry materials. All three work on the principal of storing the sun's heat during the day, and then slowly releasing it to the house after sunset. Vents at top and bottom help circulate room air around the walls. Trombe walls also help keep a house cool in the summer.

Dark quarry tile floors can also store heat, as can internal brick on the floors.

Greenhouses are rapidly becoming popular methods of retrofitting solar systems to new and existing homes. Not only do greenhouses collect solar heat, but they can be designed to gradually siphon that heat into adjoining rooms. And of course, a well-designed greenhouse can also give green salad vegetables in January, flowers that bloom all year, and a summery retreat when the snow is three feet deep.

Adding passive solar measures to your remodelling plans need not add much expense. Some passive solar measures can be added to existing homes for as little as $100, although substantial passive solar heating may be added for $2,000 to $3,000, if the measures are added during a home remodelling project. Of course, that money will be paid back in tax benefits and savings on energy bills.

Nation's Largest Jack Pine Is Found Near Lake Bronson Park

Nation's largest jack pine is located on private property, just outside the boundaries of Lake Bronson state park in northwestern Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

Confirmation of the DNR's claim was received recently by the American forestry association which said the tree's dimensions were larger than three other trees in the United States that had previously been classed as co-champions.

The huge jack pine is 110.25 inches in circumference, 50 feet in height and has a crown spread of 58 feet. It is not the only tree in Minnesota that can claim a national big tree title: the nation's largest black spruce is growing in Cook county and the largest white spruce is found in Koochiching county.

As for state champions, a large pin oak recently found near Caledonia in southeastern Minnesota has dethroned the previous state champion. The new champ is 93½ inches in circumference, 66 feet tall and has a 54 foot crown spread.

Largest sugar maple nominated for big tree status in Minnesota to date was found this year in Cass county. It has a circumference of 125 inches, a height of 89 feet and a crown spread of 80 feet.

Largest scarlet oak in Minnesota discovered so far was found growing a short distance from the DNR's regional headquarters in Rochester by a department employee. It has a circumference of 93 feet, is 58 feet tall and has a crown spread of 63.7 feet.

A brochure listing the dimensions and location of other big trees can be obtained by contacting the DNR Bureau of Information, Centennial Building, St. Paul.

The pamphlet explains how big trees can be nominated for champion status and how they are judged. Nominations should be sent to: Native Big Tree Program, DNR Division of Forestry, Box 44 Centennial Building, st. Paul 55155.

Marine Corps Band At MSU September 26

U.S. Marine Corps band from Washington D.C., the oldest musical group in the country, will present two concerts September 26 at Moorhead State University — one at 2 p.m., the other at 8 p.m. in Nemzek Fieldhouse.

Tickets, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for students, are available by mail order through the MSU public affairs office. Make checks payable to the MSU foundation. Tickets will also be available at the Elks club and Sons of Norway in Fargo and the American Federal Savings and Loan and Nels Vogel Music in Moorhead.

Christened, "The President's Own" by Thomas Jefferson in 1798, the band is stopping at Moorhead State on its annual eight-week fall tour of 15 states. Fifty musicians from the 138-member orchestra have been touring sections of the country annually since 1891 when John Philip Sousa directed the corps' first national tour.

Still wearing the scarlet and blue full-dress uniforms copied from the British Red Coats, the Marine musicians have played at every presidential inauguration since 1789. They perform at over 1,500 social and diplomatic engagements in Washington each year from dinners at the Congressional club to almost daily receptions at the White House.

Directed by Lt. Col. John Bourgeois, the corps 25th band leader, the Marine musicians are selected from the nation's leading conservatories, universities and symphonies. Their touring performances at MSU will include an hour and a half program of marches, classics and pop tunes.

For more information, contact the MSU public affairs office at 236-2555. The Marine band's performance is part of homecoming week entertainment at the university.

Child, Parent Learning Meets Scheduled Here

Children and Parents Learning Together (CPLT), an early childhood and family education program, is offering sessions for children aged 20 months to 30 months and their parents.

Parents and children will have an opportunity to explore, experiment and enjoy activities set up for each session. Ideas and activities are planned to enrich and stimulate children of this age. Sessions will be one hour in length, once a week for four weeks starting September 22, in room 104 at Mark Twain elementary school.

"Tumbling Into the Two's," the session for children 20 to 26 months, will be conducted from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. and the "Terrific Two's" for children 24 to 30 months will be conducted 10 to 11 a.m. To register, please call 681-5670.

Children and Parents Learning Together is one of 36 early childhood and family education programs located throughout Minnesota and funded by the state legislature. Programs are coordinated by the Minnesota council on quality education. C.P.L.T. receives additional funds from the division of vocational-technical education and donations.

Invited to participate in any program activities are expectant parents or the parents of a child from birth to kindergarten age, living within the Thief River Falls school district attendance area. Services are offered at no or minimal cost, with fees waived for those unable to pay.

Water Problems May Rival U.S. Energy Crisis

Management of our water resources may pose "challenges that parallel those of the energy crisis" during the next decade, according to the organizers of a conference set for September 28-29 in St. Paul.

Conference, titled "Water, Human Values and the 80s," is sponsored by a coalition of private and governmental groups called the Water Awareness consortium, and by the Freshwater society of Navarre. Among the topics to be discussed at the conference are the legal question of who owns water, health concerns about water, questions about its availability and distribution, conflicts over its regulation and use, and the prospects for averting a future water "crunch" paralleling the current energy crisis.

Conference participants will include Harlan Cleveland, Director of the Hubert Humphrey institute at the University of Minnesota; Paul Cashman, Luther Gerlach and Mulford Q. Sibley, also of the University of Minnesota; Roger DeRoos, Director of the Environmental Health division, Minnesota Department of Health; Stephen Alnes, Executive Director of the Upper Midwest council; Joseph Rossillon, executive director of the Freshwater Biological research foundation; William Thomas, of the American Bar foundation; David McLaughlin, Chairman of the Toro company; and Richard Hanson, of the University of Wisconsin.

Conference will be held at the downtown Radisson hotel, 11 E. Kellogg Blvd. For registration information contact the Freshwater society, (612) 471-8407.

$3,656 Raised In County For Heart Campaign

Pennington county volunteers for the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate, Inc., raised $3,656 for the 1980 state heart fund campaign, it was announced by Darlene Shetler, 1980 Pennington county heart fund chairman.

"This amount surpasses the county goal of $2,858 and enables the Minnesota affiliate to increase funds for heart research projects, community programs and professional and public heart education programs for the 1980-81 fiscal year," Shetler said.

Shetler noted that to surpass the goal, Pennington county volunteers donated their time, energy and enthusiasm to collect money and to distribute lifesaving information about heart attack and stroke.

She added that in recent years, deaths due to heart disease have declined in Minnesota. However, heart disease is still the nation's number one health problem, affecting more than 40 million Americans, Shetler said.

American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate, Inc., is a statewide health agency and is part of the American Heart association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

Cattlemen's Institute Set At Crookston

Annual beef cattlemen's institute, sponsored jointly by the extension services of North Dakota and Minnesota, Northwest agricultural experiment station and the livestock marketing industry, is all set to go October 2 in the winter shows arena in Crookston.

Registration will begin at 5 p.m. A picnic-style roast beef supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. sharp. A fast-moving program commences at 6:30 p.m.

Theme for this year's program is, "Making Money With The Beef Herd Under Range Conditions". Frank Sparks, a longtime beef producer from Plevna, MT., is the keynote speaker. Sparks will explain how he manages his beef enterprise. The Sparks family has a reputation of being among the longtime successful beef producers in eastern Montana. His family is known for its aggressive management using the latest technology coming out of solid ag research programs. In addition, the Sparks family does much of its own type experimentation.

An up-to-the-minute feeder-cattle demonstration will close the program for the day.

City Tables Decision On '80 Street Improvements

Hearing on the 1980 street and utility improvement project was attended last evening by a delegation of property owners who expressed their concerns toward the revised breakdown on an area basis of current estimated project costs, amounts to be recovered by assessments, and assessment rates.

At a previous hearing March 10 approximately 40 property owners were in attendance to vote on specified improvement costs on the improvements outlined in the project with prices including the engineer's estimated costs.

James E. Walker, city engineer, explained during last evening's meeting that all final details on the street projects should be completed by November 1.

Explaining the purpose of the hearing was Don Stewart of Stewart and Walker, Inc., of Thief River Falls, who stated that "the hearing will give people the opportunity to voice their concerns and express their opinions as to whether or not they feel they have been treated fairly."

Following discussion of various street improvements and costs, opposition arose from some of the property owners in attendance who felt that, after expressing their concerns, they may have not been treated fairly, as it was stated that by law it is the council's option to approve or reject the project and costs involved as they see reasonable and fair.

Major project concerns included Greenwood Street west (Highway 32 to Oakland Park Road); Oriole and Cardinal Avenues and Cardinal Drive; Kendall Avenue north (Third Street to Taft Street); Jerome street and Columbia Avenue; Greenwood Street east (Crocker avenue to 300 feet east of Spruce Avenue); and First Street widening (Main avenue to Horace avenue).

It was also mentioned during last evening's hearing that an attempt had been made by the city to proceed with assessment rates according to a straight frontage rate which would include the side street benefit to avoid confusion on what the side street assessment had been levied for.

Assessments set for the various projects per frontage foot bringing comments from property owners included the following: Oriole and Cardinal avenues and Cardinal Drive — $22.20 per front foot; Kendall Avenue — $27.50 per front foot; Jerome Street and Columbia Avenue — $32.80 per front foot; Greenwood street east — $27.70 per front foot; Greenwood street west — $18.10 per front foot; and First street — $44.50 per front foot; side street, $11.20 per front foot, and sidewalk, $15 per front foot.

Following the two-hour hearing, it was resolved by council members that the protests specified by property owners would be taken under advisement and that the property owners would be notified of the particular projects and costs in question.

Following adjournment of the regular city council meeting, it was resolved that the project would be reviewed by the finance committee and would be tabled to the next regular city council meeting set September 22 in the council chambers of the city auditorium.

If the project is adopted, property owners have 30 days to pay the assessments (in full or part) without interest, if they so desire, according to Jerry Wigness, city clerk. If they (property owners) choose not to do this, the assessments would be spread

TRAFFIC SIGNALS installed this summer in the Thief River Falls downtown area have been operating for the past week. Local drivers have alternately been praising and profaning the system as they adjust to changes in established patterns. New lights are located on First street at LaBree, Horace and Pennington avenues, on Third street at Atlantic avenue and on Main avenue at Second street. Main complaints heard to date have been left turning vehicles holding back traffic and one-block spacing between several lights which occasionally results in vehicles being trapped in the intersection when lights change. Pedestrians have complained about the short time span the "WALK" signal is displayed. Highway engineer Cliff Larson explains that pedestrians should not start across streets when the "DON'T WALK" signal appears, but that they have ample time to complete crossing if they have started across when the "WALK" signal changes.

Letter To The Editor:

Board Responds To School Questions

To The Editor:

In response to Dennis McCullough's letter on September 15, the Board of Education, School District 564, wishes to respond to the questions as follows:

(1) Which parts of our school were condemned, by whom, and what were the deficiencies?

The old Washington school building was condemned, vacated, and torn down the summer of 1979. The 1910 addition was vacated the fall of 1980 and the 1919 addition the fall of 1979. These buildings were condemned by the fire marshal and structural deficiencies were noted by consulting structural engineers, such as open stairwells, wood stairs, wood floor and roof joists, wood lath and plaster ceilings, loose windows, out of plumb and bowed walls, cracked roof and floor joists, foundation walls moving inward, in addition to combustible walls and stairways, and electrical hazards.

(2) Has an attempt been made to get an accurate estimate of costs to remedy those deficiencies? If so, what were the projected costs and how were they arrived at?

No. It was the opinion of the school board and the architect that the 1910 and 1919 buildings were structurally deficient and unsafe as noted by the fire marshal. It appeared that rehabilitation was not a wise expenditure of tax dollars as well as making the building energy efficient and handicap accessible.

(3) Why is the vote on the Bond Issue scheduled during the busiest time of the year for an agricultural community? Why not hold it later in the winter or early spring after there has been more time to thoroughly study the situation?

The board of education and the architect felt that the best time to receive the most competitive bids on the project was in the spring of 1981. Backing up from the date, it was the opinion of the board that we should schedule the bond referendum between the two general elections this fall. If we waited until after the general elections we would get into the Thanksgiving and the Christmas holiday seasons and we felt this was not a good time to promote the bond issue. If we waited until after the holidays we would be unable to have all plans and specifications prepared and still advertise for bids by early spring. The board of education has thoroughly studied the bond project and has actively worked on it for more than one year.

(4) What enrollment figure does the school census show for the next six years? What are the enrollment projections beyond six years and on what are the projections based?

Enrollment projections for the next six years show a high of 930 in 1983 and a low of 872 as total enrollment for grades 9-12. The enrollment projected beyond six years, based upon live births and the office of the state demographer, would show an enrollment of 1,015 by 1990. The projected graduating class of 1992 would be 260 compared to an estimated graduating class of 235 in 1981.

(5) If the school would be built on the proposed site, wouldn't it mean that all of the high school students in town would also have to be bused? What would the additional cost for buses, driver's salaries and fuel be per year?

Students attending Lincoln high school today may ride cross town buses from any other school building. Currently approximately 100 students live within one mile of Lincoln high school. At the new site an estimated 100 students would live within one

BEST CALCULATIONS possible with available information have been made for several Thief River Falls commercial properties by C. W. Rodekuhr, county auditor and Gerard DeHaan, county assessor. The calculations are intended to show potential impact of the proposed $15 million school bond issue. County officials have been reluctant to make projections because many variables which contribute to final tax assessment are yet unknown. Figures above must be considered only as estimates. Valuation changes projected are believed to be reasonably accurate from 1980 to 1981, but levy projections are based on 1980 levies since budgets for school district, county and city have not yet been set. As indicated by the second chart, tax increases on commercial properties are expected to be substantial with or without the bond issue. Assessed valuation to which the mill rate is applied is 43 per cent of limited market value. Limited market value next year will be approximately 80 per cent of actual market value. Projections for agricultural property examples — the most complicated for county officials to compute — will be presented in Monday's edition of the Times. It is emphasized again that they will be only estimates based on available data and educated guesses.

Redeemer To Dedicate New Addition Sun.

Dedication of the new fellowship hall and fireside room at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will take place following the 10:45 a.m. worship service at the church Sunday, according to Rev. Keith Prekker, pastor.

Bishop Harold Lohr of Moorhead will speak at the 8:15 and 10:45 a.m. Services and participate in the dedication program. A congregational pot-luck dinner will be served at noon and an open house for the public will be provided from 2 to 4 p.m. with coffee to be served.

New construction includes a fellowship hall with about 3,500 square feet of area and a fireside room with 500 square feet of space for small meetings and special use.

Anniversary Events Set At Oakland Park

To celebrate the 25th anniversary of Oakland Park nursing home as an entity, a series of events has been planned for the week of September 22-28, according to Sherryll Irvine, administrator at the home.

September 22, a resident, family and staff "family night potluck supper" will be conducted at 5 p.m., with families of both residents and staff invited to attend.

September 24, will be "thank a staff day" with free meals to employees. Although no formal program has been planned, the present staff invites former staff to join them in the afternoon for coffee, browsing and reminiscing.

September 26 will be a '50s day with staff in 1950s clothing and a sock hop from 2 to 3 p.m. If anyone has clothing or records from those years and is willing to lend them, call 681-1675.

September 28 will be the anniversary open house with a short program and refreshments at 2 p.m.

No invitations are being sent for the anniversary party, but the residents, staff and board of Oakland Park cordially invite all friends of the home to share in saying, "Happy Anniversary, Oakland Park"!

Concert Ass'n. Seeks Members

Public membership campaign for the Thief River Falls concert association's 1980-81 concert season began Tuesday night at a dinner held in St. Bernard's Catholic church hall. Association chairman Gordon Peterson presided at the program.

Norm Wendt, representing Allied Concert services, spoke at the meeting and assured the volunteers that it was only through their efforts that high quality entertainment could be brought to the community for very reasonable rates.

Five concerts are being offered this year with adult membership being sold for $13 — an average of less than $3 per concert. Student membership is only $6 for the series and family memberships are also available for $37. Admission to all of the concerts will be by season membership only. Memberships may be purchased at the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce office.

Concerts scheduled for the coming season include the following:

"The Cheadles", Tuesday, Oct. 7 — This husband and wife piano team is considered one of America's foremost piano duos. They combine their talents on the same keyboard and both have studied at Juilliard school of music and done extensive research in areas of piano duet and piano literature.

"Desert Song", Wednesday, Nov. 9 — This Sigmund Romberg musical is one of the most popular of American stage history. Familiar melodies are "One Alone", "Romance", "The Riffs Riding Song" and "The Desert Song".

"Mercy River Boys", Sunday, Jan. 11 — Considered one of gospel music's most noted groups, the vocalists have performed at the Grand Ole Opry and have been featured with Mel Tillis, Johnny Rodriguez and Tom T. Hall.

"The Big Bands", Friday, February 13 — Steve Wright's 17-piece band will play such songs as "In the Mood", "Marie", "Woodchopper's Ball" and "Moonlight Serenade" made famous by bands such as Glenn Miller, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Harry James, County Basie, Artie Shaw and Woody Herman.

"Phoenix Boys Choir", Tuesday, March 24 — Twenty-five boys from the southwestern United States blend their voices under the direction of Dr. Harvey K. Smith. The group has toured European countries as well as the U.S. and presents a program ranging from classic to folk music to pops.

Norm Wendt Is Master Of Concert Series Planning

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

You can't fault Noah Webster for defining a concertmaster as "the leader of the first violin section of a symphony orchestra, who plays the solo passages and often serves as assistant to the conductor".

Noah Webster never met Norm Wendt.

Webster, the renowned lexicographer, died in 1843. Wendt, who founded Allied Concert services in 1949, has been making beautiful music together with concert associations for more than 30 years. If anyone is a master of the concert, it is he.

Wendt, whose brother H. Paul Wendt retired this summer after a number of years of practice as a medical doctor in Thief River Falls, was in this city yesterday to attend the kick-off for the season membership sale for the local concert association. One could say he gave the group of volunteers a pep talk, except that they were never lacking in enthusiasm for the concert series.

But he missed connections with his brother — who he described as having a "tin ear" — because of a combination of circumstances. "I would guess he's up at the lake," Norm said. "I never get around to writing to let him know I'll be in town, and I suppose he doesn't read."

Although his organization now consists of five people serving 73 concert associations in nine states, Norm Wendt has given the Thief River Falls association his personal attention since he sold the first series here a number of years ago. With his advice and counsel, the association has provided the community with a varied program of musical entertainment each year with excellent quality and minimum cost.

A GOOD CONCERT and a good pipe both provide enjoyment for Norm Wendt, founder of Allied Concert services which now provides entertainment for 73 concert associations in a nine-state area. Norm, brother of Dr. H. P. Wendt of Thief River Falls, has been booking concerts for more than 30 years and supplied the local concert association with its program since its beginning. He was in Thief River Falls last night for the public membership drive kick-off of the Thief River Falls concert association.

United Way Kick-off Set Early Monday

Volunteers to assist with the 1981 United Way campaign in Thief River Falls are now being secured by the local United Way board. A goal of $75,000 has been set for the campaign this year.

Orientation program for volunteers will be held at a 7 a.m. breakfast Monday at the Best Western Inn. A film will be shown and volunteers will pick up packets of materials needed for the drive.

"As a citizen of the Thief River Falls area, chances are you or someone you know is touched by the activities of a United Way agency," states an informational brochure prepared by the local United Way board.

"Twenty-seven member agencies make possible a wide range of services available to you, your family, friends and neighbors. Agency activities are helping to make life better, more meaningful and secure for all Thief River Falls area residents.

"With the help of United Way funding, the professionals and volunteers in these agencies deliver quality services to young people, the elderly, mentally and physically handicapped persons, and individuals and families with social and health problems."

The brochure cites such program areas as delivering hot, affordable meals to the elderly, support and guidance to the mentally ill, public education on heart disease, arthritis and epilepsy, reasonably priced recreational and educational activities for young people and assistance in providing camping experiences for mentally and physically handicapped persons.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Margaret Lambert And Stuart Peterson Wed

Miss Margaret Lambert of Oklee and Stuart Peterson of Thief River Falls exchanged marriage vows recently at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church in Oklee. Rev. Keough Patnode officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Lambert of Oklee and the late Dewey Lambert; and the groom is the son of Mrs. Naomi Peterson of Thief River Falls and the late Earl Peterson.

Music for the wedding was provided by organist Barb Melby. For the processional, Donelle Kleman, a friend of the couple, sang "Evergreen," and during the ceremony, she sang, "Song of Ruth." Before the bride was escorted to the altar by her mother and brother, Terry Lambert of Eagan, the groom sang "Devoted to You." While the couple lit the unity candle, Margaret Knutson and Suellen Gunderson, friends of the couple, sang "Wedding Prayer."

The bride was attired in a gown of white organza, in empire styling with a sheer embroidered yoke edged with a ruffle. Chantilly lace enhanced the bodice, the high collar and full bishop sleeves. Her bouffant skirt draped to a double ruffled lace hemline and flowed back into a chapel-length train. For something old, she wore her grandmother's wedding band. She carried a bouquet of peach roses and yellow and white daisies, accented with light green babies' breath.

Flower girl was Annie Peterson, niece of the groom. Her white floor-length gown, made by the groom's mother, was trimmed with a ruffle around the neckline and at the hemline. She carried a basket of flowers, corresponding to those carried by the bridesmaids.

The rings were carried by Peter Paquin, nephew of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a black accented, white tuxedo with tails and a peach tipped carnation boutonniere with babies' breath.

Best man was Peter Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were David Peterson, brother of the groom, Bryan Grove, a friend of the couple, both of Thief River Falls, and Dean Lambert, Oklee, brother of the bride. Serving as ushers were Ray Swick and Charles Hoard, Thief River Falls, friends of the couple. They wore silver gray tuxedos with white ruffled shirts, trimmed in gray, and peach tinted carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a peach floor-length gown with a pleated skirt. Her corsage was of peach rosebuds and yellow daisies. The groom's mother wore a rose colored floor-length gown, also with a pleated skirt. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds and yellow daisies.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the wedding and the reception that followed in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lambert and Mr. and Mrs. Verdeen Grove. Vicki Mandt registered the guests, as Mari Mandt and Leona Culkins served the punch. Flower hostesses were Dixie Erickson and Tami Johnson.

The four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a Christogram, was cut and served by Mrs. Lawrence Boucher and Mrs. Harry Peterson. Coffee servers were Mrs. Eva Mae Bergeron and Mrs. Curtis Peterson.

Justin Lambert was gift bearer, Kim Lambert, Heidi Peterson and Nikki Lambert distributed the rice packets and scrolls, and Lori Kvasager was in charge of the wedding programs, Kristal Fox was the bride's personal attendant.

The couple is now at home south of Thief River Falls, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Terry Courneya Is Speaker At Campanula Meet

County agent Terry Courneya was guest speaker at the meeting of the Campanual garden club held Wednesday afternoon at the Ruth Holmes home. He gave information on raising various vegetables and berries and told where seeds would be obtained. He also brought three varieties of melons which were served with the three vegetable salads served by the hostess. Mrs. Holmes informed the group that the vegetables in her salads had been grown in her garden.

Eight members attended the meeting and answered roll call by giving their plant and vegetable likes and dislikes. Several floral arrangements, brought by the members, were also discussed. Vice president Ruth Holmes presided at the meeting and Geneva Overum was in charge of the quiz on shrubs.

A birthday card was signed and sent to Mrs. Anna Magnuson and the birthday song was sung for Mrs. Holmes. A plant and vegetable exchange concluded the meeting.

Grief support meeting will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Fireside room at the United Methodist church.

The meeting is open to anyone in the area suffering grief caused by death, illness, divorce, loss of home and job, and etc. There are no dues, or religious, sex, color or age barriers. People may attend as many sessions as they wish and may return whenever they need.

Those who have learned to cope with the various stages of grief are also welcome as their methods of coping may help someone else in similar situations.

Radniecki-Lindquist Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Radniecki, Oklee, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marcia, to Rick Lindquist, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Lindquist, also of Oklee.

Both are graduates of Oklee high school and Moorhead State University, and are employed in San Francisco, Calif.

Lhotka And Chommie Speak At BPW Meet

Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women (BPW) met Monday evening at the Elks club for their first dinner-meeting of the season.

Guest speakers were Barb Lhotka, program specialist for the visually impaired, and Val Chommie, who gave information on the 1980-81 concert series.

First vice president Amy Schroeder presided at the business meeting and reported an increase in the club's national dues. After some discussion, it was decided that the annual club dues remain the same for the present. To compensate for the difference, fund raising projects will be scheduled. Several suggestions were given with the final decision to be made by the finance committee.

Correspondence included thank-you letters from Beverly Trulson and Paula Lendobeja, recipients of the club's scholarships last spring. Information was also given on the Legislative conference to be held at Grand Rapids September 19-21st.

A list of suggested committee chairmen for the year was read. It was noted that Clarice Collins has been asked to serve as a delegate on the committee to promote a new high school. She asked for imput from the BPW club. Much discussion followed and it was noted that the majority of those present were not in favor of a new school.

The next meeting of the club will be held October 20, at the Elks club.

Horticulture Officers To Be Elected At Viking

Annual meeting of the 13th District Horticulture Society will be held at the fall workshop scheduled for Saturday, September 27, at the school at Viking. Installation will follow the election.

Theme of the workshop, selected by the Viking Town and Country garden club, will be "Paths of Horticulture." Guest speaker will be Pennington county extension director Terry Courneya. He will show slides and tell of his travels this summer to Holland, the bulb capital of the world.

Registration will begin at 12:00 noon with the country store open for business at 12:30 p.m. The business session will begin at 1:00 p.m. Coffee and refreshments will conclude the afternoon.

All club members are encouraged to attend. Members are reminded to bring a 50-cent item for the Country store, or are asked to notify their club treasurer to send the same amount per member to Treasurer Mae Schroeder, route 2, Salol, 56756.

Those attending are also asked to note that the workshop will not include a noon meal.

Happy 25th Anniversary From the Kids

Newcomers Club Morning Coffee Party Is Set

Newcomers club of Thief River Falls met Tuesday, September 9, at the home of Sue Diggs with 15 members present.

A morning coffee party was planned for Thursday, September 25, at 10:00 a.m., at the Hartz park. In case of rain, the event will be postponed until the following Thursday. Julie Nicholson and Ruth Tweet will be in charge of snacks. Those attending were asked to bring beverage for their own children.

Invitation was extended to the Newcomers to attend the Dinner Theater at Lon's on the 19th or 20th at 6:30. Tickets at $11.00 per person, includes the dinner and show.

The next meeting of the Newcomers club will be held October 14, at 8:00 p.m., at the Elks club. A potluck dinner will be served honoring alumni Jean Shaffer and Jan Quinlivan.

Newfolden EFC Ladies Aid Will Meet Friday

Hanson String band will present the program at the Newfolden Evangelical Free church ladies aid on Friday at 8 p.m., at the church.

The public is welcome to attend.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Arnold Larson, Mrs. Alice Ellingson, Mrs. Melvin Mattson and Mrs. Gordon Elseth.

Darlyne S. Moe To Wed Thomas Roen At Grygla

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moe of Grygla announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Darlyne Sylvia, to Thomas Ole Roen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Roen, also of Grygla.

Miss Moe is a 1979 graduate of Grygla high school and is presently employed as a dietary aide at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. Her fiance is also a 1979 graduate of Grygla high school. He is employed at the Todd Stanley farm.

The wedding will take place September 27 at 2:00 p.m., at the Grace Lutheran church in Grygla. All friends and relatives are welcome to attend. No invitations are being sent locally.

AAUW To Begin Year By Meet Candidates Night

Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) will begin its fall program Monday, September 22, at 7:30 p.m., at the Franklin Middle School library with a "Meet the Candidates" night.

Guests for the evening will include LeRoy Stumpf, DFL candidate, and Clyde Christensen, IR candidate in the race for state representative from District 1B. Darwin Boutiette will serve as moderator for the evening's program. Program coordinators are AAUW members Mary Boutiette, legislative programs chairman, and Jan Hoff, community representative.

Hostesses will be Gayle Waale and Loreen Gibson.

The meeting is open to all AAUW members and guests.

Musical At Valley Home Draws Over 75

"This Land is Your Land," a musical, highlighted the activities at Valley Home during the month of August, according to Ella Overum, the Home's reporter.

Over 75 relatives and friends attended the musical presented by the residents with Tammy Rude, activities director in charge. The residents wore appropriate costumes and sang songs representing the various nationalities at the home. Also represented were the immigrants, migrants, pioneers, Indians, the Southern Belles and the U.S. Army. Tillie Baker served as program narrator and Nancy Sandland was pianist. Assisting Mrs. Rude in planning the program were Linda Bernhardson, staff employee, and Nancy Hendrickson, craft director. Following the program, coffee and doughnuts were served.

Other activities of special interest during the month were a staff picnic supper; a bus trip to Grygla where 11 residents, Tammy Rude and Nancy Hendrickson were guests of the Grygla Senior citizens club; a visit to the Riverview Terrace; and a surprise birthday party for Rev. George DeWall, who conducts services every Sunday afternoon at the Home. He was presented with a cash gift. Lunch included doughnuts, and ice cream with chocolate topping.

Twelve residents at the home observed their birthdays during August. Noting birthdays, and the dates were Emma Westby, August 1; Ethel Johnson, August 3; Alice Johnson, August 6; Hazel Hirst and Minnie Hellquist, August 8; Charles Knutson, August 10; Minnie Olson, August 11; Julia Alexander, August 14; Amond Aase, August 17; Myrtle Vistad, August 20; Olga Hulme, August 24; and Paul Anderson, August 27. As a special treat, Ethel Johnson, Amond Aase and Myrtle Vistad served ice cream on their birthdays to their fellow residents. Olga Hulme served birthday cake and ice cream on her birthday as did Martha Morhouse, whose birthday was September 1st. All were honored jointly at the monthly birthday party with each receiving a birthday card and a cash gift from the Home as well as a card from the Catholic Daughters, who visit the Home the first of the month.

Devotional programs during the month were given by Rev. George DeWall, Rev. Julius Hovland, a group from the Miracle House, Rev. Keith Prekker, Lester Brekke and Rev. Don Knudson. Mass is offered every Saturday at 9:00 a.m., and Bible study is every Tuesday with Judith Wold in charge.

Others presenting programs were Teri Cuppett with a group of vacation Bible school children from Trinity Lutheran church; the City View 4-H club, who presented a skit and served cookies for the afternoon coffee; and a group from the Evangelical Free church, who served sweet breads after the program; and the Anna circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who also served sweet breads.

Tuesday evening devotional programs were given by "Faith Hope and Duaine's Sunbeams" from Faith Lutheran Brethren church, Dean Paskewitz, Norris Trochmann and the Lowell Trochmanns.

Other events included the movie, "The Silver Belt; a bowling game with the Oakland Park residents and a residents' council meeting.

About 150 Attend Hanson Family Reunion At Trail

Approximately 150 relatives were in attendance. Honor guest was Hanson's brother, Lester, of Jersey City, N.J., who hadn't returned to this area for 26 years. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mary Ann.

The event began with a potluck dinner at noon. The afternoon was spent reminiscing, visiting, and taking still and moving pictures. Guitar music and singing formed the background music.

Those present were from Levina, Mont., Minneapolis, Stillwater, Inver Grove Heights, Detroit Lakes, White Earth, Warren, Thief River Falls, Oklee, Plummer, Goodridge, Grygla and Trail.

SMART-Retiree Training Program To Be Held Here

SMART (Senior Member and Retiree Training) program is being offered again in Thief River Falls by the Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) local branch 1669.

The program is designed primarily for people (between 50 and 65) who are nearing retirement. Eight two-hour workshop sessions are held with groups of 16 to 24 people getting together informally to discuss and plan ahead for their retirement. Topics discussed will be attitudes toward retirement, finances, legal arrangements, housing, health, and leisure activities. Possible problem areas will be identified and concerns and apprehensions discussed.

An introductory SMART session will be held Tuesday, September 23 at 7:30 p.m., at St. John Lutheran church. Paul and Mary Warble of Bemidji, who were in charge of last year's sessions, will be leaders. They have been thoroughly trained in Smart group leadership techniques.

All interested people are invited to attend the introductory session to help them decide whether the eight regular sessions would be beneficial for them. Tuesday's session will last about two hours. There are no charges for any of the sessions.

Anyone wishing further information may call Mrs. Ken Kohler, 681-1402 or Norman Busse, 681-3346.

Zion LCW Honor Senior Members, Elects Officers

Over 50 women attended the Zion Lutheran Church Women's meeting held recently honoring members 70-years-old and older.

The honor guests were presented with corsages and stuffed heart ornaments made by members of the Sarah circle, who also presented the program. Kathy Ebbighausen gave the devotions. Informative readings of the years of faithful stewardship to Zion Church Women were given by Jane Shafland and Arlene Overbye. Marie Engen sang, "The King is Coming," accompanied by Renee Henney, and Cheryl Berg read "Footprints."

At a brief business meeting, Elaine McFarland was elected vice president, Sharon Wagner, secretary; and Gladys Hallstrom and Mildred Joppru, stewardship secretaries. On the nominating committee were Ann Morkrid, Durelle Storhaug, Irene Johnson, and Linda Arnold.

Stress Test Tells Physical Fitness

Have you ever wondered how physically fit you are in comparison with others of your age and sex?

If so, you might be interested in knowing about a new method of stress testing that doctors are using to objectively measure physical fitness and more accurately diagnose certain lung diseases.

Called a cardiopulmonary stress test, the procedure involves computerized monitoring and measuring of both lung function and heart rate under stress, according to Jim Day, a cardiopulmonary technologist at a St. Paul hospital.

United recently installed such a system, the first of its kind to graphically measure and monitor breath by breath what happens in the body during exercise, Day said.

Cardiologists routinely use cardiac stress tests to help determine the presence of heart disease, but lung function stress tests, until recently, involved too much time and expense to be practical diagnostic tools.

"It used to take a physician and several technicians about four hours to gather and record the same data," explained Dr. James Rossini, an internist on the hospital's medical staff. "In addition, numerous blood samples had to be drawn from arteries to obtain blood gases. No patient wanted to go through that."

Now, Rossini says, sophisticated computer systems, like the one in the hospital's exercise lab, can gather and analyze data during stress testing that enable physicians to diagnose certain hard-to-spot small airway diseases and, in healthy persons, evaluate fitness levels.

Like a cardiac stress test, the cardiopulmonary stress test involves running at a rate of up to eight miles an hour on a treadmill that is slowly angling uphill to a possible 25 degrees. Electrodes are placed on the runner's chest to monitor heart rate. He or she breathes into a mouthpiece attached to flexible tubing where sensors for other data gathering are located.

Throughout the test, computers simultaneously monitor ventilation, carbon dioxide and oxygen concentration of expired air plus heart rate. Through a small attachment on the runner's ear, oxygen saturation of the blood is measured.

From these raw values the computers caluculate a variety of measurements that are updated on a breath by breath basis. The information is displayed visually on a TV-like screen, and at regular intervals a printed copy of the information is dispensed.

After the test, which takes up to 20 minutes, a physician must interpret the data. "The results are very accurate and very sensitive," Rossini said.

The test is useful for patients with limited lung function symptoms, like wheezing, coughing or shortness of breath. It is also useful in evaluating patients before heart or lung surgery.

The test can also evaluate the rehabilitation progress of a patient with chronic respiratory disease, like emphysema. Because the system analyzes each breath separately, even a minute or two on the treadmill produces significant data for analysis. As a result, both young children and elderly persons can be tested.

"The test could be used for industrial-related disability claims or for executive testing of fitness levels," Rossini said.

In addition, this method of stress testing can be used to evaluate objectively the effects of fitness conditioning in athletes, Rossini said. One of the goals of conditioning programs is to raise the anaerobic threshold. That's the point at which the body begins to dip into its reserves for energy.

From data gathered during the stress test, this threshold can be accurately determined. Subsequent tests could be compared to determine fitness progress.

The cardiopulmonary stress test is like having a window into the body. Through if the physician can obtain precise information for diagnosis and patients can find insight into the effects of their lifestyle.

Ernest Kujawa Services Held At Florian

Ernest M. Kujawa, 57, of Florian, died in a single car accident near his home on Saturday evening.

Funeral services for Ernest M. Kujawa were held today (Wednesday) at 10:00 a.m., at the Assumption Catholic church in Florian. Rev. Frank Kulhawik offered the Mass. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Ernest Martin Kujawa, a son of the late Martin and Mary Kujawa, was born July 5, 1923 in Wright township, Marshall county, near Florian. He attended school and grew to manhood in the Florian community and was baptized and confirmed there in the Catholic church.

On Oct. 26, 1948, he was united in marriage to Aurelia Pietruszewski at St. John the Baptist Catholic church of Alma. Since then, they have lived and farmed in Wright township.

He was a member of the Assumption Catholic church of Florian and the Florian-Warsaw council 195 of the PNA.

He is survived by his wife, four sons: Patrick Kujawa, Williston, N.D., Dennis, who is stationed with the US Coast Guard in Hawaii; Jerome and Allen, both at home; two daughters: Michelle, at home, and Mrs. Kenneth (Carolyn) Safranski, Sioux Falls, S.D.; and three sisters: Mrs. Peter (Mary) Gajewski, Argyle; Mrs. Hilaria Harris, Des Moines, Iowa; and Mrs. Dennis (Anna) Long, Miami, Fla.

Don Kamrowski Services Held At Park Rapids

Donald A. Kamrowski, 47, of 508 6th Street West, Park Rapids, and formerly of this city, died Saturday at Rochester.

Funeral services for Donald Kamrowski were held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at St. Peter's Catholic church in Park Rapids with Rev. Frank Reid and Rev. J. W. Regnier officiating. Mrs. Mary Lehrke was the soloist and Mrs. Maggie Yerkes, the soloist. Interment was in the Lake George cemetery with the Jones Funeral home of Park Rapids in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Harold Jones, Rev. Ben Fadenrecht, Michael Condon, Howard Hagen, Jim Theisen, Alyn Kueber, Ray Calhoun and Calvin Ripley.

Serving as active pallbearers were Richard Walsh, Donald Fearn, Rodney Garden, Jay Mondry, Roy Tichich and Rex Lindblom.

Donald Kamrowski was born Sept. 24, 1932 in Grafton, N.D., to Bernard and Angeline Mondry Kamrowski, now deceased. He was a graduate of the Grafton high school and attended St. Thomas college before transferring to Warsham school of Emblaming in Chicago, Ill. He worked for a time at the Kamrowski-Nygard Funeral home in Grafton.

In 1964, he came to Thief River Falls and was employed here at the Green Funeral home until 1972, when he moved to Park Rapids. While living here, he was very active at St. Bernard's Catholic church and served on St. Bernard's school board.

Kamrowski was an army veteran of the Korean War.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Lions, American Legion, Eagles, Minnesota Funeral Directors association and Ducks Unlimited.

He was married Aug. 20, 1956 at Minto, N.D., to Juliann Narlock. She survives.

Also surviving are two daughters, Karen and Julie Kamrowski, and three sons: John, Mark, and Paul Kamrowski, all of Park Rapids; one brother, Harold Kamrowski, Lake George; and two sisters: Mrs. Grace Scholik, Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Carol Pierce, Burnt Hills, N.Y.

He was preceded in death by two brothers: Robert and James Bernard.

Irma Ritala Services Held Here Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Irma Ritala, 71, of Minneapolis, and formerly of Thief River Falls, were held here Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Mrs. Ritala died Friday at the Fairview-Southdale hospital in Minneapolis.

Rev. Jonathan Law, pastor of the United Methodist church, officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Sherman Idso. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Ritala, the former Irma Anderson, was born April 28, 1909 at Joliet, Ill., to Gust and Amelia Woodman Anderson. At the age of seven years, she moved with her parents to Thief River Falls. She attended school and grew to womanhood here.

In September of 1941, she was married here to George Ritala. The couple later moved to Minneapolis where Ritala was employed by Minneapolis Honeywell as a tool and die maker.

While living here, she was a member of the Wesleyian circle of the United Methodist church.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Elvin (Bernice) Dahl, Thief River Falls, and a niece, Mrs. Oliver (Gail) Iverson of Issaquah, Wash.

Her husband and parents preceded her in death.

Services Held At Warren For Sadie Bennett

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank (Sadie) Bennett, 83, of Warren were held September 2 at the Grace Methodist church in Warren. Mrs. Bennett died August 28, at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, following a brief illness.

Rev. James Clausen officiated at the services. Mrs. Clifford Engelstad was the organist, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Erickson, the vocalists, and Mrs. Jane Safar, the reader. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery at Warren.

Honorary pallbearers were Robert Sommers, Ralph Swanson, Robert Swanson, Charles Rud, Melvin Johnson and Mike Fayette.

Mrs. Bennett, the former Sadie Evelyn Harper, was born Sept. 25, 1896 in Independence, Ind., to George H. and Elva Adelaide Harvey Harper, the second of their six children. Her early years were spent in Indiana. In 1905, she moved with her parents to Huron, S.D. She was married there on Feb. 9, 1916 to Frank Edgar Bennett. In 1921, they, together with their first child, moved to Red Lake county and resided there until 1934, when they moved to a farm east of Warren. Since then, she had made her home in the Warren area.

She had been a member of the Grace United Methodist church at Warren since 1958 and was an active member of the United Methodist Women. She and her husband were former members of the First Presbyterian church of Plummer.

Surviving are three sons: G. L. (Vern) Bennett, San Jose, Calif.; Clifford, Warren; and Frank, Winston-Salem, N.C.; a daughter, Emma Erickson, Viking; 21 grandchildren, 25 great-grandchildren, a great-great-grandchild, and one brother Lynn Harper, Attica, Ind.

She was preceded in death by her husband, one son, Kenneth; a grandson, Kenny, Jr., a sister, Hatti, and three brothers.

Jorgenson Is Judges Ass'n. Vice President

Minnesota juvenile judges association held its annual conference in Brainerd on September 3, 4 and 5. It was attended by Judges Larry G. Jorgenson, Warren; J. A. Harren, Red Lake Falls; Donald A. Shanahan, Roseau; and Milton Kludt, Ada.

Following officers were elected for the upcoming year: President, Robert S. Graff, Aitkin; first vice president, Larry G. Jorgenson, Warren; second vice president, J. W. Schindler, Blue Earth; and executive committee, Allen Oliesky, Minneapolis.

Program, under the direction of Honorary Larry G. Jorgenson, county court judge, Warren, included lectures and discussions on "The Use of Contempt of Court Proceedings in Juvenile Court Matters", led by Honorary George M. Scott, associate justice of the Minnesota supreme court and Honorary Allen Oleisky, Hennepin county district court, juvenile division; Reference hearings (the process by which a juvenile is transferred to adult court for prosecution as an adult), led by Robb Scott, Esq. assistant Anoka county attorney; and a report on the task force established to update the procedural rules of court for juveniles to be consistant with the present law, led by Honorary George M. Scott, associate justice Minnesota supreme court and John O. Sonnsteng, professor, William Mitchell college of law, St. Paul.

Dr. Charles Murray, research scientist for the American Institute for Research; Washington, D.C. discussed a study he conducted on the impact of court dispositions (sentences) on juveniles which was a statistical study of court cases in Chicago, Ill., which indicated that sanctions had an effect on repeated offenses and that the repetative nature of the criminal activities was curtailed most effectively by confinement, away from home area, for up to five months.

Juvenile court and its processes was outlined and discussed by Honorary E. C. Kimmelman, senior provincial judge of the juvenile section of the privincial court of Manitoba. Judge Kimmelman is in charge of all juvenile courts in the province of Manitoba and administers its entire operation.

Governor Quie addressed the judges on the night of September 4, speaking generally on the responsibilities of people and the courts.

Present status of the state corrections department was explained by Jack Young, corrections commissioner for the state of Minnesota.

NW Career Project Set In Bagley Thurs.

Northwest Minnesota Career Education Project sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Educational Cooperative Service Unit (ECSU) was conducted in Greenbush today and will be conducted at Angelina's supper club in Bagley tomorrow from noon to 3:30 p.m.

Schedule for the day will include an introduction and project overview by Fred Rohde, regional director of Northwest Minnesota ECSU; and speakers, Duane Loewen, Northwest Instructional coordinator, Minnesota Educational Computer Consortium (MECC), from Moorhead, Alice Hofstad, media coordinator, media center, Northwest Minnesota ECSU; and Bob Jamison, consultant, Red River computers, Moorhead, who will discuss scheduling of equipment into districts.

Demonstrations will be given by Jamison on Apple II Microcomputer; Linda Loing, career counselor, region I career education center, University of Minnesota (UMC) in Crookston, on Computer Terminal for Minnesota career information system (MCIS); and Janet Jones, Northwestern Bell in St. Paul on Northwestern Bell Telexplorer conference set.

All equipment is funded through the Career Education Project and there is no charge to a school for its use. It will be scheduled through the local school district career education contact person and delivered and picked up by the Northwest Minnesota ECSU van.

Joyce Larson, personnel, Arctic Enterprises, Thief River Falls, was among 13 advisory council members who offered recommendations for the planning of the project which was facilitated by the Northwest Minnesota ECSU during 1979-80, based on recommendations from the area's 50 superintendents of schools, and the advisory council.

Major objective of the plan, according to a program on the project, is to provide a viable delivery system of career information services to the students, especially grades 10-12, in the 52 public school districts and the 17 nonpublic schools in Northwestern Minnesota, especially those without guidance counselors and without career services, that wish to participate, and that will be ongoing after project funding is no longer available.

Norm Wendt Is Concert Master For TRF Series

"The only reason we can do it for such small cost is because of the volunteers," he said. "People like Pat Martin and Gerry Stocks who work like crazy for more than a month and all the good folks they get to make the contacts and do the selling and promoting and those who buy the tickets.

"The same Bohemian folk group you had here last year performed at Northrup auditorium in the Twin Cities where the tickets were a minimum of $7.50 and it cost $2.50 to park the car," he said.

"We look for good young talent, we try to put together a varied program, we book well in advance and we buy by the week or month and sell by the day," he summarized about his growth and success. "Right now we have nearly all of our booking done for the 1981-82 season."

It was back in 1949 that the young music teacher on an Indian reservation at Wolf Point, Mont., became disenchanted with the concert series in the area where he served.

"I objected to the fact that you never knew who you were going to have or how many you were going to have on the series," he said about the method employed by the New York company selling the program. "I also objected to the fact that all we were getting were over-weight, ugly sopranos who were singing all evening in a foreign language and never singing anything I had heard of."

So he drew up a contract that said 50 per cent of the concert program had to be in English and 25 per cent or more had to be familiar music. The ensuing concert series which he booked on his own was a hit, the word got around, and the next year he scheduled for his own town and four others, including three towns in North Dakota.

In 1951 the list had grown to include 11 towns and he was still teaching school and trying to get the booking work done during the summer and on Easter vacation. At that point he decided to give up teaching and plunged into business, borrowing money to live on during some pretty lean times.

But several years later things improved and the concept which had been a sales point for the business was continued to the present time: About 90 per cent of the artists booking with the service sign the Allied contract which gives the company some control over the program to be presented. With this assurance in hand, Wendt or his agents can tell an association the artist or group available, the date, and the type of program which will be presented.

ANDREA (BUNNY ENGELMAN) feels a moment of panic in "Twinkle, Twinkle," as TV soap opera star Rob Powell (Dave Swanson) makes his move. The one-act comedy is one of three by the Chameleon Theatre Co., Inc., which will be presented as a dinner theater production at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls, September 18, 19 and 20 and September 26 and 27. The comedy is directed by Carol Peterson who is assisted by Jay Gjernes.

Allied also takes advantage of a relatively compact market area, allowing soloists and groups to work more frequently. "Most of them would just as soon be on stage earning applause as sitting in a motel room and their living expenses are the same," Wendt explained. "We keep the travel distances relatively short and they can perform more often. Consequently, we can often get them for a somewhat lower price per date than their normal fee."

During his career Wendt has made a few exceptional discoveries. He gave Leontyne Price her first tour a number of years ago and had Beverly Sills on tour in an operetta in 1951. Pianist Grant Johannessen was one of Wendt's entertainers, as was Sherril Milnes, who now commands $14,000 per night with the Metropolitan opera company. Penny Orloff, who made a hit in the concert series here last year, is now doing well with the New York City opera company.

Talent judging is not always an exact art, however. In 1955 Wendt turned down a trio, the members of which were George London, Mario Lanza and Phyllis Curtin, all of whom went on to future stardom.

But talent is available and Wendt has access to it. This year he has booked 45 different soloists and groups. He makes an effort to assure entertainment value and admits that over the years the concert associations he helped form and served should more properly be known as entertainment associations.

"When I was young and starting in this business, I went out to spread culture," he said. "The idea used to be that if you weren't bored the concert wasn't any good. I still try to get one good soloist on each concert series, because I believe communities should have a kind of standard to measure their own talent against. But mostly, we try to entertain.

"I believe the midwest has more good musicians per capita among the general population than anywhere else in the country," he said, "and it is largely due to the schools with high quality music programs here. I also feel that the musical intelligence of the people in the midwest is on the average superior to that to those in many of the so-called cultural centers."

Now that Norm has met many of the challenges of his profession, he is in the process of selling his business to John Folin, who has been with the organization for the past 15 years. Full transfer will be completed in a couple of years.

Norm no longer makes the 35,000 to 45,000 miles a year he once did to sell and promote and organize his concert series. And he has cut back from 52 to 35 weeks a year on the job. But he firmly believes his labors have been beneficial in much longer lasting terms than two hours of entertainment.

"Because Grant Johannessen — who is about six foot four and looks like a football player — played a piano concert by Rubgy, N.D., five boys in that town started taking piano lessons. I kept track of them for awhile and all contribute musically to the communities they live in now," he said.

"At Jamestown, N.D., Sherril Milnes was introduced to Lenus Carlson who had decided to give up music and go back to the farm. Milnes heard Carlson sing and convinced him to continue developing his talent. Carlson is now doing well with the Metropolitan opera," Wendt said.

"I have had offers to do other things," he said, "but I believe there is some moral value to concert work."

Indeed there is, Norm. As we have said a number of times, a little culture never hurt anyone. Sometimes it even helps.

Odin Peterson Services Set For Thursday

Odin Peterson, 71, of rural Thief River Falls died Tuesday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Odin Peterson will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m., at the Seventh-Day Adventist church with Rev. Dobkins officiating. Interment will be in the Lutheran cemetery at Middle River.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Monday's edition of the Times.

H. Gustafson Services Held At Karlstad

Funeral services for Hjalmer Gustafson were held today (Wednesday) at 2:00 p.m., at the First Lutheran church in Karlstad with Rev. Donald Peterson officiating. Vocal selections were a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Thompson, and a selection by a trio composed of Mrs. Philip Boen, Mrs. Douglas Thun and Mrs. Wayne Jacobson. Kirstin Olson served as organist. Interment was in the Hagland church cemetery, near Strandquist with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements. Military honors were accorded by the Strandquist American Legion post 466.

Hjalmer William Gustafson was born April 1, 1915 in Lincoln township, Marshall county, to Carl and Martha Gustafson, now deceased. He attended school in that community and was baptized and confirmed in the Hagland Lutheran church, near his home.

Gustafson served in the U.S. Army during World War II. Following his discharge from service in December of 1942, he returned to the farm in Lincoln township and had since made his home there. He was a licensed pilot.

He was a life-long member of the Hagland Lutheran church. He was also a member of the Strandquist American Legion post 466, and a former member of the Karlstad Flying club.

Survivors include three brothers: Martin Gustafson, Detroit Lakes; Clarence, Inglewood, Calif., and Albert, Supulveda, Calif.; and two sisters: Mrs. Nancy Lhotka, Duluth, and Mrs. Ida Blaze, Stephen.

He was preceded in death by two brothers.

LEAVING HER JOB as postmaster at the St. Hilaire post office following 22 years of service is Arbelle Lindquist (right). Incoming postmaster to the St. Hilaire post office is Marlene Ortloff, a native of St. Hilaire, who joined the postal service in February of 1977.

St. Hilaire Postmaster Retires After 22 Years

By Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

When St. Hilaire's postmaster asked Arbelle Lindquist to consider the position of clerk at the St. Hilaire post office 22 years ago, she willingly accepted.

"I enjoyed it from the start," she stated in a Times interview yesterday. "I trained, took the exam, and went right into it."

Her decision was prompted by the fact that she knew a second income would help supplement the Hartz store the family owned in St. Hilaire, she said. The Lindquists owned the store for 27 years.

When Arbelle began her job as postmaster, after working as a clerk for a period of time, the position was male-dominated, she said. But now, the position of postmaster is more "evened up." "Most of the small surrounding towns have women postmasters," she said.

Arbelle and her husband, Vernon, have lived in St. Hilaire all of their married lives, she said. The couple has three children, Mrs. Clark (Diane) Scott of Littleton, CO; Mrs. Darrell (Susan) Mercil of Moorhead; and Vern of Watertown, WI.

Her position as post office clerk carried her from the St. Hilaire post office to the Thief River Falls post office, she said. When she began her job as postmaster working an 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. shift, she performed the regular duties of any postmaster including such things as sorting mail, waiting on customers, doing bookwork, and taking care of any special duties that may arise. Included on this years special duty agenda was the census and the registration of 18-year-olds for the draft.

There was nothing Arbelle disliked about her job at the post office in those 22 years, she said. "I love my work here. Once in a while you get dissatisfied customers, but that's all part of the work."

Presently there is only employee position filled at a time at the St. Hilaire post office, with the job rotating between the clerk who works two hours Saturdays and relieves the postmaster when situations arise, and the postmaster who works the remainder of the time.

There are no "special" plans included within the years following Arbelle's retirement, she said. "I'll do some traveling to see our kids."

As for hobbies, well, Arbelle has only one. That one hobby will keep her busy as well as offer her the chance to cling to a part of her job now behind her. And what one thing would a retired postmaster be better at doing than collecting stamps?

HUD Suggests Being An Energy Use Miser

The nation faces a demand for energy sources — oil, coal, electricity and natural gas — that is unprecedented in history. This, coupled with ever-growing shortages and the accompanying high prices for these hard-to-come-by commodities, has created a heretofore unneeded requirement for energy conservation, reports the U.S. department of housing and urban development.

It is patriotic as well as good business to be watchful of our energy consumption. And it is downright common sense because everyone must keep a wary eye on the family budget.

Of course, all economy begins at home and being an energy miser is no exception.

U.S. department of housing and urban development recently refined the process of becoming an energy miser to the listing of 18 specific ways in which simple improvements would result in great savings of energy for heating and air conditioning. The suggestions follow:

(1) The installation of weather stripping at windows and door joints, caulking of windows and door frames and the sealing of cracks in exterior walls will help prevent air leaks that permit heat to escape in cold weather and to prevent the infiltration of warm air to tax the air conditioning system or unit in warm weather.

(2) The installation of storm windows or insulating glass and the closing of window drapes at night help cut heat loss.

(3) The planting of trees, installation of heat absorbing or reflecting glass panes, awning or overhangs at windows exposed to the sun and the use of light colored materials on exterior surfaces of the house reduces solar heat absorption from window glass and lowers the need for operating cooling fans or air conditioners.

(4) All homes should be properly insulated. There should be at least six inches of insulation over the top ceiling and at least three or four in exterior walls. This will help keep heat in and cold out during heating season and it will reduce heat gain and retain cool air during air conditioning season. Note: An expert's advice may be necessary — improper installation may cause moisture condensation.

(5) If attic crawl space is inaccessible for insulation, the installation of an attic fan will draw off warm air accumulated under the roof and will reduce the summer need for constant air conditioning.

(6) Exchange surfaces and air filters of the heating plant should be clean and properly adjusted — professionally if necessary — and this will reduce the necessity for the furnace to work harder.

(7) Air conditioning units should be professionally overhauled and examined every two years for the most efficient, energy-saving operation.

(8) If the outside condenser is kept clean and clear of shrubbery or nearby walls, the unimpeded air flow increases the efficiency of the unit and power is conserved.

(9) Living areas should be sealed off from the attic and the attic should be well vented to the outdoors. This will prevent heat loss from the living areas and stops moisture condensation in the attic.

(10) Remember to turn off lights and appliances and to turn down the thermostat of heating appliances at night during heating season. Tight faucets will help conserve the hot water supply.

(11) Refrigerator and freezer doors should be airtight and condensation coils should be kept clean to increase the efficiency of these units.

(12) Rotate the use of appliances. For instance, the heavy use of the cooking range or even the self-cleaning feature of the oven should be employed during periods when the air conditioner's load is lightest — late in the evening or early in the morning. This will result in an efficiency gain when power sources are plentiful.

(13) Doors and windows should be kept shut and fireplace vents should be closed during air conditioning season to reduce the strain on the system.

(14) Heat gain will be reduced and water vapor will be decreased if exhaust fans are used while cooking, bathing or doing laundry. Covers should be used while boiling foods.

(15) For maximum comfort for minimum expenditure of energy and the resultant lower cost, seek professional advice on the installation of a cooling system for your home.

(16) Insulate air conditioning ducts where they pass through uncooled areas. This reduces cool air loss and increases efficiency.

(17) Window air conditioning units should be turned on only when needed and turned off when the rooms which they cool are unoccupied. For a central system, unoccupied rooms should be closed off. Leaving the registers open will keep the entire system in balance and will conserve energy.

(18) Start your air conditioner early in the day or run it on the thermostat. During periods of peak demand for power set the thermostat higher. This will reduce the load on the system during critical demand periods and help reduce the risk of brownouts. A higher setting will keep the conpressor from constant starting and turning off.

Annual Hawk Migration Is Now Underway

Carrol Henderson, DNR non-game wildlife specialist, said the best place to view the migration is Hawk Ridge nature reserve in Duluth.

The reserve, managed by the Duluth chapter of the Audubon Society, is at the intersection of Skyline Parkway and the Seven Bridges Road.

To reach the observation area after entering Duluth on Superior street, turn left on 45th avenue East and follow 45th until it enters on Glenwood Drive. Turn left on Glenwood and proceed to Skyline, turning right and proceed along the Parkway to the observation point.

Henderson said most people now have learned to understand and appreciate the role that hawks and other raptors (meat eating birds) play in the environment. But he said some persons still kill hawks, although they are protected.

He pointed out that all hawks, owls, eagles and falcons are protected by state or federal laws and that heavy fines and even jail sentences have been levied against killers of hawks and eagles in recent years.

He said anyone seen killing hawks or eagles should be reported to the DNR and that the department should be notified of dead or crippled raptors so the birds can be treated or used for scientific or educational purposes.

Packaging: The Outside Story

The world's first food canning facility was in successful operation in England in 1813. America's first commercial production of canned goods began in Boston under the direction of William Underwood in 1819. These early cans were extremely expensive . . . and you needed a hammer and chisel to open them! Production was all by hand — about ten cans a day per man. Quite a difference from today's output of roughly 60,000 cans per hour according to Castle & Cooke, Inc. which operates one of the largest canneries in the world — the Dole Pineapple Cannery located in Honolulu.

The tin can, actually steel with a thin tin coating, served us well during the last 150 years. Raw material, production and energy costs are rising rapidly, however, so alternative containers and materials are being tested to replace the tin can.

Many manufacturers are making two piece cans — steel or aluminum. There's no side seam . . . no soldering. The two-piece is also less vulnerable to denting.

Researchers have found that the retort pouch is an attractive alternative to tin cans. A retort pouch is a flexible package. It generally consists of three layers — usually aluminum foil laminated between thin plastic layers. This thinner package allows the food to be processed in a much shorter time. Energy costs are cut. For the consumer, the quality of the food closely approaches the flavor and texture of frozen food. That helps the packaging receive a pretty warm welcome.

Effort Made To Enforce Bike Safety

An extraordinary amount of attention has been paid to motorcycle safety problems lately with just cause. That does not minimize the difficulties faced by bicyclists and moped drivers, said Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety, John P. Sopsic.

"Bicycle deaths in Minnesota through the first week of September have already exceeded the total number of bicycle fatalities a year ago," said Sopsic. "Nearly two months of favorable riding remains this fall."

A recent series of letters to the editors of St. Paul newspapers illustrates what is some naivete on the part of both bicyclists and motorists. The letters were in part prompted by one reader who wrote: . . . "The time has come that they (bicyclists) be made aware of the laws of the road . . . We sure would have a terrible mess if cars obeyed the laws the way bikers do . . .

Subsequent letters placed equal blame on motorists for neglecting bicyclists rights, for not "sharing" the road fairly.

Sopsic said a considerable effort has been and is being made by his department to educate people on bike safety. "We have developed a lot of material on the subject. It is not being ignored," he added.

Minnesota has a number of bicycle safety programs in schools and of community orientation. In one brochure, "Be A Bike Expert," nine basic rules of the road for bicyclists are stressed. They are:

—Walk your bike across busy intersections.

—Don't hitch rides.

—Don't perform stunts on streets or sidewalks.

—Don't ride a wrong size bike.

—Signal turns and stops well in advance. Obey all traffic signs and signals.

DPS has a 30-page Minnesota Bicycle Driver's Guide which is intended for use in classroom situations. It has applicable traffic laws, safety rules, recommendations and tips, highway signs and signals.

Engineering Chief Named By State DNR

Department of Natural Resources has announced the appointment of a new chief for its engineering bureau.

Named to the post was John Ernster, 37, formerly an engineer with the Department of Transportation. He is a graduate of the Engineering College at the University of Minnesota and worked for Douglas Aircraft as a structural engineer for one year before joining the DOT in 1966.

He was a design engineer in the road plans and bridge divisions before an assignment to the post of waste water and water supply engineer.

Flags Flown Over Capitol Can Be Bought

Citizenship day, September 17, commemorates the day of adjournment in 1787 of the constitutional convention in Philadelphia. It is the day our founding fathers walked out of Independence hall with the faith that this country would forever be a free nation for all people.

"The people of Minnesota have proven that the faith, love and hope of our founding fathers still holds strong," said Senator Dave Durenberger. "Two months ago I told them they could write to my office and request a flag to be flown over the nation's capital to honor a person or special occasion. The response has been overwhelming. My office has received more requests for flag dedications than any congressional office this year. I've received and filled more than 500 requests just since June.

"The people of Minnesota have a spirit of patriotism that makes me very proud. People have requested flags for many occasions," he said.

Durenberger's office has had flags flown for constituents in honor of birthdays, anniversaries, weddings, graduations and other special occasions. Any Minnesotan may obtain a flag from Senator Durenberger's office by sending a written request to Senator Durenberger, 353 Russell Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, Att: Flag request.

Prices for the flags are as follows: 3x5 cotton, $5.55; 3x5 nylon, $6.65; 5x8 cotton, $11.85; or 5x8 nylon, $13. There is no profit from the cost of the flags. Checks must be made payable to the Keeper of Stationery. Allow three to six weeks for delivery. Price of the flags is going up November 1. The new prices will be as follows: 3x5 cotton, $6.35; 5x8 cotton $12.95; 3x5 nylon $6.80 or 5x8 nylon. $14.

Planning Begins At 40 For Retirement

People often don't plan for retirement until they reach 55, but by then it is too late to do it right, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs. People should begin arranging for retirement while still in their forties — when there is time to build an adequate retirement income.

You will probably need 60 to 70 per cent of your last working year's income for comfortable retirement. So, if you are now 40 and earning $20,000, you'll need an annual retirement income of something like $45,000 in 25 years.

The first step in retirement planning is setting goals. Ask yourself how you'd like to spend those years. Where will you live? In a retirement community, a condominium, your present home? How much income will you need if you want to travel? Would you or your spouse work part-time?

Begin by projecting a budget, based on your living plans. Add up any retirement income already in the works, such as social security, employer pensions, annuity payments, interest or dividends from investments you plan to keep. Compare this total with your probable expenses.

There will probably be a gap to fill, so now is the time to plan to build a cash pool for use as retirement income. For instance, if you can accumulate a cash pool of $50,000 over the next 25 years and invest it at 10 per cent, you will be able to withdraw 10 per cent a year — $5,000 — indefinitely. If the money is invested at six per cent, an annual withdrawal of $5,000 will deplete the fund in 16 years.

Are there any investments you can sell at retirement? What about proceeds from the sale of your home (at 55 you are exempt from up to $100,000 gain on the sale)? You may want to cash in your life insurance at retirement and use the money if you have no dependents or if your spouse will have enough income if you die.

Your ability to calculate the cash you'll need at retirement and to secure it while you're still at the peak of your earning power, say CPAs, is the key to good retirement planning.

If you are not covered by a pension plan where you work, then an individual retirement account (IRA) will provide a good tax benefit for you now, and a solid retirement fund for the future. That money will not be taxed until you use it and you may then be in a lower income tax bracket.

If you are 40 when you start an IRA plan with an interest rate of 7¾ per cent, and you contribute $1,500 every year, you will have contributed $37,500 at the end of 25 years — but the fund will be worth $121,604. This calculation is based on an annual contribution made in January of each year. If you wait until December, the total will be $112,420. That's a difference of more than $9,000 — simply based on careful planning, CPAs say.

If you work for a corporation or government with a pension plan, you may be provided with 30 to 50 per cent of your working income at retirement. Here's an example of an average non-contributory pension plan. Let's say you are 40 and earning $20,000 and you plan to retire at 65. In the next 25 years, if your income increases modestly, you may be earning $65,000 before you retire. Your benefit may be based on your "high" earnings, usually the average of the last five years of employment — or about $61,000. If your pension plan "integrates" with social security, your annual retirement income will be $24,000 — or $2,000 a month. This is about 40 per cent of your pre-retirement income. In addition, you will get your social security benefits.

Contributory company pension plans have the advantage of allowing you to take accumulated contributions plus interest earnings with you if you leave your job. If you do that, CPAs say, put that pension money into a Rollover IRA within 60 days — or the opportunity will be lost.

There are insurance plans such as deferred or immediate-pay annuities which provide lifetime income at retirement. Interest rates on deferred annuities tend to be low, so saving this way over the years is usually not as prudent as saving or investing your funds at higher rates.

You can buy an immediate-pay annuity for a lump sum when you retire, and the insurance company will guarantee you a specified monthly income for life. This type of annuity makes sense if you're worried that your capital won't see you through your old age, or if you come from a long-lived family.

At retirement, you could also consider a "reverse annuity" obtained by borrowing against the value of your house. With your property as collateral, you receive a series of monthly loans for 10 to 15 years, depending upon life expectancy.

Review your retirement plans as your life situation and earnings change, CPAs advise. With social security, and pension or IRA as a base, adjust your savings or investments as necessary. Remember, with the magic of compounding and consistent saving, money will grow rapidly in 25 years. A single investment of $10,000 earning eight per cent annually, will more than double in only 10 years.

Keeping this in mind, now while you're young, can mean that retirement years truly can be the best years of your life.

Land Exchange Boosts State Park Acreage

An exchange of land between the state of Minnesota and the Consolidated Paper company of Wisconsin completed last month will provide the state with 65 additional tracts of land within the Grand Portage state forest, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

The exchange of land, first proposed 16 years ago, required field examination of some 14,000 acres. Several revisions were required due to the state's policy on potential mineral lands and the company's plans for Minnesota operations.

A totally revised exchange proposal was submitted in 1972 but additional delays were encountered while land titles were cleared on company lands.

Title problems were resolved in 1978 but since the original appraisal was more than 10 years old the lands had to be reappraised.

The state is exchanging 2489.89 acres within Lake and Cook counties for 2293.53 acres, all located within Grand Portage state forest in Cook county.

DNR officials said the acquisition of these tracts will result in vastly improved forest management at a greatly reduced cost.

Opportunities for outdoor recreation will also be enhanced for the public since the state acquired 11,826 feet of lake frontage while relinquishing 5,670 feet.

The state gave up 17,620 feet of stream frontage but gained 6,890 feet, most of it on streams containing trout.

Of primary interest to the company were state timber lands having an appraised value of $148,471. In exchange the state received timber lands valued at $45,325.

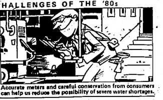
WATER CHALLENGES OF THE '80s



Accurate meters and careful conservation from consumers can help us reduce the possibility of severe water shortages.

Just as the '70s was the decade of the energy crisis, some experts believe the '80s will be the decade of severe national water shortages, unless we take action now.

It is estimated that this country used about 40 billion gallons of fresh water per day in 1900 and 370 billion gallons each day by 1970. By 1985, we're expected to use 422 billion gallons per day. Our daily water supply limit is estimated to be 600 billion gallons per day. We could reach that supply limit even sooner than expected if the country commits itself to energy programs including coal gasification plants and shale-oil extraction plants, which use massive amounts of water.

According to John W. Harriger — Vice President, Water Products, for the Municipal & Utility Division of Rockwell International, a leading manufacturer of water meters — consumers, industry, agriculture, suppliers of water products and government must work together to provide adequate supplies of quality water at the lowest possible price. Consumers, he says, can cut water consumption a number of ways such as sprinkling lawns at night for less evaporation; getting water-saving devices for dishwashers, toilets and clothes washers; and attaching a control device to reduce water flow during showers.

Agriculture, which uses nearly half the water in the U.S., can cut wasteful forms of irrigation. Farmers can line irrigation ditches with concrete, and adopt the new drip-type irrigation systems, which deliver water to the plant roots rather than to the soil. Also, by measuring accurately, they can use only the water needed for optimum crop production.

During the past several decades, the water industry has found, communities which convert from a flat charge for water to metered water reduce demand by 30 percent. Metering means that consumers who waste water have to pay for it. Metering can be the key to a more economic water system which can result in equitable distribution and lower costs to the concerned consumer.

In addition, metered systems have the ability to determine unaccounted-for water loss. Leaks can go undetected for years unless the total system is metered.

American utilities provide the best and safest drinking water in the world today, Harriger points out. They can, he says, help us make it through the complexities of the next decade.

Several State Parks Forced To Close Early

Department of Natural Resources has announced that some state park services will close two to three weeks earlier than normal this fall in order to reduce operating expenses.

The spending cuts have been necessitated throughout state government because of a decline in tax receipts resulting from a slowdown in the economy.

Don Davison, DNR director of parks and recreation, said inflation and budget cutbacks will affect services at a number of state parks.

For example, mine tours at Tower Soudan state park and facilities at Douglas Lodge, Itasca park, were closed Sept. 3. Both facilities normally close at the end of September.

Davison said three smaller parks closed Saturday, Sept. 6. They were Little Elbow Lake, John A. Latsch, and Monson Lake. Two others — Carley and Lake Louise — closed Sept. 15.

Semi-modern campgrounds containing facilities, such as flush toilets and showers, will remain available for fall use in 13 major parks. They are Whitewater, Forestville, Interstate, St. Croix, Helmer Myre, Lac qui Parle, Wm. O'Brien, Sibley, Lake Shetek, Blue Mounds, Flandreau, Minneopa and Frontenac.

In 31 other parks such facilities closed on Sept. 5 rather than around Oct. 1. However the campgrounds in these parks are all equipped with hand pumps and pit toilets and will remain open for use.

"The Department of Natural Resources has attempted to make state park funding reductions which minimize the public impact while saving the most dollars", said Davison.

"We want to emphasize that all other state parks are open for public use."

Additional information on park facilities may be obtained by calling the DNR division of parks and recreation at (612) 296-4776.

DNR Looking For Reports On Snakes, Lizards

When was the last time you saw a timber rattlesnake in Minnesota? Or a wood turtle? The Department of Natural Resources would like to know.

Minnesota has 45 species of reptiles and amphibians, including eight turtles, three lizards, sixteen snakes, five salamanders, three toads and ten frogs, according to Carrol Henderson, DNR nongame wildlife specialist.

During the past three years 65 volunteer observers from throughout Minnesota have sent in 204 observations of snakes, turtles, frogs and other reptiles and amphibians to the nongame program.

"This information is an important addition to our understanding of the state's reptiles and amphibians," said Henderson.

Of the 204 sightings which have been turned in, 77 have been new county records. Among the most sigificant observations was the discovery of wood turtles in the St. Louis river in St. Louis county, a new northern record for the state.

Many other uncommon species have also been found, including the six-lined racerunner (a lizard), blue racer (a snake), smooth green snake and timber rattlesnake. Twelve reports of timber rattlesnakes were received from southeastern Minnesota.

"By adding to our knowledge of the state's reptiles and amphibians," said Henderson, "it is hoped that the information can be used to create a healthy curiosity about our state's reptiles and amphibians."

Any persons with expertise in herpetology, who are interested in reporting observations of reptiles and amphibians to the Department of Natural Resources should write to: Nongame Supervisor, Box 7 Centennial Bldg., 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Be sure to mention the area from which you plan to make the observations, Henderson added.

U of M Makes Plans To Meet Budget Cuts

Proposals to pare $14.1 million off the University of Minnesota 1980-81 budget by selling university-owned land, adding a surcharge to tuition, and making cuts in the internal operating budget and special programs were presented to the board of regents recently.

President C. Peter Magrath presented the plan, made necessary by the projected $195 million deficit in the state's budget, which will leave all state-supported institutions with less money than planned for the year. University receives 38 per cent of its support from the state.

"There is no way we can do this without impairing some part of our program," Magrath told the board. "There is no fat in the university budget."

Magrath told the regents his top priority was to protect all segments of the university directly involved with the teaching of students.

Magrath also told the board that the hiring freeze he imposed on all state-supported non-teaching jobs last week would be lifted no later than September 25, but that decisions to fill open positions would be made on a case-by-case basis.

The plan Magrath presented includes a combination of cutbacks in existing programs and methods of raising new money. Proposals include: a 10 per cent surcharge on tuition for winter and spring quarters, which would bring in $3.5 million; $5 million to be raised through selling or borrowing against university land; $3.72 million in internal budget cuts; and another $2.05 million to be cut from special programs supported by the state.

Among the proposed cuts in these "state specials," are a $621,000 cut in general agricultural research, a $550,000 cut in the agricultural extension service, $136,000 out of medical research, and a $357,000 cut in women's intercollegiate athletics.

"We will have to ask the men's programs to make contributions to minimize the cut in the women's budget," Magrath said.

Committee voted to endorse the "general approaches" presented, but will still have to approve a tuition surcharge and any land sales before such action is taken. Steps to make the other cuts can be taken immediately, Magrath said.

Currently, a Twin Cities campus liberal arts student pays $309 each quarter for tuition. A 10 per cent surcharge would raise that by $31 both winter ans spring quarters.

Kenneth Keller, vice president for academic affairs, said in an interview that while the cuts appear to protect teaching at the expense of research and service, the reality is not that cut and dried.

"Much of the research and service are included in what is called the instructional budget," Keller said. "There is really no way to separate the teaching from the research, so when we protect the instructional budgets we are, to a great extent, also protecting the research budgets.

"The best way to preserve the research structure at the university is to preserve the people who do the research," he said.

Regent David Lebedoff, Minneapolis, said that while all proposed cuts would be painful, cuts in the academic program would be disastrous. "We're looking for cuts, not amputations," he said.

"You can cut off some branches of the tree, but you can't cut off the trunk," Lebedoff said. "If you do, there's nothing left to grow new branches back."

Wild Oats Control With Herbicide Helps In Dry Year

While weed pressure is generally less severe in a dry season like the one we currently experienced, one weed control specialist cautions that whatever moisture is available must be conserved for crop growth, not to help weeds proliferate.

"There's no doubt that dry conditions reduce weed pressure. But farmers should also be mindful that the crop itself provides less competition to weed growth in a drought situation," explains weed control specialist David Hanson. "Every weed present in a field is robbing precious moisture and soil nutrients from the crop."

Hanson points out that local farmers plagued with infestations of wild oats essentially have a choice between cultural and chemical control measures. Recommended cultural control practices include delayed seeding and cultivation, while growers who opt for chemical control may choose between pre- and post-emergent herbicides, he observes.

According to the weed control specialist, both cultural control options have inherent drawbacks. "Delayed seeding offers no control of late-germinating wild oat seeds and also shortens the growing season, thereby causing probable yield losses," Hanson contends, citing the results of three North Dakota state-university field experiments which point to the potential for farmers to experience yield losses ranging from 12.7 to 53.4 per cent when delayed seeding is employed for cultural control of wild oats.

When considering chemical control, Hanson reminds farmers that wild oats are germinating from deeper in the soil profile because that's where their roots need to be to find moisture.

Hanson has also found tillage to be an unwise choice of wild oat control options under unusually dry conditions. "Every trip over the field to plow wild oats under erodes badly-parched soil, and deprives the crop of the moisture that's essential to proper growth," he maintains. "This means that uneven germination and growth will often result when rains do come, and that's going to make the weed control challenge even tougher than usual," he says.

"It's no secret all herbicides work best under good moisture conditions," Hanson continues. "Weeds under drought stress aren't actively growing, and that means farmers won't get optimum performance from some of their chemicals.

"Let's take herbicides which are applied directly on the weed after it breaks ground, for example. Many of those post-emergent chemicals specify that they must be applied at a particular stage of weed growth, say the three to four-leaf stage. But, under dry conditions, irregular germination is often experienced, making the timing of herbicide application a hit and miss proposition at best," he asserts, adding that it can also be very difficult to catch emerged weeds in a period of active growth.

Pre-emergent herbicides are also dependent on moisture for proper performance, Hanson maintains. However, the weeds need not be growing actively when the application is made. "Since herbicide loss under dry conditions is relatively minor, the chemical remains in the soil awaiting the rain it needs for activation. As soon as the moisture arrives, pre-emergent herbicides get to work controlling weeds as they germinate," the weed control specialist claims.

Hanson contends that unpredictable spring weather conditions these last two years have sold many farmers on the benefits of controlling their wild oats in the fall with a granular herbicide. "If you run into wet weather as we did in 1979, the chemical is activated as soon as soil temperatures reach 40 degrees Fahrenheit. There's no need to put your wild oat control program on hold until it's dry enough to get out in the fields," he explains.

"In a dry year, on the other hand, fall-applied herbicides allow you to take advantage of moisture stored in the soil over winter. Fall application is also a good moisture conservation practice, Hanson continues, "since it permits the farmer to maintain a trash or stubble cover during the winter.

The most important task facing farmers in a year like 1980, Hanson believes, its making optimum use of what little moisture they've got. "The best way to keep weeds from stealing precious moisture is to steer clear of cultural practices like deep tillage to plow wild oats under. It also means utilizing a management system that offers the flexibility and extended control you need to deal with irregular weed germination," he concludes.

Glaucoma screenings, a major NSPB community service, are an important way to detect signs of the disease in individuals and to bring the public to an awareness of glaucoma. Over 103,000 persons were screened last year, and nearly 5,000 referred for a medical eye examination.

NEWS OF PETS

RESPONSIBLE PET CARE

Robert Pine, one of the stars of the television show, "CHIPS," serves as honorary chairman of Responsible Pet Care Week, September 21-27, 1980, an observance promoting the proper care of pets.

Robert Pine, Sergeant Joe Getraer of the popular television show, "CHiPs," is encouraging proper pet care year-round with special emphasis during Responsible Pet Care Week which is being held September 21-27 this year.

As honorary chairman of the observance, the actor places special importance on pet care.

A pet owner himself, Pine asserts that, "If you give pets love and attention, you get it back in kind for a long, long time."

He notes the value of pets to everyone, in general, and to children, in particular.

"Pets," he says, "receive the love we give without question; pets are terrifically responsive!"

But, he said, we must all do our part in caring for the pets in return.

"All pets," he believes, "should be taken to the veterinarian regularly in addition to receiving the daily care which is necessary for their health and happiness."

As the CHiPs' star says, when one takes a pet into the home, the entire family gains a special companion, and in return, needs to provide loving care which includes proper feeding, regular exercise and good veterinary care.

Sponsored by the Pet Food Institute, a non-profit trade association, Responsible Pet Care Week is a week-long reminder of the joys and responsibilities of pet ownership. This year's theme is "A Pet Is A Special Friend—Special Friends Need Loving Care!"

Serious Crime Increases In Minnesota

Although serious crime increased 13.9 per cent in Minnesota the first six months of this year compared to a similar period in 1979, violent crimes were down .7 per cent, murders dropped 34 per cent and robbery was down 1.8 per cent, said public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

According to John D. Erskine, bureau of criminal apprehension (BCA) superintendent, crimes against property increased 14.6 per cent. Burglary was up 13.7 per cent and larceny up 16.9 per cent but vehicle theft down 1.7 per cent.

One of the biggest differences was in larceny crimes which increased from 43,774 to 51,163. Burglary totals were up from 17,107 to 19,454.

Overall, total crimes increased to 79,038 from 68,373. Figures do not include the city of St. Paul which reported a 2.2 per cent increase in major crime through mid-August. St. Paul totals, according to the St. Paul police crime analysis unit, were: 13,013 this year; 12,737 last year.

Erskine in the BCA's six month report said total dollar loss from burglaries was $9,263,511 compared to $6,417,015 a year earlier, a 44 per cent jump. Residential burglary was up 63 per cent while the non-residential category increased just 12 per cent.

Robbers netted $1,023,517 compared to $484,983 in 1979, a 111 per cent jump. There were 25 bank robberies during the period this year; 29 in 1979. Losses, however, were reduced to $40,197 from $84,661.

There were 394 rapes reported, compared to 323 in 1979, of which 300 were forcible.

Motor vehicle thefts totaled 5,195 compared to 5,287 the previous year. That total was the lowest since 1974. There were 1,122 "other" type vehicles stolen including snowmobiles, motorcycles, motorscooters, etc. which was 34 per cent higher than the 1979 total of 832. Value of thefts was up three per cent to $11,358,786.

BCA began data collection for arson in May of 1979, under new procedures, thus a comparison with last year is not available. During the first six months of 1980 the state had 674 reported cases. Total value of losses was $1,652,598 with the largest category being "storage" structures.

Petromat And Asphalt Cement Weather Tested

Petromat, a pre-fabricated construction material, is being tested by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to determine its effectiveness to control highway pavement damage.

The material is being tested by Mn-DOT's Detroit Lakes, Duluth and Rochester districts to see how well its installation blocks water entry. When water enters the pavement, freezes and expands, roadway cracking is increased and the pavement suffers additional deterioration.

Petromat is an oil-impregnated fiber mat that is unrolled and installed between the layers of the asphalt pavement material and the driving surface.

Its use is expected to reduce maintenance costs and provide a smoother, safer driving surface.

At Mn-DOT's Duluth district, Petromat is being tested on a one-fifth mile section of U.S. 2 about eight miles west of Proctor. A similar segment of US 2 was resurfaced conventionally to serve as a control section.

Ted Sexton, Duluth resident engineer, said results of the Petromat experiment installed this year may come as early as one or two years because of the weather extremes in the region and the damage US 2 receives from heavily loaded grain trucks traveling to the Duluth-Superior port.

"If cracks show up in the control and not in the Petromat section in the next year or two, we'll know Petromat may be effective," Sexton said.

Sexton said if Petromat works successfully, the major benefits will be less crack filling repair work by Mn-DOT maintenance forces, increased resistance to cracking and longer life for the highway surface.

Mn-DOT's Detroit Lakes district is testing both Petromat and a mixture of asphalt cement and shredded tires to reduce pavement cracking. The asphalt cement-tire mixture is installed in the same manner as the Petromat. Both are being tested on a three-mile section of US 10 near Detroit Lakes.

Petromat and the asphalt-tire mixture are being installed in varying depths within the pavement to determine the most effective way to "sandwich" the materials between the layers of the asphalt pavement.

Effectiveness of the materials in reducing cracking will be measured by comparing photographs taken of the Petromat, asphalt cement and conventional resurfacing sections when they were installed this summer and with future developments in the road surface.

Photographs were taken from a height of 50 feet in continuous strips with the aid of a balloon loaned to the Detroit Lakes district by the University of Minnesota.

S.J. "Bud Wyborny, district materials engineer, said use of the Petromat or the asphalt-tire mixture each add about $10,000 to the cost of resurfacing one mile of highway.

Wyborny said, however, that savings are expected from lower maintenance expenses.

"We expect to save a lot on crack filling, use less time on maintenance and give the public a smoother ride," he said. "We expect savings to come in reduced maintenance costs."

Wyborny said conclusive results of the Petromat and asphalt cement tests are expected in about five years.

Wyborny said the Mn-DOT tests on Petromat are among the first done in extreme northern climates.

Additional Petromat installations will be made by the Detroit Lakes district this year near Mahnomen. Tests on Petromat are also underway on US 63 near Rochester by Mn-DOT's Rochester District.

When you want to sell an antique, you'll probably need a dealer to find a buyer for the item. This means a commission, so remember to subtract this cost from the price of the item to determine its final cash value to you and its value for tax purposes. The cost of an ad you place in a newspaper of magazine in order to sell a collectible is tax deductible, according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

DENTURES — HANDLE WITH CARE

When is the most dangerous time in the life of dentures (sometimes called false teeth - but not by dentists)? The most dangerous period is when your dentures are out of your mouth!

Dentures should be handled carefully when they're out of your mouth. Dropping them even a few inches into a washbowl can break them. Hold your dentures over a towel or a basin half-filled with water. Then, should they slip from your hand, there will be a cushion to help prevent damage.

When dentures are out of your mouth for any length of time, they should be placed in water or a cleansing solution. If they become dry, they can warp. Dentures should NEVER be placed in hot water. Hot water can warp the plastic.

If your denture does break, do not try to put it together yourself. Solvents found in some glues can damage denture plastics and irritate your mouth. It is almost impossible to precisely align broken parts. If you try, the denture will fit poorly and be useless or, even worse, harmful. Go directly to your dentist for repair.

LOOKING FOR A CHURCH?
COME LOOK US OVER
WHAT'S THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH LIKE?

Excellent preaching, centered on the Bible, addressed to the problems you face each day.

A warm and friendly congregation of committed Christians who genuinely care about each other, who will reach out to you in friendship, support, acceptance and love.

Worship that is relaxed, friendly, and informal, always beautiful and reverent without being stuffy or stiff.

Rather than teaching narrow doctrines or religious rules, we are committed to personal freedom, intellectual openness, personal growth, and tolerance of differing points of view.

SUNDAY MORNING WORSHIP 9:45

Designed so the whole family can worship together for part of the service, but allowing the children to go to their own worship service and Sunday School classes prior to the sermon.

Board Responds To Letter On School Issues

mile. The school is reimbursed for students who live more than one mile from the school and ride the school district bus. At this time the board of education does not feel that there would be an additional cost for buses, drivers' salaries and fuel based on current transportation. About 60 per cent of Lincoln students are now being transported.

(6) Wouldn't it also mean that many students in town would have to leave home earlier and get home later each day?

It is our opinion students would not need to leave home earlier nor get home later other than in a few isolated cases. Students may ride the cross town buses to high school with no cost to the student.

(7) When the new AVTI building was being proposed at its present site one of the supporting premises was that it would eliminate the co-mingling of AVTI and high school students. Isn't the location of the present high school building proposal counter-productive toward that end?

No. The proposed building will house grades 9-12 and be a closed campus. Students would not be permitted to leave the building unless excused by the administration. High school and post high school students would not occupy the same building which was the case when the AVTI students were housed in the Lincoln high school facility. The proposed building site would be designed so the athletic field, the playing field and so forth would be between the existing AVTI and new high school facility (about 400 yards apart).

(8) Although inflation is a factor, might it not be a wise investment of money to buy some additional decision making time; especially in light of such factors as a national election with major economic implications, a disastrous year for farmers with a ripple effect on our businessmen, and, a series of anemic profit and loss statements from local industry?

The board of education has discussed the timing of the referendum in light of current economic conditions. It is our opinion that because of the serious building problems, inflation increasing at a rapid rate, and with apparent competitive bidding possibilities this spring, it was in the best interest of the district tax payer to move ahead with the project this fall.

(9) Why is there so much confusion over projecting the approximate cost of the 35 million dollar project (principal plus estimated interest) to each property owner? Aren't those projections usually made with the district valuation data for the current year?

As was indicated in the September 10 issue of the TRF Times, the county auditor is unable to make totally accurate projections because city, county and school district budgets, township levies, or information from the state tax department and changes in assessed evaluations and state aids are not yet available. It is the intent of the board of education and the citizen's committee to present and put forth the most accurate information available on the cost to the home owner, commercial owner and farmer as to approximately what their tax increase will be. This information will be published in the paper and-or other media as accurately and as soon as possible.

(10) Since the real catalyst for student learning is the instructor and not a physical facility with aesthetic pleasingness, would we receive a greater rate of return on our education dollar by holding down our debt service on buildings and paying our teachers more so as to hold and secure a high caliber personnel?

The board of education agrees that the instructor is the most important catalyst in providing good education for students. We also feel that the physical facility adds to the environment necessary for good education.

(11) Is it true that part of a building built in 1956 is being condemned? Shouldn't the longevity of a commercial type structure be considerably longer than 24 years if it received proper maintenance? If not, the proposed new building would be defunct the same year as the last payment was made on the 35 million dollar debt.

No. Portions of the 1956 building are not being condemned. The building is structurally very sound. However, this building was built to house AVTI programs. The building is currently being used for classes for which the building was not designed. We would need to extensively remodel much of the old AVTI facility to make it suitable for various high school classes.

(12) If a remodeling route was taken would it not be advantageous to our community, as local, bonded builders could bid on projects and hence provide local employment?

The magnitude of remodeling and adding additions to the building would be of a large enough scale to attract contractors from many areas. However, we do feel many qualified local contractors, hopefully, would be successful bidders on the new school project being proposed.

(13) Although parents of parochial school students do have a choice as to the institution they prefer to have their children attend, it must be recognized that they provide dual financial assistance to the district, as they provide the education for a sizeable number of students for which the district would otherwise be educationally responsible and, they support the public school with their tax dollars. Would it be fair to laden them with an even heavier tax burden while they conduct their classes in a building older than the one that the public school would be abandoning?

As you indicated, parents have a choice of sending students to parochial or public schools and we work with the parochial school with busing and other educational programs. We do not wish to laden any tax payer with burdens other than necessary to provide quality education to students of our district.

We appreciate Mr. McCullough's concern and interest in the school district building program.

City Tables Decision On Improvements

over the property owners' taxes over the next 15 years with a nine per cent interest rate charged against the unpaid balance of the assessment.

In other council matters discussed last evening, the concept of alley improvements from Fourth to Fifth street between Main and LaBree avenues was approved.

Also, it was resolved that the city would provide water and sewer facilities for the building addition on the north side of the old arena. Apparently, there had been a question in the minds of some as to whether or not the council had discussed or approved a resolution specifying their assistance in the building addition.

It was mentioned that the project hearing on the parking assessment district project would be conducted at 7 p.m. September 22 which will be followed by the regular city council meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Who Can Get Under That Tax Shelter?

Inflation and the two-paycheck marriage are propelling people into higher tax brackets. For some, the response is to seek out tax shelters. What these tax shelters are and who is eligible to take advantage of them are explained by the Minnesota society of certified public accountants.

Plainly stated, there's really no such thing as a tax shelter if you think of it in terms of avoiding income tax. Many tax shelters defer taxes — and many became possible because tax code writers in Congress decided it's in the public interest to encourage the development of certain enterprises such as the search for new energy sources or building low-income housing.

According to the Minnesota society of CPAs, tax shelters are not for everyone. Generally, qualifiers should have a net worth of $150,000, be in the 50 per cent bracket (joint taxable income of at least $60,000), have few outstanding debts, and a yen for adventure!

Oil and gas tax shelters have boomed since the beginning of the energy crisis. If you invest in an exploratory drilling operation which strikes oil, then you could also strike it rich. If not, then your losses may be greater than any tax advantage. A $10,000 investment could net a $9,000 tax deduction because of the high drilling expenses in the first year. But, if there's no oil in your well, you can't claim "depletion" deductions. In fact, the whole venture could be a bust.

Real estate tax shelters provide a "depreciation" deducation — an assumed allowance for reduced value because of age or use of the rental or business property — and are generally less risky. Suppose a group of investors buys an apartment building with each putting up $10,000 and financing the rest. They rent the apartments and claim the building depreciation, interest on the mortgage, and operating expenses as income tax deductions. The depreciation deduction is usually equal to or more than the cash required for the investment. In some low-income housing developments, an investor can take $2 to $3 in tax deductions for every $1 invested. However, if the rents don't cover operating expenses, and the value of the property declines, then the investor is in trouble later on.

When you invest in a cattle-feeding tax shelter, you buy young animals and deduct the cost of their feed, care and maintenance (plus interest and other expenses) until they are fattened up for market in about six months. The risk here is that the price of beef could drop while you are fattening up your stock.

With equipment leasing tax shelters investors buy planes, trains or computers for instance, and lease them to companies which prefer not to buy their own. Despite the hefty investment tax credits and depreciation deductions, the need for the equipment could dry up.

Generally, the higher the tax deduction in the first year, the greater the risk to the investor after the first year. Ask your tax advisor to figure out the potential of a tax shelter over a period of several years. If the shelter is shaky, there won't be much future earning potential. You should also learn what the tax aspects of the venture would be to your estate in case you die. A good tax shelter, CPAs say, should also be a good investment and show a profit in the long run.

Despite the complexity and the risk, however, there are worthwhile tax shelters. You may want to invest in more than one type. In fact, CPAs advise diversification, so you won't lose everything if your oil well comes up dry. With professional advice and adequate resources, tax shelters can help you build capital, act as a hedge against inflation, and defer taxes — which are, after all, inevitable.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Oscar Peterson, who passed away last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Culkins and family, Dennis McCullough and Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Bergdahl were callers last week at the Pat Culkins home.

NEWS OF TOMORROW

FUTURE FOODS FROM UNCLE SAM

COMPRESSED FREEZE DRIED GREEN BEANS

Imagine a time when tin-cans, bottles and jars will be vague memories and a complete meal will fit in your pocket.

Or a time when you can pack the contents of your kitchen cabinet into a breadbox and the only things that go into your refrigerator will be butter, beer and ice.

Sound outlandish? Not really . . . it's the future in foods and it's all happening at the U.S. Army Natick Research and Development Command in Natick, Massachusetts, where lightweight, compact, nutritional foods are being developed for the armed services. Food processing developed here in the form of retortable pouches is used by America's astronauts and aboard nuclear submarines where space is limited and, therefore, vital.

And, although sponsored by the military, many of the food items benefit the general public. According to Dr. Abner S. Salant, head of the Army's Food Engineering Lab at Natick, $35 billion of food industry revenue in the United States relates to military research and development.

The retortable pouches developed here are made of thin aluminum foil/polyester/polypropylene and hold sauces, vegetables, meat entrees, seafoods and just about everything contained in cans or bottles. No refrigeration is required and the pouches' shelf life is approximately 10 years. To heat, just drop into a pot of boiling water or pop into a microwave oven.

Energy savings is another considerable benefit of future foods. Army studies show that energy used to produce, process and deliver frozen vegetables is 60 percent higher than the retort pouch method and also approximately 15 percent higher for canned foods.

Freeze dried foods in compressed form are also being developed at Natick and are destined for consumer use. They're light in weight, easy to store and last for years without refrigeration. In this process, up to 94 percent of the volume and 90 percent of the weight are removed from the foods. The example pictured above shows how 16 cans of green beans are compressed to the size of one container.

By adding water, the fruits, vegetables, meat or complete entrees pop back to their original shapes and retain their natural color, taste and texture.

Merlin the magician would have loved it!

CF Breath Of Life Campaign Sept. 21-27

Every day five new lives begin with Cystic Fibrosis (CF). Every day three lives are lost because of this tragic disease.

These are grim facts, but CF is a grim disease, causing complications mainly in the lungs and digestive system. CF causes the body to produce a glue-like mucus which fills the lungs, creating an environment ideal for lung-damaging infections. Thick mucus also frequently blocks the flow of pancreatic enzymes which are vital to digesting food. CF is still incurable.

Cystic Fibrosis foundation sponsors research to find a cure of control for the disease which takes the lives of half its victims before age 21. To help raise funds for this vital research and for patient care and education programs benefiting children with CF, the Minnesota chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis foundation conducts its annual Breath of Life campaign and other special events.

According to Ron Swain, president of the Minnesota chapter, "Research is the key to the future for children and young people with CF and care and treatment are the necessities for the present. Your community's support will help buy time through care and give hope through research to children and young adults for whom time is running out. September 21-27 has been designated as national cystic fibrosis week and the post office will cancel all letters with "conquet cystic fibrosis". I urge you to join us in the fight against Cystic Fibrosis and to help give a kid some breathing room."

According to Swain, progress has been made, but more needs to be accomplished. "In 1955, when the CF foundation was established, a child born with the disease stood a slim chance of living to school age. Today, with early diagnosis and comprehensive treatment, these children are living longer, healthier lives. But this progress isn't enough. CF is still the leading genetic killer of children."

One of more than 100 CF foundation chapters in the United States, the Minnesota chapter is holding its annual statewide Breath of Life campaign during the month of September. President Swain urges everyone to support this campaign because "Each contribution helps to find a cure . . . to buy time before it is too late."

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brekke, chairpersons for Plummer, announce the appointment of eight volunteer leaders who will assist in conducting this year's Breath of Life campaign. They are Clara Helley, Elayne Pahlen, Peggy Hesse, Loretta Hesse, Connie Nelson, Micky Brekke, Jay Brekke and Brian Brekke.

Minnesota chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis foundation is proud that these citizens will be involved in the Breath of Life campaign this year. We would like to change the fact that Cystic Fibrosis is still the number one genetic killer of children in this country and there is still no cure. We hope that residents of Plummer will volunteer to join this committee in their efforts to provide a better future for lung-damaged children and adults here and throughout the country," Swain said.

More volunteers are needed, if you can and are willing to help, call 465-4481. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

NEWS OF BEAUTY

June Posen's
Beauty Recipes
Food for Thought

Eating right contributes to more than just a well-rounded figure. A woman's diet affects her total metabolism, as well as her psychological and emotional well-being. Understanding the foods you eat and how they influence the functioning of your body is the first step toward determining a daily diet program and building a more beautiful you, says June Posen, president of the Cosmetique Beauty Club, a prestigious national beauty service.

Body Building Proteins

Every well-balanced diet must contain protein. Proteins are necessary for the growth, repair and maintenance of body tissues. Furthermore, they encourage muscle development and create an all-over feeling of fitness and well-being.

The body derives proteins from 22 amino acids. Sixteen are manufactured internally, so you must obtain the rest from outside sources. Eat small amounts of protein every three hours instead of one or two large portions daily.

Food is considered a complete protein when it contains a proper amount of the eight essential amino acids not produced by your body. Meat, fish, eggs, cheese, poultry and milk are the main sources, yet are often high in calories, cholesterol and fats.

Excellent sources of protein that contain fewer calories and little or no cholesterol are the complementary proteins. These include most vegetables, whole grains, wheat, rice, beans and nuts. Such foods contain varying amounts of amino acids, so the most nutritious diet consists of complementary proteins in conjunction with complete proteins.

Getting Your Share

Since the body cannot store amino acids, your protein reserve usually is depleted within three hours. Therefore, women should consume small amounts of protein daily with each meal. Nutritionists recommend that proteins should comprise about 15 percent of a day's calorie intake.

To determine your individual daily protein requirement, double your actual weight, then divide this number by five. The result is the number of protein grams necessary for a balanced diet. You can learn additional nutrition tips in Cosmetique Beauty Club packages, personally-designed beauty kits containing specially-priced, name brand cosmetics. These are available to members of the Club. Membership applications are available in national women's magazines or with a toll-free call to 800/621-8822; in Illinois, call 800/972-3505.

Of course, before you drastically change your eating habits, consult your personal physician for advice on meal planning.

Soon, your body will reap the benefits of a properly-executed diet. Nothing is more basic to exhilarating good looks and health than sensible, balanced nutrition!

Johnsons To Do Mission Work In Madagascar

Randy and Eileen Johnson, members of First Lutheran church, Middle River, have accepted a call from the division of world missions inter-church cooperation of the American Lutheran church to serve as missionaries to Madagascar for a two-year term, effective October 1.

A commissioning service will be held for them at First Lutheran church in Middle River Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

Both are graduates of Middle River high school. Randy has been employed by the Thief River Falls school system for the past four years, currently as a science teacher at Franklin middle school. He will continue his career on the mission field, teaching high school science and math to the children of mission families.

Eileen has worked at the Falls day activity center in Thief River Falls with the preschool program. Her assignments on the mission field have not been defined, but she also expects to be working in the school system.

During the couple's residency in Thief River Falls, they have served as satellite home parents for juvenile delinquents.

Time of departure for Madagascar depends on the time required for completion of travel arrangements. Meanwhile, they will report to DWMIC in Minneapolis for orientation and study of the Malagasy and French languages.

Qualifications Outlined For State Troopers

Applications are being accepted for state patrol trooper positions through September 29, according to Colonel D. Roger Ledding, chief of the patrol, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Because state law now requires higher standards for state troopers and other peace officers, only four groups are eligible to apply," said Ledding. To apply, persons must meet "one" of the following qualifications:

—Have successfully completed a post-secondary academic instruction and skills training course in law enforcement certified by the Minnesota peace officer standards and training board and have passed the P.O.S.T. board academic and skills licensing examinations and the required first aid course for full-time peace officers;

—Have successfully completed a P.O.S.T. board-approved basic police training course and have passed the P.O.S.T. licensing examination for full-time peace officers;

—Possess a valid Minnesota peace officer's license; or have completed basic police training and have certification as a full-time peace officer in a state with which Minnesota has reciprocity and have passed the P.O.S.T. board exemption examination.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, at least age 18, in good physical condition and without any emotional or mental conditions that might hamper performance as a law enforcement officer.

Persons applying must also be free of any felony convictions and have a valid Minnesota driver license or be able to obtain one.

Applications must be received no later than 4:30 p.m. September 29 at the State Department of Employee Relations, Space Center Building, Third Floor, 444 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Applicants selected will be required to pass written and oral exams, physical and agility tests and a background investigation before being admitted to the 11-week trooper candidate school next February in St. Paul. Actual hiring as a trooper will be done after a person successfully completes training.

Application forms are available at State Job Services offices; through the State Patrol Training Center, 1900 W. County Road I, St. Paul, MN 55112, 612-636-4990; or at any of the many patrol district offices including Thief River Falls, Zeh and State Ave. 218-681-3741.

Eye Disorders Common Among Preschoolers

An estimated 468,000 preschool children — nearly half a million throughout the United States — have eye disorders. Many of these defects are most effectively treated in the early years. One of the eye problems of greatest concern, amblyopia ("lazy eye"), may lead to permanent vision loss if not discovered and treated before age six.

To help identify the one child in every 20 who has an eye problem, the national society to prevent blindness (NSPB) offers the home eye test for preschoolers.

Beamed at the parents of the nearly 9½ million children in the nation ages three through five, the "test" is a simple do-it-yourself way to check a child's sight at home. It is designed for children who haven't yet learned alphabet recognition and can be presented as a game to play. The kit is self-contained, with an eye chart; directions for giving the test and interpreting the results.

Children usually don't complain about vision problems since they have no way of knowing how well they should see. The Society warns that a lazy eye is usually not obvious through appearance or symptoms.

The screening test involves "reading" the chart with the letter E turned around in different directions. The child points in the direction he or she sees the "legs" of the E pointing. Each eye is tested separately, with the other eye covered. The size of the E's gets smaller and smaller, moving from the top row of the chart to the bottom. Conditions such as nearsightedness can also cause a child to fail the test.

To children, it's the "Pointing E. Game." To parents and teachers it's often the first indication of a vision problem, and a signal that the child should have an eye exam. Parents of children who fail the test are advised to obtain professional eye exams for their youngsters.

Almost a million copies of the home eye test have been distributed each year since its introduction in 1972, the society reports, dramatically increasing the number of children whose eyes are being checked in the crucial early years. With some three million more children reaching their third birthday every year, the need to find those with vision problems continues.

The home eye test for preschoolers is available in English or Spanish. For a free copy of the test or other information about children's eye care, write to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Don't Distract "Seeing Eye" Dogs On Duty

Don't obey that impulse — if it urges you to pet or interfere with a seeing eye dog.

This is the plea of the Morristown, New Jersey, school where the famous dog guides and their blind masters are taught. Attempting to help a "seeing eye" graduate across the street or around obstacles is distracting to dog and blind person, according to the school, which considers that the greatest safety hazard encountered by its graduates is the interference of the kindly-intentioned public.

"The seeing eye dog is a safe and capable guide when properly handled," says Elliott Averett, president of the school. "While most people realize this, they sometimes, in a mistaken effort to be helpful, can create a dangerous situation. Grabbing the arm of a blind person, taking hold of the dog's harness or shouting words of warning, all have much the same effect as might occur if a passenger in a fast-moving car grabbed the steering wheel or yanked the arm of the driver."

"Petting a seeing eye dog is equally distracting," Averett adds. "Nothing could be more natural than the desire to pat these loyal and steadfast guides," he says, "but they cannot be expected to keep their attention on speeding traffic, if at the same time they are receiving the affectionate pats of passersby. A deep, mutual understanding between dog and master is essential at all times to safe and efficient work," Averett states. "If at any time they appear to be in doubt as to their whereabouts, a sighted person may simply inquire, 'May I be of service?' If blind persons desire help, they can then ask for it."

Each dog learns its job through an intensive three months course at the school in Morristown, after which qualified blind persons spend a month at the school, working with their new guides, learning to interpret the signals received through the dog's U-shaped harness and to direct the dog by means of spoken commands. It is the dog's responsibility to take master where he or she wishes to go in spite of traffic, pedestrians, curbstones, manholes and other obstacles.

A national philanthropy, "The Seeing Eye" was founded in 1929. Its work is supported largely through endowment income, bequests and contributions. Located 30 miles west of New York, it has provided 7,600 dogs in 50 years, is the oldest and largest organization of its kind in North America and has no branches. Its name is registered in the patent offices of the United States and Canada and only those dogs trained at the school in Morristown, N.J., are correctly termed seeing eye dogs. Seeing eye dogs are serving or have served throughout the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Strandquist

Mrs. Irene Larson, Strandquist
436-2690

Fern Kronz received the sad news Monday morning that her brother-in-law, Donald Lindquist of Antioch, Ca. had passed away.

Eva Bernard of Karlstad was a Saturday supper guest at the Paul Anderson home. Mr. and Mrs. John Wetterlund and Heather visited at the Paul's Saturday evening. Peter Thompson visited Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Anderson, Julia Kettelson and Ruth Storeby visited at the Kittelson and Willard Renstrom homes this past week.

Visitors at Mildred Nelsons this past week have been Evelyn Kline, Ginger Kaiser, Amy Wollin, Annie Smeby, Elmira Brekke, Anna Brekke, Merlyn Nelson and sons.

Sophie K. Benson drove to Minneapolis Aug. 23 to meet Fritz and Ericka Wess (cousins) from Vienna Austria. She then took them on a trip through 11 western states. Some of the highlights on the trip were Grand Canyon, Big Horn Mts., Las Vegas and numerous other places of interest. They returned here Thursday and will be spending a month here in the United States visiting among their many cousins.

Saturday evening supper guests at the Julius Kleinwachter home were Fritz and Ericka Weiss of Vienna, Austria, Sophie Benson of St. Paul, Paul and Shirley Kleinwachter of Minneapolis, Betty and Terry Pietruszewski also visited later that evening.

Paul and Shirley Kleinwachter of Minneapolis spent the weekend at the Julius Kleinwachter home. Jerome and Barb Berggren visited there on Wednesday evening.

I liked the expression Pastor Moyor made before the Baptismal service Sunday morning for little Laura Esther Rud, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Rud. Pastor asked the congregation to sing the first stanza of "Onward Christian Soldiers" and then added little Laura was being brought into the service of the Lord. At first we are trained and disciplined as soldiers of God and later when we are equipped and ready we go out as soldiers and warriors of the cross of Christ. Mr. and Mrs. Vance Lefrooth and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Rud were sponsors.

Visitors at the Ray Henrickson home this past week have been Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kujava of Badger, Mrs. Joe Novak of Greenbush, Gordon Berggren, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Chwialkowski and boys, Carl Hugg and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Henrickson, Doug and Gena.

Mrs. Edward Gilberts and Sister Caroline of Thief River Falls visited Emma Schey a week ago Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Olson of Newfolden visited Emma Sunday evening after attending the family league at Hegland.

Mrs. Grant Bothum of Kennedy, Bertha Palm, Margaret Lefrooth, Mabel and Hulda Stromberg visited at Earl Sihlbergs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kasprowicz visited at the Elphie Adlis home Wednesday evening.

Winners Saturday evening, Sept. 13 of the Saturday night drawings were Peter Kasprowicz and Mildred Nelson who each received $5 certificates; Mrs. Raymond Kostrozewski's name was drawn for the third $5 but she was not present so next week it will be two $5's and one $10 for give away.

Mrs. Donald Nelson, David, Jill and Janelle of rural Warren and Irene Larson were Saturday supper guests after the rummage sale in Strandquist at the Donald Larson home.

40,000 Crib Related Accidents Reported

At least 200 of 40,000 crib-related accidents in the United States last year resulted in death for their tiny victims. And according to Ralph Franciosi M.D., pediatric pathologist at a Minneapolis hospital, all are preventable.

"Younger infants are often victims of suffocation or entrapment," says Dr. Franciosi. "If the mattress does not fit the crib frame tightly, a baby can roll over and wedge his head into the space. If he's unable to free himself, he may suffocate there. Another common accident for young infants is to become trapped between the crib slats."

"As babies become older and more coordinated, they start climbing and jumping around the crib. The majority of crib-related accidents occur when babies fall from the crib."

Dr. Franciosi says other potentially dangerous situations arise because of items placed in or near the crib. "Babies are often put to bed with a pacifier strung around their necks with cords. The cord can easily catch on a loose screw or on a bedpost, strangling the baby." Dr. Franciosi also cautions against attaching toys to the crib with a cord.

Most crib-related accidents, however, can be attributed to older cribs. These cribs are often inadequately repaired.

"We saw an eight-month-old whose crib was held together with baling wire," says Dr. Franciosi. "He was active enough so it eventually gave way and he became trapped near the endboard and was strangled."

Also, cribs built before 1974 may not meet consumer product safety commission regulations. Guidelines require that crib slats be no more than 2⅜ inches apart to guard against infant entrapment. Locks and latches on the dropside of the crib must be safe and secure from accidental release. No rough edges are permitted on any metal hardware used on the crib.

Whether buying a new crib or repairing an older crib, several precautions should be taken.

New Cribs:

—Be sure the mattress you buy fits the crib snugly. If you can fit more than two figers between the mattress and the crib, the mattress is too small.

—Buy a crib with a latch or lock that can't be easily tripped. Latches should require two actions to open or close, or at least 10 pounds of force.

—Buy a crib with as large a distance as possible between the top of the side rail and the mattress support to discourage your baby from climbing out.

—Check the crib's metal parts and the edges of the crib frame for rough or sharp edges.

—Remove all plastic packaging material and destroy it immediately.

—If the mattress is too small for the crib, buy bumper pads. Make sure they (a) run around the entire crib, (b) snap or tie into place, and (c) have at least six straps. Trim off any excess length on the straps to prevent the baby from chewing on them. Bumpers should be used until your baby can pull up to a standing position.

Older Cribs:

—Be sure all slats, bolts and other fasteners are in place and in good repair. Check with the manufacturer for replacement parts, if possible.

—If you repaint or refinish the crib, use only paints or finishes labeled non-toxic and safe for use on cribs.

—Since older cribs have too much space between slats, bumper pads are especially important. Follow instructions described above. Also use bumper pads when the mattress is too small for the crib.

Additional Precautions:

—Set the mattress at its lowest position as soon as your child can pull to a standing position.

—Replace any damaged teething rails — they can cut your child's mouth, face and eyes.

—Avoid leaving toys or other articles in or near the crib that your child could use to help climb out.

—If used, crib rail extenders should not make the side rails taller than the end panels of the crib. They should have no easily removeable nuts or bolts, and their slats should be narrowly spaced.

—Avoid using the crib as a playpen.

—Avoid using the crib once the height of the side rail is less than three-fourths of your child's height.

Remember that these are only precautions. Your child is ingenious. There is no substitute for close parental supervision.

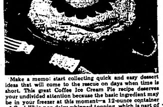
PIE? IT'S ICE CREAM & COOKIES



Make a memo: start collecting quick and easy dessert ideas that will come to the rescue on days when time is short. This great Coffee Ice Cream Pie recipe deserves your undivided attention because the basic ingredient may be in your freezer at this moment—a 12-ounce container of Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, which is part of both the filling and unique crust. So, reach into the freezer for that handy container of frozen whipped topping, and if you have coffee ice cream on hand, so much the better. Combine and spoon into a scrumptious Whipped Topping-Cookie Crust to freeze for at least 4 hours. The crust, made in advance and frozen, combines the crunch of crumbled chocolate sandwich cookies with the smoothness of thawed frozen whipped topping. Garnish with pecan halves or chocolate curls, if desired. Enjoy compliments at serving time!

COFFEE ICE CREAM PIE

1 pint coffee ice cream, softened
1 container (8 oz.) Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed*
Whipped Topping-Cookie Crust

*Or use about 3-1/2 cups.

Place ice cream in bowl and stir until smooth. Fold in whipped topping, blending until smooth. Freeze in bowl, if necessary, just until mixture will mound. Then spoon into Whipped Topping-Cookie Crust. Freeze until firm, at least 4 hours. Garnish with pecan halves, if desired. Store any leftover pie in freezer.

Whipped Topping-Cookie Crust. Gently fold 10 chocolate sandwich cookies, coarsely crumbled (about 1 cup) into 1 container (4 oz.) or 1-3/4 cups Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed. Spread over bottom and up sides of 9-inch pie plate, forming a 1-inch border around edge. Freeze until firm.

HAZEL . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rude were Thursday evening guests at the Jim Lambert home and on Sunday afternoon the Rudes visited with Inga Lappegaard.

The 75th anniversary celebration of Telemarken congregation was well attended. In the forenoon there were worship services with Rev. Harold Peterson of Avoca, Ia., as guest speaker. A delicious dinner was served by women of the church and in the afternoon an interesting program was presented with Alice Brorby Lendobeja reading a history of the congregation. Following the program, lunch featuring diamond anniversary cake was served. Congratulations are extended to members of Telemarken on the many years of faithful work in the Lord's service, the beautiful remodeling in the basement and a celebration very nicely planned.

LHS, NCC Football Doubleheader

First of two football doubleheaders will be played on the Thief River Falls athletic field this weekend when the Lincoln high school and Northland community college teams share the facility.

The Prowlers will host Staples in a 7:30 p.m. nonconference game Friday. Thief River Falls, after opening the 1980 season with back-to-back wins over Grand Forks Red River 12-7 and Detroit Lakes 32-21, will be trying to bounce back from a 30-6 defeat at the hands of Class AA power Grand Rapids last week. Staples, also 2-1, is coming off a 14-7 victory over East Grand Forks of the Northwest Athletic Conference.

Saturday afternoon the field belongs to the Northmen who will entertain Mesabi (Virginia) in a 1:30 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division game. Northland will be trying to correct a ton of mistakes made last week in a 19-14 season-opening loss to Crookston in front of a good-sized crowd here — maybe the largest turnout ever to watch a Northland football game in Thief River Falls. Mesabi opened with a 7-2 error-filled win over Itasca.

Lincoln and Northland will stage another football doubleheader weekend October 10-11 when they'll both be playing Fergus Falls squads in homecoming games.

Only other Lincoln home game is an October 17 date against East Grand Forks. Northland will be at home October 25 vs. Brainerd and November 1 vs. Bismarck.

Miscellaneous

+Detroit Lakes quarterback Dan Douglas, who completed 14 of 26 passes for 167 yards in the Lakers' 32-21 defeat at the hands of Thief River Falls a week earlier, was 16-for-37 for 236 yards against Bemidji Friday, but the Lakers lost again, 19-12. Detroit Lakes had to pass since the Lakers could muster just 24 yards on 18 carries against the Lumberjacks.

+University of Minnesota football team will be featured on ABC-TV Saturday when the Gophers challenge No. 2 rated Ohio State in the network's national NCAA broadcast, starting at 12:30 p.m. It's the first time the Gophers have been on national TV since a 1976 game against Michigan. However, viewers here apparently won't get a chance to see the game. KTHI-TV in Fargo (Channel 11), the area ABC affiliate, is scheduled to carry an ABC regional broadcast that day between North Dakota State and the University of Nebraska-Omaha. The Bison-Bears game was switched from an original 7:30 p.m. kickoff to the afternoon to accommodate television.

+Friday's Thief River Falls vs. Staples football game has been designated as parents' night for the Prowlers and their parents. The parents of the players will be served refreshments in the Lincoln cafeteria from 6-7 p.m. and will be invited into the Prowlers' lockerroom before the team leaves for the Thief River Falls athletic field. Halftime introduction of the parents will also be made.

+When Thief River Falls defeated Bemidji 50-33 Tuesday in a girls high school swimming meet at Bemidji, the Lumberjills, coached by former Thief River Falls swimmer Mark Storhaug, were without the services of eighth grader Mary Lauderbaugh, expected to be one of the team's top performer after scoring 84½ points last fall when she set a varsity record as a seventh grader in the 500-yard freestyle. But Lauderbaugh, a St. Philips school student, has been ruled ineligible by the Minnesota State High School League under the MSHSL provision that only junior high students who are enrolled in a continuing school system governed by the same superintendent are eligible for varsity competition. Bemidji is one of the few cities in the state with an eight-grade parochial elementary school and no parochial high school. She swam with the Bemidji junior varsity yesterday because the MSHSL does not govern junior high sports.

+ Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational cross country meet will be held Thursday, Oct. 2, at 4 p.m. on the Thief River Country Club golf course. The meet, which will feature competition for junior high, junior varsity, girls varsity and boys varsity runners, has been moved up from an original October 7 date.

LHS Swimmers Defeat Bemidji

Thief River Falls out-scored Bemidji—50-33 Tuesday afternoon in a girls high school swimming meet at Bemidji, spoiling the coaching debut of former Lincoln high school swimming star Mark Storhaug, beginning his first year as coach of the Lumberjills.

The Prowlers won seven of the 11 events for their second dual meet win of the year. A week earlier they swamped Detroit Lakes 124-47.

"It was a real team effort. They swam well and made some nice improvements — that's what we're looking for," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad.

Thief River Falls, in addition to starting and ending the meet with relay wins, received individual first place finishes from Betsie Hallstrom, 27.1 in the 50-yard freestyle; Shelley McGann, 1:13.3 in the 100-yard butterfly; Brenda Lund, 226.65 points in diving; Franki Kuyath, 6:31.4 in the 500-yard freestyle and Robyn Dallmann, who swam a 1:20.0 to tie Bemidji's Deb Trihey for first place in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The meet started on a surprisingly strong start for the Prowlers when Sarah Green, Joan Glauque, Dallmann and Hallstrom swam a 2:06.6 in the 200-yard medley relay.

It ended with Lund, McGann, Glauque and Mary Geatz swimming a 4:19.8 in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Thief River Falls was a nearly identical 52-31 winner over Bemidji in the junior varsity competition that accompanied the varsity meet.

Fargo North is expected to provide strong opposition Saturday when the Prowlers and Bruins meet in a 2 p.m. dual in the Franklin middle school pool.

Cards Defeat Huskies 2-0 In Volleyball

The youthful Huskies, with just one senior, along with a junior two sophomores, a freshman and an eighth grader in the starting line-up, fell to 0-3 with the loss.

Goodridge will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday, beginning with the junior varsity match at 7 p.m. The Huskies will take part in an invitational tournament at Grygla Saturday at 2 p.m., along with Plummer, Middle River and the host Eagles.

A.G. Edwards

UND Trainer Will Address Sports Boosters

A. J. Edwards, head trainer at the University of North Dakota, will be the special guest speaker Monday at the 7:30 p.m. Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meeting in the Lincoln high school cafeteria.

Football coaches John Schmitz of Lincoln and John Helley of Northland community college will also be on hand at the meeting.

A special invitation is going out to all area coaches, who are being invited to hear Edwards talk about the treatment of athletic injuries. Parents of athletes are urged to attend the program.

Edwards, a native of Mt. Carmel, Ill., was a swimmer at Southern Illinois University. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education from SIU in 1964 and a Master of Arts degree from Central Michigan University in 1967. He became a licensed physical therapist in 1969 after study at the University of Pittsburgh. He is a certified athletic trainer.

After coaching as a high school coach in Wisconsin, Edwards became head trainer at Ferris (Mich.) State in 1966-68. In 1969-70 he was associated with the Detroit Sports Medicine clinic, working with the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Pistons. From 1969-73 he was assistant head trainer at the United States Air Force Academy. He was named head trainer at UND in 1973. Last August he served as trainer for a U.S. college all-star basketball team that toured South Africa.

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meeting is open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Northmen, Norsemen To Meet Saturday Afternoon

Iron Range portion of the 1980 Northland community college football schedule begins Saturday when the Northmen tackle Mesabi in a 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division game on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

The Virginia-based Norsemen will be the first of three straight Iron Range opponents for the Northmen, who will travel to Ely next week to face Vermilion and will head that way again the following Saturday to play Hibbing.

Northland opened its 1980 season last Saturday by dropping a mistake-filled 19-14 game to area rival Crookston. Mesabi began with a 7-2 win over Itasca, a game that apparently had just as many errors as the one played here, with 12 fumbles, wind and rain slowing down play at Grand Rapids Saturday night.

Itasca had a chance to pull it out at the end, reaching the Mesabi six yard line late in the fourth quarter thanks to a pass interference call against the Norsemen. But after three running plays took the ball down to the Mesabi one, Itasca came up short on a fourth down plunge into the line with one minute left in the game.

Itasca held a 218-141 edge in total offensivve yards, but lost four of eight fumbles, had a pass picked off and had a punt blocked. Mesabi fumbled four times, but got three of them back.

Northland didn't fumble the ball once against Crookston, but did commit a bundle of other mistakes: throwing four interceptions, picking up 11 penalties and had three poor punt snaps that prevented the Northmen from getting the kick away. Crookston scored after every one of those bad snaps to win the game.

"Mistakes are part of the early season jitters, I guess," reflected Northland coach John Helley. "I don't think there's anything in our game plan that wouldn't have worked if we would have concentrated and eliminated those mistakes. We're just going to have to try to work them out. I thought the kids played hard, but they just hurt themselves with their own mistakes."

Helley is hoping for another strong Northland defensive effort, like the one that recovered five fumbles, intercepted a pass, scored two touchdowns and held Crookston's wishbone offense to 165 yards. But improvement has to come from the Northland offense that netted just 60 yards Saturday — including a minus-10 yards on the ground.

But a pair of potential offensive threats are still questionable. Lyndell Knight is limping on a sore knee and Ken Crouch is awaiting for an administrative transfer problem to be ironed out. They're both wide receivers.

Prowlers Host Staples Friday Night . . .

LHS Coaches Looking For Defensive Improvement

When the weekly Northwest Athletic Conference statistics arrived this week, Lincoln high school football coach John Schmitz didn't like what he saw. There, in black and white, his Prowlers ranked dead last in three of the four NWAC defensive statistics.

After three nonconference games the Prowlers have given up more points (58); more yards per game (326.3); and more rushing yards per game (228.3) than any other NWAC team. For comparison, Crookston has given up just 19 points; East Grand Forks has surrendered a league-low 179 yards per game; and Bemidji has limited opponents to just 66 yards rushing per game.

Only in the passing department, where Bemidji underwent a heavy aerial attack at Detroit Lakes last week, are the Prowlers not ranked last in the NWAC defensive charts. And even their 98 yards per game is close to the Lumberjacks' 119-yard average.

Defense, Schmitz acknowledged at the start of the 1980 season, was an area of concern for the Thief River Falls coaching staff. "And it's still very much of a concern," he said this week. "We've got to start stopping people. We can't expect to give up that kind of yardage and expect to win many ball games."

Schmitz hopes to see some of that improvement Friday night when the Prowlers host Staples in a 7:30 p.m. nonconference game on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

"We're looking at some things this week," mentioned Schmitz, indicating there may be some shifting of personnel on defense following the Prowlers' 30-6 defeat at Grand Rapids. "Our three deep people (defensive backs) made 14 tackles Friday, and that's way too many. Somewhere up front we have to tighten our belts."

The Prowlers will be trying to stop a Staples wishbone offense that features 5-11, 215-pound fullback Greg Anglin, "one heck of a good football player," according to Schmitz' scouting reports.

Staples will match Thief River Falls' 2-1 record Friday. The Cardinals opened with a 28-8 win over Pelican Rapids, dropped a close 16-14 decision to Heart O' Lakes Conference favorite Perham and then bounced back to take East Grand Forks 14-7 last week.

A year ago Thief River Falls crushed Staples 37-0, holding the Cardinals without a first down and a minus-two yards total offense.

"They apparently have a good football team; much improved over last year," indicated Schmitz. "We're going to have to play well."

This will be the fifth meeting between the two. The series is deadlocked at two games apiece, with Staples posting one-point wins over Thief River Falls in 1976 (29-28) and 1977 (15-14) before the Prowlers won 26-12 in 1978 and then added last year's one-sided decision.

Pirates, Otters Meet In NWAC Football Opener

It'll be the beginning of the end Friday when Crookston hosts Fergus Falls to open the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference high school football schedule. The game will mark the start of the final year of operation for the NWAC, which will be losing Crookston and East Grand Forks at the end of the season. The Pirates and Green Wave announced earlier they were withdrawing from the conference because of dwindling enrollment figures that officials feel put them at a disadvantage in trying to compete against Class AA-size Bemidji and Fergus Falls.

Ironically, Crookston may leave with back-to-back conference titles. The Pirates were unbeaten NWAC champions in 1979 when they reached the Class A state football playoff semifinals. They're off to a 3-0 start this fall and conference coaches have picked them to repeat their championship finish in 1980. Fergus Falls, meanwhile, is struggling with a 1-2 mark.

Crookston belted Park Rapids 28-0 last Friday in one of three NWAC vs. Mid-State Conference match-ups. Bemidji took Detroit Lakes 19-12 but East Grand Forks fell to Staples 14-7. Elsewhere, Thief River Falls absorbed a 30-6 defeat at the hands of Class AA power Grand Rapids and Fergus Falls dropped a 16-0 game to Litchfield.

It'll be another round of NWAC vs. Mid-State games this Friday when Staples (2-1) visits Thief River Falls (2-1), Park Rapids (2-1) travels to Bemidji (2-1) and Detroit Lakes (0-3) drives to East Grand Forks (2-1).

Through three weeks of nonconference play, Northwest Athletic Conference teams have won 10 of 15 starts against outside competition, a .666 winning percentage.

+Steve Johnson of Crookston leads the NWAC overall scoring and rushing statistics with 40 points and 419 yards. Pat Erhart of Bemidji is a distant second in both categories with 22 points and 289 yards. Thief River Falls' Scott Wiebolt is third in both charts with 18 points and 274 yards, including a conference-best 9.5 average per carry.

+Jeff Strandell of East Grand Forks leads the NWAC in passing yardage, hitting 10 of 30 attempts for 208 yards. Dan Snustad of Fergus Falls is 15-for-38 for 195 yards.

+In the team category, Crookston is averaging 301.7 yards per game on offense, followed by Bemidji 290.0; Thief River Falls 248.7; East Grand Forks 226.7; and Fergus Falls 202.3. East Grand Forks is giving up just 179.0 yards on defense per game, followed by Bemidji 185.3; Crookston 201.7; Fergus Falls 208.3; and Thief River Falls 326.3.

Top Of State Leaders Clash Friday In Area Nine-Man Play

Hallock and Argyle, unbeaten leaders in the Top of State Conference, will clash Friday at Hallock to highlight area nine-man high school football action this weekend.

In a Saturday night Top of State Conference contest, Marshall County Central will be playing Tri-County high school at Karlstad. Marshall County Central owns a share of the conference lead with Hallock and Argyle, but unlike the Bears and Eagles, the Nordics are 2-1 overall — losing a season-opening 14-0 decision at Hallock, a nonconference game since the two will meet again later this season.

Last week's results saw Marshall County Central blitz Stephen 32-12, Argyle handled Greenbush 26-16 and Hallock drilled Tri-County 32-8.

Oklee and McIntosh-Winger remained unbeaten last week when the Bobcats got by Gonvick 8-0 and the Scots drubbed Plummer 52-0. But Mentor dropped Erskine from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 24-18 decision while Middle River defeated Goodridge 26-16 and Clearbrook clobbered Grygla 44-14.

Mentor also remains unbeaten, but the Trojans are 2-0 because of a season-opening postponement at Goodridge due to the weather. That game will be made up Tuesday at Goodridge.

Steve Rude of McIntosh-Winger is the scoring leader in the North Tri County Conference with six touchdowns for 36 points. Wayne Pulsord of Clearbrook has 26 points; Scott McKeever, Middle River, 24; Rodney Hill, Clearbrook, 22; Francis Pries, Jr., Erskine, 22; Paul Ostby, Clearbrook, 21; and Todd Bruggeman, Mentor, 20.

Scott LaBine of Argyle is the leading scorer in Top of State Conference play with 36 points. Doug Schindele of Stephen has 22; Scott Norland, Hallock, 18; Jay LaBine, Argyle, 18; Allen Lindemoen, Marshall County Central 18; and Bill Johnson, Marshall County Central, 14.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS on Friday morning were Wes Rud of Strandquist and Les Yonke of Thief River Falls who shot this black bear northeast of Middle River. The two men had gone into the area on the suggestion that bear were there but had done no baiting. While crouching under a tree to get out of the drizzle, they saw the bear stand up about 200 yards away and made their shots count. They estimated weight of the bear at 300 pounds.

Defending Region 8AA Volleyball Champions

Beaten By EGF, Lincoln Girls Await Moorhead

A 2-0 loser at East Grand Forks Tuesday night, the Lincoln high school volleyball team must regroup in a hurry to face two-time defending Region 8AA champion Moorhead Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

"We made all the mistakes," said Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss after East Grand Forks beat her team 18-11, 18-10. "If we play like that Thursday. . ."

The defeat dropped Thief River Falls' season record to 2-4.

"East Grand Forks is better than I expected," admitted Stauss. "They played a real good defensive net game. We played a terrible offensive game; we were running around and couldn't get anything organized. We were on defense all night."

Most of the mistakes, however, were correctable, said Stauss, who praised the play of junior LeAnn Paetznick. "She had some really nice spikes," pointed out the Thief River Falls coach.

The Prowlers served a season-low 79 per cent in the first game, but improved that to a 90 per cent success figure in the second game.

East Grand Forks also took the junior varsity and C squad matches for a clean sweep. The Green Wave won the junior varsity contest 18-20, 18-12, 18-12 to drop Thief River Falls to 3-3 for the year and posted an 18-11, 20-18 decision over the winless Thief River Falls C squad.

Thursday's match against Moorhead will be parent's night for the Lincoln volleyball squad. Competition starts with the C squad match at 5:30, followed by the junior varsity at 6:30.

Thief River Falls will participate in a tournament at Roseau Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

NCC Volleyball Squad Opens Season At Home

Northland community college women's volleyball team begins its 1980 season this weekend by hosting a pair of multiple team events in the Northland gym.

Coached by Deb Jacobson, the Northwomen will take on Crookston and Rainy River in a 5 p.m. triangular Friday before facing Vermilion, along with junior varsity teams from Bemidji State and Moorhead State, in a 2 p.m. quadrangular event Saturday.

Largest squad ever — 22 — reported for the start of Northland volleyball practice, but only two of them were on last year's squad and Jean Stukel (Warroad) is the only full-time starter back. Polly Anderson (Karlstad) missed most of the 1979 season because of an injury.

Sophomore Lynnet Donarski (Newfolden) is playing volleyball again this year after having played here as a freshman two years ago. Angie Sinn and Jill Walseth, a pair of Thief River Falls sophomores, are out for the sport for the first time at Northland.

There are also three Thief River Falls area vocational-technical students on the roster: Lois Bates (Stephen), Diane Max (International Falls) and Mary Sovde (Greenbush).

"We're inexperienced at the college level," acknowledged Jacobson, "but they've all had volleyball experience at the high school level. I'm really impressed with our team this year. I think we can do a good job. It just depends on how much everybody else is improved."

Anderson, Stukel, Dagoberg, Walker, Bates and Sovde have all looked good in practice, reported Jacobson, and they could be starting Friday night.

"Offensively we'll be a little stronger this year," explained Jacobson. "We have four good spikers this year instead of only two or three like in the past, and Kathy Walker is an excellent setter. Defensively we need work right now, but I think we'll be strong blockers; it's the coverage that needs work."

What's It Worth?
Duofold isn't cheap. But, it'll keep you warm in the woods.
Our unique machine-washable 2-layer knit underwear puts soft, absorbent 100% cotton next to your skin to keep you dry and chill-free; wool in the outer layer to block out cold; and air in between to insulate, keeping your body heat in. On the stalk or on the job, Duofold keeps your warm, dry and comfortable. What's that worth when a bird or buck pops up?
Find your size and style of Duofold in quality sporting goods, men's wear, department stores, and sportsmen's catalogs. It's worth it.

Bush, Kahler Will Be Named To Hockey Hall

When the United States Hockey Hall of Fame inducts its 51st and 52nd members this fall, it will also be celebrating a 200 per cent increase in visitors to the Hall of Fame, according to Director Roger Godin.

Godin attributes much of the attendance increase to an expanded interest in hockey and to the people who have contributed to the sport. Men like this year's inductees, Walter L. Bush, primary founder of the Minnesota North Stars as well as a long-time promoter of amateur hockey, and Frank W. "Nick" Kahler, who launched the first Minneapolis Millers team.

This year's enshrinement day will be Wednesday, Oct. 15, in Eveleth with University of Minnesota vs. Michigan Tech as the featured hockey game.

Both men, who hold long, distinguished careers in hockey, will be inducted in 2 p.m. ceremonies at the U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame and honored at a 4 p.m. dinner at the Eveleth Holiday Inn. The Gophers will lock sticks with the Huskies starting at 7 p.m. at the Eveleth Hippodrome.

Advance tickets for the banquet and game (reserved and general admission) can be purchased at the following locations: U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame, First Northwestern Bank Insurance Agency, Tuna's Bar, Mugga's Bar in Eveleth; Northwestern Bank, Sam and Buck's Bar in Virginia; Hibbing Chamber of Commerce; Ray Sport and Cycle in Grand Rapids; First Bank in Duluth; Mrs. William Palo in Ely.

Grand Forks Race Slated For October 11

Grand Forks YMCA will be sponsoring the Flatland Classic running race Saturday, Oct. 11. The run will feature a 15-km (9.3-mile) competitive race and a 2-mile fun run. Both runs will start at 10 a.m. near the Elks club in Grand Forks.

Entrant fee is $5. T-shirts will be available to the first 200 to register. All runners will be eligible for various awards, prizes and certificates. Special two some awards will be presented to male and female teams in four age groups.

EGF Is 22-6 Winner Over TRF JV Team

Winless in two starts, the Thief River Falls sophomores will be idle until Thursday, Oct. 2, when they'll be at Grand Forks Red River for a 4 p.m. game.

Thief River Falls junior varsity, 0-1, will host Grand Forks Central Saturday at 10 a.m. and will travel to Crookston Monday for a 4 p.m. game.

WIBC Field Representative To Visit TRF

Members of the Women's International Bowling Congress are encouraged to meet with WIBC field representatives. While visiting local women's bowling associations throughout the country, the representatives assist sanctioned women bowlers with league problems and explain the many services available through WIBC.

On the representatives, Dianne Nelson, will visit Thief River Falls Tuesday, Sept. 23, as a guest of the Thief River Falls women's bowling association for its 7:30 p.m. open meeting at the Eagles club basement meeting room.

Questions dealing with league procedures and rules, record-keeping systems and other WIBC procedures and policies will be answered at the local association's open meeting. EIBC championship tournament will also be discussed. Included on the agenda will be information concerning the senior and collegiate divisions, the American junior bowling congress activities, national bowling council promotion plans and new WIBC plans and projects.

The meeting is open to all members of the women's bowling association and the officers of the local junior bowling association.

Scientists have discovered that elephants purr, just like cats, reports the National Wildlife Federation. For years it was thought that the sounds were related to digestion, but now we know that elephants purr when they are out of sight from one another. If they stop purring, it's a sign to other elephants that danger is near.

EXCHANGE WANTED: Our Cash For Your Real Estate

If you have real estate for sale, we have buyers with cash (in all amounts) ready to buy. Most want to acquire income properties, and many are seeking commercial sites or acreage.

The National Real Estate Exchange (NRE) administers a central clearing house which inventories, in its national computer datacenter, confidential information on what qualified buyers from the United States (and all over the free world) are seeking. Through NRE you can be in touch with their authorized representatives instantly.

With over 250 independently-owned offices in 43 states, Europe, and the Caribbean, NRE network members can assist you in structuring the sale of your real estate to one or more of these buyers on a totally confidential basis.

For the names of NRE network members nearest you and your real estate, wherever you or it might be, please call or write

Public Notices

Card of Thanks

I want to thank Drs. Thorsgard and Padilla and the nurses and aides on first floor for the excellent care I received while I was at Northwestern hospital.

Thank you, too, to Pastor and Mrs. Broughton for their visits and prayers.

Also, thank you to all my friends and relatives who visited me, sent cards, flowers and gifts both at the hospital and at Goodridge.

May God richly bless you.

Caroline Lovly

Request For Home Renovation Bids:

Inter-County Community Council would like to request bids from lumber yards and plumbing companies for materials to renovate a house on Lot 4 and 5, Block 8, in Jensen's Addition of McIntosh, Minnesota. Bids must contain an itemized list of materials, backed up with unit costs of all material included in the bid. We are also requesting bids for material and labor for complete rewiring. Blueprints and additional information may be picked up at the Inter-County Community Council office in Oklee, Minnesota. Phone 796-5144. 1t73c

Card of Thanks

The family of Hjalmer Lee wishes to thank everyone who sent cards, memorials, flowers, and all who brought food to the home or helped in any way.

Our thanks to Rev. Richard Lund for his comforting message, and Rev. Riveness for his visit and prayers while he was in the hospital. Also, thanks to organist Mrs. Vernon Nelson, and soloist Deland Elseth, and to the pallbearers.

Thank you to the ladies aid and the Green Funeral home.

To all our many friends, neighbors and relatives, may God bless each and everyone for your kindnesses.

Mrs. Hjalmer Lee & family

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Selmer Ramsey who passed away two years ago on Sept. 18, 1978:

We never lose the ones we love
For even though they're gone
Within the hearts of those who care
Their memory lingers on.

Deeply missed by his wife Ruby, daughter Jean and family. 1t73p

NEWS OF HEALTH

Home Health Care Booklet Available

A helpful new booklet, A Guide To Home Health Care by Alan Nourse, M.D., is available free to people who want to learn about more comfortable and less costly alternatives to hospital and institutional care.

The authoritative, 16-page booklet is being distributed as a public service by Upjohn HealthCare Services, the nation's oldest and largest proprietary home health agency.

Home health care providers in general have become increasingly important in recent years as the nation searches for new ways to provide better health care at reduced cost. Home health care, in essence, brings the hospital into the home.

The American Medical Association reports that "recent studies have cited home health care as being an identifiable cost-containment strategy and an essential component of the health care delivery system."

The AMA went on to say home health care can provide "more rapid patient recovery and improved patient emotional well-being, earlier discharge from the hospital, reduction in hospital readmissions, and savings over the costs of institutional care."

Among other things, the new illustrated booklet explains who can benefit from home care and who can't; what services home care agencies provide; where the family fits in; how the home should be equipped; how to choose home care services; and what services are covered by medical insurance, Medicare and Medicaid.

Carter-Mondale Office Opens In Minneapolis

Minnesotans for Carter-Mondale opened its state headquarters this week, launching a seven-week effort aimed at maximizing DFL voter turnout on November 4.

The Carter-Mondale campaign will work out of the state DFL office. The headquarters address is 730 East 38th Street, Minneapolis, MN. 55407. The telephone number is 612-827-2891.

On hand for opening week activities are Attorney General Warren Spannaus (co-chair with Muriel Humphrey of Minnesotans for Carter-Mondale), Secretary of State Joan Growe, State Treasurer Jim Lord, Twin Cities mayors Don Fraser and George Latimer, DFL chairman Mike Hatch and associate chairman Mary Monahan. Also taking part is Mondale's son Ted, a student at the University of Minnesota.

ARTHUR K. BECKER, Thief River Falls, has been promoted to the position of director of marketing, Scorpion snowmobile group, according to David R. Rieke, vice president of snowmobile sales and marketing. Becker is responsible for all Scorpion advertising, public relations and sales promotion activities. He has been associated with the snowmobile-recreation business for over 10 years. He previously held the positions of marketing manager, Scorpion; advertising manager, Arctic Cat; and merchandising manager for Scorpion prior to Arctic Enterprises' purchase of Scorpion.

DOT Cautions Highway Right Of Way Use

Minnesota department of transportation wishes to remind the public that all activities within the highway right of way are regulated by the department.

Highway right of way widths vary from a minimum of 40 feet on each side in some cities to 200 feet or more in scenic rural areas.

Within this right of way, many activities are prohibited by law, including the cutting of timber or the removal of trees, the placement of advertising, campaign or "for sale" signs and the erection of buildings and fences.

Using the highway right of way for private business, including customer parking and the display of merchandise, is also prohibited.

Persons planning improvements of their properties bordering a highway should make sure of the highway boundary. A permit must be acquired for the construction of any driveway along the highway. Individuals in doubt about boundaries or permit requirements should call or write the Mn-DOT offices in Bemidji (755-2942) or Crookston (281-3503).

Motorists are also reminded that they are required to enter and leave the highway only by driveways and public road connections, for their safety as well as to avoid damaging ditches and slopes.

Many people living along highways mark their driveways with reflectors. Only white or blue reflectors less than three inches in diameter are permitted. Other colors, which resemble vehicle markings, may cause driver confusion and be a safety hazard.

USDA Extends Deadline For Public Comment

United States department of agriculture has extended to September 25 the deadline for commenting on proposed regulations that would tighten controls on the processing or repackaging of donated foods for programs such as the national school lunch program.

"Relatively few comments have been submitted to date, so I encourage groups and interested individuals to use the additional time to comment," said Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman.

Under the proposal, certain commercial foods that meet USDA standards can be substituted for donated foods during processing. In the past, some processors substituted inferior products for the commodities given to schools by USDA. Proposed rules would require processors to document that any foods they substitute are of the same quality as the donated foods that go into processed products.

Proposed regulations also require federal inspection of certain products, limit inventories of USDA foods that processors can keep on hand, and require closer federal monitoring of each state's use of processing contracts.

USDA's food and nutrition service published the proposed regulations on processing contracts in the June 24 Federal Register. Comments on the proposal should be sent by September 25 to Forrest Moore, Acting Director, Food Distribution Division, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

October 3rd Is American Enterprise Day

October 3 has been officially designated American Enterprise Day by both a Presidential proclamation and a joint resolution of Congress.

President Carter in his August 8 proclamation, cites the American enterprise system as the "cornerstone of our Nation's economy," and urges business, labor, other groups and the general public, to "observe American Enterprise Day with . . . activities that promote appreciation of the free enterprise system and its benefits."

To publicize the date and encourage nationwide participation, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, a federation of more than 100,000 businesses and business organizations, prepared a special public service advertisement for publication in thousands of newspapers and magazines around the country.

The ad recalls the advantages and opportunities made possible by our enterprise system, giving Americans "good reason to celebrate."

". . . When you wake up to America's free enterprise system — you wake up to new opportunities every day," the ad states, noting that more than 15 million businesses are in operation in the U.S. today, providing jobs for 82 million people and creating three million new jobs yearly.

American business also pays one trillion dollars in wages, and billions more in benefits, taxes and donations, the ad says.

Ancient Bison Remains Discovered By MSU Crew

Hundreds of bison bones dating back to the time of the early Egyptian pharaohs were uncovered by a Moorhead state university archeological crew in a three-foot deep excavation near Hendrum.

It's one of the oldest verified prehistoric discoveries in the Red River valley, says Dr. Mike Michlovic, an assistant professor of anthropology at Moorhead state university.

Michlovic, who headed the crew, said the bones were unearthed this summer by a survey team of seven MSU students and two assistants scouring Norman county for archeological potential. The project was funded by grants from the Ada Comstock fund and the Minnesota historical society.

Radiocarbon dates from the dig were returned to the university last week, putting the age of the bison bone site at 2,350 B.C.

"That's 4,330 years ago," Michlovic said. "In perspective, that's about the time the Egyptians were building the first pyramids. I don't know of any older radiocarbon dates in the valley."

It was one of over 30 prehistoric sites the survey crew found along the fields and banks of the Red river in Norman county, discounting what Michlovic says is a popular notion among Minnesota archeologists:

"That's certainly not true. Just ask the local collectors of Indian artifacts, like Jack Beach of Hillsboro," Michlovic said. "They pointed us in the right direction. In just a few weeks we not only found sites in Norman county, but a large number of them."

Finding the ancient bison bones, though, may have been a stroke of luck. It was one of only two sites the crew excavated:

"We were surveying the county to see how many sites we would find," Michlovic said. "Mostly we were just searching for artifacts in the plow zone — the top six or eight inches of soil."

Near Hendrum, in a barley field owned by the Richard Canning family, the crew uncovered a large concentration of artifacts — pottery pieces, broken stone tools, arrowheads. It was enough to perk an excavation.

Sifting through solid clay, they hit pay dirt at about three feet down: hundreds of broken and burned bison bones and the remains of what may have been a prehistoric fireplace.

Pieces of fractured stone tools made from chalcedony, a kind of stone indigenous to western North Dakota, were also found at the site. It was preferred by prehistoric people for toolmaking.

"When we found the chalcedony, we knew it wasn't just an accidental deposit of bones," Michlovic said. "The site was inhabited by prehistoric people. It was what we were hoping to find, but didn't expect."

The Red river runs a 25-mile northern course through Norman county and the MSU crew found archeological evidence along every mile of it surveyed so far.

Artifacts were scattered on top of the ground along several stretches of the river, scooped from the topsoil by farm machinery.

"Most of these surface artifacts," Michlovic said, "are associated with a culture archeologists call Sandy Lake, people who probably hunted buffalo in the valley 500 to 1,000 years ago. They're believed to be the ancestors of the Dakota (Sioux) Indians."

Similar artifacts, however, weren't found at the ancient bison bone site deeper down in the earth. It wasn't until 2,300 years ago that pottery making and other signs of a technologically more advanced society appeared in the valley.

"Whoever these people were," Michlovic said, "they didn't make pottery. But the age of these bison bones certainly makes you appreciate the longevity of the Indian culture. For thousands of years and until the European settlers arrived, they depended on the buffalo for survival. In just two centuries, however, that stable ecological balance was destroyed."

Despite the 4,330-year-old radiocarbon date, the Norman county site isn't the oldest in Minnesota. The 8,000-year-old Browns Valley site near Lake Traverse is older. So are the 7,000-year-old Itasca Bison Kill excavation on Lake Itasca and the 6,000-year-old Minnesota Woman site by Pelican Rapids.

"But there just haven't been many excavations in the Red River valley," Michlovic said. "And very few of those have been verified by carbon dating."

MSU's Norman county survey will probably continue into fall or next spring, depending on when the row crops are harvested on some of the fields. Michlovic and a team of three students will piece together and analyze the findings this year and prepare an exhibit for the Norman county historical society.

"If we can get the funding," Michlovic said, "we'd certainly like to go back and continue our work in Norman county. Most archeological investigations in this area have focused on the more recent periods of prehistory. We'd like to learn more about these ancient people who were hunting bison in the valley some 4,000 years ago."

Industry is hit by an estimated 1,000 eye injuries every working day of the year. With proper protective eyewear, 90 per cent of these injuries could be prevented.

Epileptic Gum Trouble Solved By 'U'M Team

Minnesota comprehensive epilepsy program (CEP) at the University of Minnesota has been doing important work in epilepsy research for the past five years with funds provided by the national institutes of health.

Using a team approach, researchers in the fields of medicine, dentistry, genetics and psychology exchange data and ideas; and educators provide up-to-date information on epilepsy to the community.

It has been found that between one-third and one-half of the people who have seizures who are taking Dilantin develop overgrowth of the gums. To study this problem, Dr. Bruce Pihlstrom and his assistants took saliva samples from people over a two-year period. It was found that the combination of taking Dilantin and the presence of plaque formation on teeth is responsible for the overgrowth of gums.

As a result of this study it has been found that persons taking Dilantin need to have their teeth cleaned every three months professionally. Also, they need to remove plaque from teeth by thorough daily brushing and flossing. By removing plaque from teeth, they will prevent severe enlargement of gums.

Clothing Care ALERT!

PREPARE FOR PREPPY DRESSING

Preppy, or classic, dressing focuses on madras, solid blazers, shetland crewneck sweaters, oxford button-down shirts, plaid kilts, chambray shirtdresses, argyle socks and trench-coats.

To maintain the look requires meticulous care of the pieces. If you are expanding your wardrobe to include the classic look, make sure you have enough shaped hangers and drawer space to accommodate this handsome clothing.

You will find the slacks, blazers and skirts are highly constructed. Maintaining the lines built into them requires careful storage in roomy closets on heavy hangers when the items are not being worn.

These stylishly designed items also do better when cleaned by a professional drycleaner who can steam and press them back into their original shapes after wear.

Careful washing of the cottons in the preppy look is advised by the International Fabricare Institute (IFI), the worldwide association of professional launderers and drycleaners. The cottons will probably be a blend of cotton and a man-made fiber to give the material some qualities not found in cotton, such as wrinkle resistance. Because they are blends, use lower wash and rinse water temperatures and short, cool drying cycles. Creases and wrinkles can set in blended fabrics when excessive heat is used.

Wool and wool-blend sweaters, especially when they combine colors in patterns, as do the preppy sweaters, will fare better with a drycleaner who can protect the yarns from shrinkage and color bleeding.

Between wearings, sweaters should be stored folded on shelves or in drawers so they won't stretch out of shape.

The clean lines of classic clothes are the result of good design in manufacturing, good taste in purchasing and meticulous care at home.

It is so much more beautiful than words. The sun touches the lake to bronze and the sky is a wonderful blend of apricot and mauve and burnished orange. The big buck silhouetted at the water's edge seems to be looking right at you. For the moment, at least, you are both unafraid.

You store this sight in your memory, to be dusted off on days when the view is cloudy. Remembering, you realize anew that there's something so much bigger than all of us. No man could have made that lake, nor that sky, nor that deer, nor all that glory.

Nature is an ultimate teacher. It would seem, in fact, as if God must have chosen nature as a kind of reflection. Your place of worship is a reflection, too. Why not take a look at it?

Consider Child's Sports Readiness

Do your child's fall plans include a sports program at school or in the community? If so, it's important to consider your child's readiness and interest in sports participation.

Remember that while six-year-olds (and sometimes younger children) are ready to learn sport skills, they usually do not have the motivation and attention span for actual practice or training. Don't be surprised if, after the initial excitement of joining a team, your child quickly loses interest.

It's a different story for the eight-year-old. In the two years between the ages of six and eight, a child experiences rapid muscle and nerve development. Physically he or she is better equipped to participate in sport activities. For example, the eight-year-old, without practice, is able to throw a ball much better than he or she did at the age of six.

"Though your child may be physically ready to participate in sports," explains emergency services director Russell LaBeau, M.D., of a Twin Cities hospital, "he or she may not be emotionally ready. As these children experience developmental and growth spurts, they often have slumps — periods of fatigue and disinterest. This makes it difficult for them to work and play with enthusiasm, especially if there is pressure to perform well."

Dr. LaBeau reminds parents that every child developes at his or her own rate, but, as a rule of thumb, by the age of 11 or 12 the child is usually sufficiently mature to participate in sports. "At these ages," says Dr. LaBeau, "the child becomes more interested in training and can look ahead and see its value."

Once you've established the fact that your child is ready and is interested in team sports, the next step is to take him or her to a physician for a thorough physical examination. Many programs require this before allowing the child to participate. If your doctor feels your child is better off not taking part in the sport, ask him or her to suggest other activities or exercises that are better suited for the child.

If you decide to go ahead and enroll your child in a program, be sure to check out the program and the coach carefully. Type of attitude your child is exposed to during sports participation will become an integral part of your child's general attitude toward sports.

Be careful your child doesn't develop unrealistic goals. "Some young athletes," cautions Dr. LaBeau, "wrestlers, for instance, try to restrict their nutrients in order to meet unrealistic weight limits. This is especially dangerous, because at the same time these children are experiencing an active growth period."

As practice and training become more important to the child, stress and "overuse" injuries become more common. Overuse injuries occur when bones, joints and-or their supporting tendons and ligaments exceed certain limits and result in sprains, tears, probably pain and dysfunction.

Muscle soreness is a common complaint of youngsters involved in sports. It is well to pay attention to continuing soreness, the symptom of overuse, wherever it occurs — knee, elbow, back, abdomen. A period of decreased activity may be all that's necessary in treating the sore joint or muscle.

Pain and swelling that prohibits the child's normal use of a part of the body is a reason to have a physician examine the child. Trying to continue activity in these circumstances can lead to long-lasting (chronic) conditions and can lead to a reinjury that's more serious than the initial problem.

There are many activities and physical pursuits that encourage healthy growth. Regardless of whether the child climbs a tree or plays a football game, there should be some feelings of success. Whatever the outcome of a child's participation in sports, the parents should "support the effort" — as well as attend to the bumps and bruises.

FANCY THAT!

The commonest of all playthings is thought to be the ball. The British Museum has one made of stone 5,000 years old. Leather balls made from animal skins were filled with bran, husks, feathers and other materials. Balls have also been made from such diverse materials as papyrus, wood pottery, celluloid and metal.

An ever-popular toy celebrating its 25th anniversary this year has sold over 700,000 cans worldwide. That toy, Play-Doh, was developed as a nursery school substitute for modeling clay but has since been enjoyed by children and adults of all ages. Innovative accessories, like those for 1980 that include two Sesame Street Sets, a "STAR WARS: The Empire Strikes Back" set and a Play-Doh Microscope, help account for its continuing success.

The world's largest toy store is in London. Called Hamley's of Regent Street Ltd., it was founded in 1760 in Holborn, England, then moved to London in 1901. The store has 30,000 square feet of floor space on 11 floors and employs over 300 people during the Christmas season.

Plan Campaign To Advise Public About Arson

State Fire Marshal's office, a division of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, has started a campaign to increase public awareness of arson, said commissioner John Sopsic.

Kicking off the project is a state tour by Fire Marshall Wes Werner and Hugh Strawn of the Minnesota insurance information center. Sponsor is the governor's council on fire prevention and control.

Werner and Strawn will meet with civic leaders and news media in Mankato, Austin, Rochester, Winona, Duluth, Moorhead, Alexandria and St. Cloud.

Council is calling attention to the Minnesota arson information hotline which permits people to assist fire investigators by providing confidential information on fires caused by arson. Since the program's inception in late 1977, an award program has given $3,100 in confidential rewards to people who have provided useful information to investigators.

Records indicate that approximately half of Minnesota's arson fires are started by juveniles. The council supports to identify juvenile arsonists and successfully deal with them.

The council advises the governor on fire-related programs and serves as a liaison between the state and U.S. fire administration.

Diabetes In Dogs Can Be Controlled

An obvious change in your dog's daily routine often signals a developing medical problem. Some of these problems are easily corrected; others take more time and professional attention.

One of the more serious danger signals is an increase in your pet's water intake, accompanied by a corresponding increase in urination. This may be a sign of diabetes mellitus or kidney failure.

Dr. John Kramer, a professor at Washington state university's college of veterinary medicine, estimates that diabetes mellitus affects about one out of every 800 dogs examined by veterinarians. The disease is not limited to aging pets. Young males and obese older females are susceptible.

A diabetic dog cannot produce enough insulin to efficiently regulate the amount of sugar in its blood. As a result, the excess sugar must be eliminated in the urine. To do this, the dog urinates more frequently, and must drink additional water to replace the larger amounts being excreted.

If the diabetes if not treated, the dog will begin to lose weight, even though it appears to have an adequate diet. An additional side effect may be the development of cataracts.

In most cases, the cause of canine diabetes is never clearly identified. Research has shown that a few dogs inherit a tendency toward diabetes because they are born with too few insulin-producing cells, but these animals are in the minority. We also know that inflammation of the pancreas, the organ that contains the insulin-secreting cells, may create a temporary form of diabetes, that subsides when the inflammation is controlled.

If your veterinarian diagnoses your dog as diabetic, the disease can be controlled. A major step is to reduce the dog's weight if it is too heavy, and regulate the amount of exercise the pet receives. The veterinarian will also determine the amount of insulin the pet must receive.

Because insulin is not available in tablet form, the dog owner must learn to administer insulin to his or her pet by injection. The technique of giving an injection is not as difficult as gathering up the courage to do the job. Your veterinarian will teach you the technique, as well as bolster your courage.

You will learn that the amount of insulin your pet needs is directly related to its weight. For this reason, diabetic pets receive carefully regulated amounts of food, and between meal snacks are out.

Another factor that affects insulin use is the female dog's heat cycle. The hormonal changes that occur during heat make the dog's insulin requirements fluctuate widely. To avoid the risk of overdosing a pet in heat, most diabetic females are spayed.

Diabetic pets can live for years if the disease is properly controlled. Research at Washington state university is continuing to determine the cause of inherited diabetes in young dogs. The work is expected to add to the knowledge of diabetes development in both humans and canines.

Banks Invest In Regional Energy Venture

Affiliate banks of Northwest Bancorporation (Banco) have extended lending commitments totaling $275 million to natural resource and energy ventures throughout the Upper Midwest, according to an article in Banco's recently issued second quarter report to shareholders.

The essay, entitled "The Emerging Energy Industry of the Upper Midwest," says that Banco's financing of important energy projects is "helping to transform the Upper Midwest into a growing complex for the nation. The oil, coal and synthetic fuels produced in our region will help lessen U.S. dependence on expensive and unreliable sources of imported petroleum."

The Banco article focuses on the recent development of oil and coal resources in and around the Williston basin, a "geologic province" stretching across several thousand square miles of Montana and the Dakotas.

Describing the Williston basin as the "the largest, active, onshore oil region in the U.S.," Banco said that 1,200 oil wells were drilled in the basin last year and that 120 drilling rigs currently are operating there. The article added, "Of the 211 new fields explored by wildcatters last year, fully 25 per cent turned out to be productive. This gave the Williston basin the second highest wildcat success ratio among all formations in the U.S."

Banco also pointed out that the region's vast demonstrated reserves of coal — the nation's largest — "may eventually eclipse crude oil in importance." In addition, most of the region's coal is the low-sulfur, clean-burning variety.

Other information in the Banco quarterly report included:

+ North Dakota's proven reserves of crude oil and natural gas liquids are the tenth largest among the 31 states with proven reserves. Montana ranks sixteenth nationally.

+ Expenditures on oil exploration and development activities throughout the Williston basin will approach $1 billion by the end of 1980.

+ The majority of exploration and production work in the Basin is being conducted by smaller independent operators, not by multinational oil companies.

Fifteen Million Dollars!!

Proposal by the local school district board to bond the district for $15 million to construct a new high school and improve several other school buildings is more than a little mind boggling. It is difficult to conceive of any local building project costing that amount of money.

After the initial shock of the amount wears off, however, it is a little easier to take a clear look at the need and assess the alternatives. This is what the school board has been doing for some time. Although the idea is relatively new for most of the general public, it is not brought forth without a great deal of prior study and evaluation.

Before anyone forms an irreversible opinion on the question of whether or not a new high school should be built, a look at the existing facilities is really in order. And we mean a look from the inside, not from the outside where appearances really aren't all that bad.

The diagram published in Monday's edition of the Times shows the large area of the school which has been closed by fire marshal's order. This closing was ordered after a considerable period of time, during which the fire marshal's office had issued warnings and directives and comments on the safety of the building for students. The order to close the buildings seemed sudden, but the procedure leading up to the order was lengthy.

There is no question, existing facilities are woefully inadequate. Yet, it is possible to get by for awhile (students and faculty are making do with what is available now), but it is irresponsible to expect the existing situation to long continue. Something must be done and soon.

Several factors favor immediate action.

First, constantly rising inflation means that costs to build are on the increase. Waiting to a future time means spending the same money for less building or more money for the same proposed plan.

Second, contractors could be expected to submit highly competitive bids at this point when our economy is at a low ebb. Work at low profit is better than no work at all, and that is what bidders must consider if they want to remain in business. This is a good time to get favorable bids.

Third, the district has an incredibly low bonded indebtedness of some $800,000. In our opinion, this means that it has been some time since we have made a commitment to buildings in this school district. We have gotten by at low cost for a long time, and we cannot expect that situation to be perpetual. The additional taxes necessary to pay for the project will hurt in many cases, but it is pain which must be endured if education is to be properly served in our community.

A brochure is being prepared by the local citizen's committee which points out the need to replace the high school. That brochure will be widely circulated in a couple of weeks. In the meantime, make a visit to Lincoln and see what exists. A tour through the school is bound to make an impression on any visitor.

And think of that $15 million in terms of what it will buy, not what it will cost. There is a difference in perspective.

Frost Belt Shorted

The North won the Civil War, right? But they lost the peace if the amount of federal spending in the "Sun Belt" states means anything.

Figures released recently by the Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition show that states in those two regions sent $165 billion more in taxes to Washington, D.C., than they got back in federal spending during the period from 1975 to 1979.

And this imbalance of payments has been felt in the northern states especially during the recession the nation now finds itself in.

Congressman Robert Edgar, a Pennsylvania Democrat and chairman of the 213-member house coalition, said that federal spending patterns disadvantage states in the northern industrial tier at a time when they can least afford it. And, he could have mentioned the northern agricultural states as well.

Michigan, for example, in 1979, received only 66 cents in federal spending for every buck they sent to Washington, but New Mexico, on the other side of the ledger, received a whopping $1.91 back for every dollar in taxes, while Mississippi got $1.57, Alaska $1.45 and Tennessee $1.39.

Part of the reason the southern states receive more federal money is simply because the southern congressmen, due to their seniority, usually have more clout than northern congressmen. Most of the influential congressional committees are chaired by southerners simply because they have been in congress for a long time.

Another reason is that due to the friendlier climate, many more military installations are located in the "Sun Belt" states, and the Department of Defense has a yearly budget of more than $150 billion to throw around.

California in 1981 will receive $328 million for military construction, more than the entire "Frost Belt" region, which will receive some $268 million.

It makes sense to locate more military installations in warmed climates because training can be conducted better there on a year-around basis, but we're speaking of spending tax dollars and if the "Frost Belt" states aren't going to get their share of the military buck, then give it to them in more civilian spending.

We're gratified that northern congressmen have formed the coalition because 213 members have a lot of clout, and perhaps collectively they can correct some of that federal spending imbalance.

$13 Bargain

Membership in the Thief River Falls concert association for the 1980-81 season has to rank as one of the community's greatest entertainment bargains. For $13 the adult member can attend live concerts right in town by a piano duo, 17-piece big band, Phoenix boys choir and a renowned gospel singing group and view the "Desert Song" musical for good measure.

For students the cost is a paltry $6 — slightly over a buck a throw — and a family can get by for only $37 total.

Directors of the local concert association have made the selections this year in accordance with preferences listed by association members in a survey last season. Together with Allied Concert services, through which the concerts are booked, they have attempted to hit a blend of high caliber talent with affordable cost.

The concert association isn't a group of stuffy highbrows. It is an organization of your friends and neighbors who appreciate top quality entertainment and like to have it presented close to home. True, the concerts may be on a different plane than pro rasslin', but a little culture never hurt anyone.

Book the family for five nights out together in the next few months. Send your check to the concert association, in care of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. You'll be in good company.

Make-Work Jobs

Following editorial is from the Roseau Times-Region:

We would be amused, if it were not so tragic, at the politicians who would take private enterprise dollars to foster government programs to increase employment. That's the same old socialistic ploy which has been used to buy votes for many years and it is as invalid today as it has ever been. Temporary jobs created by government cheat the taxpayer because they are only welfare in disguise. The roots of the problems are not attacked at all . . . they are only swollen with more inflation and less dollars in the hands of those who can create jobs.

The jobs which are created by providing incentive to private enterprise are productive jobs. They earn money by production; they save taxpayers tax money and, indeed, result in taxes themselves . . . payment to government which helps all. More important, these jobs generate goods and services which promote other industry and enable the expansion of trade and services.

If government will get off the backs of private industry and free enterprise we can do away with a great portion of the unemployment and the regulatory bureaucrats who overregulate everything and eat up the hard-earned dollars of the taxpayer.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Things sure have changed," the father confided to a neighbor. "My boy has a home movie set, stereo, radio, telephone, electronic games and color TV in his room. When I want to punish him, I have to send him to my room!"

"Doctor," the henpecked husband explained on the phone, "my wife seems to have dislocated her jaw. If you happen to be out our way next week or the week after, you might drop in and take a look at her."

Household Hints
By Samantha of Lestoil Homemakers Service

Laundry a chore? To lighten the load:
- Starch tablecloths and napkins to help them resist stains and spills.
- Spin draperies and bedspreads in the dryer now and then to "dust."
- Protect bath mats with a used towel when the kids take a bath.
- Wash and dry corduroys and other plush fabrics inside out to keep them from picking up lint.

Even stubborn stains and the grime lines on collars and cuffs are no match for Lestoil, the incredible household cleaner that's also a terrific laundry aid. Just pour it on (or "paint" on with an inexpensive brush set aside for this purpose), let stand 5 to 10 minutes, then launder as usual. Lestoil has special solvents that actually dissolve oily, greasy grime.

Need help with the ironing? Aluminum foil under the ironing board cover reflects heat, cuts ironing time. Sprinkle clothes with hot instead of cold water for smoother going, and keep an ice cube handy to dampen wrinkles. Heat sets stains, so iron around them. Next time check for stains before laundering, and pre-spot with powerful Lestoil.

'80 Food Stamp Program Cuts People, Money

Food stamp recipients will get only one cost-of-food increase in the next year under a regulation issued recently by the U.S. department of agriculture.

Assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the food stamp benefit increase usually given in July will not be given this year. USDA will adjust food stamp benefits and deductions to account for increases in the Consumer price index (CPI) only once a year, in January, instead of making semi-annual updates in January and July.

"This is one of a number of program-tightening measures proposed by the administration and approved by Congress last month," Foreman said. "It will save $133 million in this fiscal year and $300 million in fiscal year 1981, which will help to meet the increased cost of the food stamp program caused by unemployment and inflation."

Also under the regulations USDA will continue to adjust the food stamp eligibility limits each year on July 1, but the increase will be substantially less than under previous law, in accordance with another provision recently adopted by Congress.

Today's regulations set the office of management and budget's (OMB's) poverty line as the standard for food stamp income limits. The law previously required USDA to use a version of the OMB guideline which was updated for more current CPI data.

Change to the standard OMB guideline for food stamp income limits will mean that 650,000 fewer people will receive food stamps in fiscal year 1981 and several million fewer persons will be eligible for food stamps. This change is expected to save $15 million in the current fiscal year and $65 million in fiscal year 1981.

On July 1 the monthly net income limits which poor families must meet to qualify for food stamps will rise from $596 to $621 for a family of four.

State Auditor Unveils Early Warning Plan

State auditor Arne H. Carlson unveiled an early financial warning plan designed to avert problems that have plagued many communities in the country including New York, Cleveland and Chicago.

It is called the Minnesota financial health program, and Carlson said, "we will probably be the first state to have this system on line but to make it work effectively will involve considerable commitment by all units of government."

Carlson announced that he will be traveling through 26 Minnesota communities and will meet with local legislative leaders and mayors to make certain that the program is well understood and properly utilized.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that the key concern of the 1980s is going to be economics, and the mission of government will be to provide a high level of service in a period of decreasing revenues. One factor will be providing the policy makers with better economic data and our office intends to play a lead role in fulfilling that need," Carlson said.

Carlson noted that local governments in Minnesota spend approximately $6 billion annually and declared that, "protecting this type of taxpayers' investment has to be one of the state's highest priorities."

Minnesota financial health program, as outlined by Carlson, would use a variety of different indicators to identify financial stress. These indicators would include factors such as status of the economy, financial independence and flexibility, municipal productivity, current costs being deferred to the future and financial management practices.

Information for a five-year period would be collected and examined for the purpose of determining trends. "For instance," said Carlson, "suppose a given municipal government has a very high reliance on federal aids. That may well become a cause of stress due to the possibility of the Federal Government cutting back on those aids. This could place that municipality in serious financial straits."

The program, which includes an assessment of over 30 separate indicators, would involve a mutual sharing of the data by the local unit of government and the state auditor and, if stress is detected, the office of the state auditor would provide direct assistance in working with the local unit of government to determine the exact nature of that stress so that serious problems can be avoided.

"The program is really not as complicated as it sounds," Carlson said. "It is comparable to a thorough physical examination except that we will be examining economic data that will determine a community's financial health. More than anything else, we want this state to be a national leader in sound financial management. We simply have to be prepared for changing times."

It is expected that the office of the state auditor will have the first phase of the program on line within eight months (by April 1981) and the balance of the program on line within 12 months after that time. "If we succeed in this mission, the savings will be considerable," Carlson said.

BROWN-BAGGED SALAD

For an interesting change from ho-hum luncheon fare, try brown-bagging a crunchy, refreshing salad. "Tasty Tuna Totes" combine that lunchtime favorite, *tuna with celery, radishes and relish, all tossed with convenient bottled lite Italian dressing for a zingy flavor. Instead of a sandwich, pack the salad into a green pepper cup—it's easily totable, completely edible and even low in calories! Add breadsticks, a wedge of cheese and a thermos of hot or iced tea for a slimming brown-bagged lunch you'll want to have often!

TASTY TUNA TOTES

1 can (7 oz.) tuna packed in water, drained and flaked
1-1/4 cups chopped celery
1/2 cup sliced radishes
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
1/3 cup Wish-Bone® Lite Italian Dressing
4 medium green-pepper cups

In medium bowl, combine tuna, celery, radishes and relish; toss with lite Italian dressing. Spoon mixture into pepper cups; wrap and chill. Makes 4 servings. 140 calories per serving.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Does any American have the right to compel another to subsidize a cause which that individual does not support, and indeed, may find morally repugnant? Few questions go to the very heart of the meaning of freedom as does this one. And few would elicit such a unanimous reply from the American public: "NO." The fact is, Americans have always been united in believing that freedom can only flourish and endure when protected from a climate of coercion.

Thomas Jefferson, perhaps the most brilliant of our founding fathers, once warned: "To compel a man to furnish contributions of money for the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves is sinful and tyrannical."

More recently, Ayn Rand, an American novelist, observed: "The right of free speech means that a man has the right to express his ideas without suppression, interference or punitive action, by the government. It does not mean that others must provide him with a lecture hall, a radio station or a printing press through which to express his ideas."

These are important points to remember as we approach one of the most significant elections in post-war history. They are also relevant points when one realizes that, today in America, one small group of people — officials of organized labor — has the power to force millions of working people to finance the political agenda of organized labor . . . whether they like it or not. Indeed, a rank and file member who resists does so on peril of losing his job.

Current election law prohibits the use of union dues for direct cash contributions to political candidates. But thanks to a giant loophole in the Federal Election Campaign Act, union officials can pour huge sums of unreported dues, whether given voluntarily or not, into what is called indirect, "in-kind" political activity. By some estimates, unions currently collect at least $4 billion dollars in dues a year, which amounts to well over $10 million a day. Labor columnist Victor Riesel calculated unions poured $100 million into in-kind spending in the 1978 election. That kind of money buys a lot of political support.

Here's how it's done. The July, 1979 issue of Steelabor told its readers that dues money "can't go for direct political contributions — but it can do a lot: mailings, supporting or opposing political candidates, phone banks, precinct visits, voter registration and get-out-the-vote drives . . ."

And, as the National Right to Work Committee points out, Steelabor's admission is enlightening, but far from complete. The complete picture must include: "weeks, sometimes months, of the staff time of hundreds of thousands of union employees devoted almost solely to partisan politics; hordes of election day 'volunteers', paid overtime rates . . .; millions of political pamphlets and flyers; and paid election day carpools and babysitters to name a few."

Alexander Barkan, director of the AFL-CIO's Committee On Public Education, COPE, stated in 1977 that "money is just a minor feature of the support we can give a candidate." Boasting of the power of his union's political machinery he said: "We've got organizations in 50 damn states and it goes right down from the states to the cities. There's no party can match us.

"Every election gets better and better. Give us 10 years or 15 years and we'll have the best political organization in the history of the country. We're at it year round. We've got full time people in every state of the union."

This August, in a landmark decision, a federal court found that one major international union — the Communications Workers of America — illegally spent 81 per cent of employees' compulsory union fees for politics and other union activities unrelated to collective bargaining. One of the court's briefs quoted CWA President Glenn Watts as bragging, "We in CWA have influence in this country in every conceivable way that is all out of proportion to our numbers . . ."

The court's finding that the use of compulsory dues for politics violates employees' legal and constitutional rights is a step in the right direction. Nevertheless, until Congress has the courage to pass legislation forbidding these abuses, the unions will probably carry on, knowing that most individual workers lack the finances to challenge them in court.

We pride ourselves on being a country which places a premium on individual rights . . . except, it would seem, when those individual rights interfere with certain power-hungry individuals.

FUN FOR ALL

LET'S PLAY GAMES

High on this year's back-to-school shopping list—right up there with jeans, T-shirts and assignment books—is UNO, the card game that has captivated high school and college students all over the country. Since January, more than 10 million decks have been sold according to Bob Tezak, President of International Games Inc., Joliet, Ill., and he predicts more UNO school tournaments this year than ever.

"It's amazing how the word UNO has become part of the vocabulary of the school crowd from coast to coast," he said. "We're a very game-oriented society and remarkably, not since baseball, the hula hoop and Super Sunday have Americans of all ages, actually, focused on a game like they have on UNO."

Astonishingly, UNO fame has spread by word of mouth. "People hear about it via some kind of grapevine, a neighbor, relative or whatever, and it seems once they play, they're hooked," Tezak said. "The UNO craze is sweeping schools everywhere," he added. "It's not unusual to find several UNO tournaments being held at the same high school or college . . . and even elementary school students are playing in a big way."

Uno Tournament

Played with 108 color-keyed cards, numbered from zero to nine, the deck also includes cards calling for REVERSE OF PLAY, SKIP, WILD, and DRAW FOUR cards, which all add to the frenzy of going "out" first. Two to ten can play and the game can easily be adapted to large tournaments.

"We've just recently drafted a set of official UNO tournament rules . . . and there have been so many letters from fans all over the country, we've founded an UNO fan club and newsletter," he added. Memberships, newsletter and tournament rules are free from UNO. Just send your name and address to UNO, Suite 200, 500 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

The Wisdom of Big Brother IV

What would you do if, famished for a good fish dinner, you went to your favorite restaurant, only to find the entrees limited to broiled grunt fish, baked mudblower and fried ratfish? Bet you'd lose your appetite for fish in a hurry, wouldn't you?

This scenario, says Senator Bill Roth of Delaware, has haunted the good folks at the National Marine Fisheries Service who are responsible for promoting more consumption of seafood. So, worried that ugly names will dissuade Americans from eating more fish, these bureaucrats decided to purge every ugly fish name and replace it with an appetizing one.

First they spent $63,000 on a contract to study how to retitle fish. Unfortunately, this only proved the feasibility of varying the ugly titles of different fish. No problem. A second study, par for the course in Washington, was approved to find the new fish names.

But still no luck. The second study didn't product any new names either, only a set of criteria to judge which fish, ugly names and all, taste better. Rather than drag this out into a real fish story, let me just give you the upshot: After spending seven years, nearly half a million dollars, and drawing on the service of more than 50 agency employees, not one fish has been renamed. The only tangible result, of course, is that once again, the taxpayers got taken, hook, line and sinker.

Latest Bulletin From the Energy Department

National Review reports the Department of Energy is so efficient it managed to attract 485 people to a free conference by mailing out only 110,000 slick invitations with color brochures enclosed.

Department of Redundancy Department?

The National Science Foundation awarded a six-month, $100,000 grant to the National Academy of Sciences, to develop a guide for the safe handling of chemicals in the laboratory. Then there was that $92,000 grant for a study on "The Evolution of Pubescence Characteristics in Bumblebees." The feds keep spending. . . you keep paying.

So Now You Tell Me

The following letter was written by Senator Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire, and sent to the White House on August 7, 1980.

"Yesterday, I received a publication entitled 'National Buying Alert,' prepared by the White House Office of the Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs. This publication identified various food items which were best buys for a certain time of the year. This information would have been very useful to my constituents in New Hampshire, and I would have been happy to bring it to their attention. However, the 'best buys' were for the month of June. Naturally I would not insult the intelligence of my constituents by bringing to their attention a government document which tells them how they could have been saving money on food items if they had been purchased two months ago.

"Unless something is done to disseminate this information in a timely fashion, I suggest the best saving could be to cease publication of this document which is supported by taxpayers' funds."

It's Oil In A Day's Work

The Dallas Morning News recently gave its readers a novel explanation as to why the Sun Belt is doing so well: "The Internal Revenue Service is sending 73 more agents to Dallas and at least 50 to Austin. How come? Because of the 'windfall profits' tax on oil, which, having been written in agonizing detail (nearly 200 pages as published by the Government Printing Office), has now to be interpreted and explained.

It may be that taxing the oil companies to the tune of $227 billion won't find us any more oil, but think of the jobs it creates for those who can figure out, more or less, what Congress and the President thought they were doing."

One of the oldest — and I believe the most unfair — charges against business people is that they are always more preoccupied with making money than with protecting the welfare of their employees. One such typical criticism is that businesses are willing to cut back on safety expenditures in the workplace, even though this may result in serious illness or endanger human lives. Thus, we're told, businesses should be made to accept unlimited government regulation to ensure that the responsibility of protecting workers is met.

This whole argument is horribly simplistic in at least three respects. First, it totally ignores that of the some 14 million businesses in America today the overwhelming majority are small businesses in which personal relationships between managers and their employees are close, and the lines of authority are often nearly invisible.

I know that in Hollywood business people are practically always stereotyped as cold, callous and unfeeling. But in the real world, the typical business leader is the neighbor next door who happens to share America's Judeo-Christian principles. That is not the kind of person who sits around trying to figure out how to make an extra buck by taking risks at his employee's expense.

Second, the argument also ignores that when business people do think in purely economic terms about the bottom line, they find one of their highest priorities is to protect their employees. After all, it is industry, not government, which must pay the most for worker's compensation, both directly, in terms of coverage, and indirectly, in terms of less work-hours and declining productivity. Thus, business has the greatest incentive to keep its people well.

Third, more and more businesses are coming to realize that they might save two lives with the same resources the government mandates they spend to save one. Consider the example of Deere and Company which manufactures farm and other heavy equipment and employs 51,000 people in 11 manufacturing sites.

Between 1972 and 1974, this company followed the rules of the Occupational Safety and Health administration (OSHA) to the letter. Every single nitpicking one. Result? Worker injuries rose by an alarming 42 per cent. So the company changed its strategy and decided to shift its priorities away from OSHA and toward what it knew would work in its plants to reduce accidents and injuries. In so doing, it was implicitly accepting sole responsibility for protecting its workers by moving systematically to identify and eliminate hazards where they were.

By this year, Deere's safety performance had dramatically improved. All injuries were down by 74 per cent, serious injuries by 78 per cent and days off by 89 per cent. Is Deere merely an isolated example? Consider that during the 25-year period preceding OSHA's creation in 1971 — when industry was handling safety and health concerns on its own — serious injury and fatality steadily declined.

Since OSHA's inception in 1971, however, and since the huge 380 per cent increase in its budget, and over $25 billion in regulatory expenses to industry and consumers, the serious accident trend has reversed direction and begun climbing again. Consistently pressured by OSHA's red tape, and by other government regulation, higher inflation and taxation, businesses have had to reduce their investments in new and safer plants and equipment.

The trouble with so many regulators in Washington is that they have never been exposed to the responsibilities of the real world where people are constantly struggling to meet a payroll with limited resources, and where the idea of forcing industries to spend more than $100 million a year to comply with regulations that might, just might, save one-half of a hypothetical life is rightfully considered absurd.

The Supreme court, thankfully, agrees. In a major victory for the business community against OSHA, a case in which the U.S. Chamber was heavily involved, the court has just ruled that OSHA cannot impose new health standards on industry regulating workers' exposure to benzene without proving that current standards are unsafe. The decision is very significant and represents a big step in the right direction. Another is that when it comes to deciding difficult issues today regarding workers' health and safety, a growing proportion of the rank and file trust a team of management and workers, rather than outside individuals or government agencies. I can understand why.

IRS Provides Year Round Tax Assistance

Even though most taxpayers who seek assistance from the Internal Revenue service do so during the tax filing season, there are reasons why you may want to contact the IRS at some other time during the year.

Perhaps you are one of those persons who plans ahead when it comes to taxes. For instance, you may be thinking about installing storm windows and are wondering if you qualify for an energy credit. Or if you contribute to a local candidate's campaign, what is the tax advantage?

You may have questions about a bill from the IRS, or perhaps you still haven't received your refund.

In all these situations — in fact, for almost any tax question you may have — the IRS provides year-round assistance. Even if you live hundreds of miles from an IRS office you can receive assistance from trained individuals who are available to answer your questions by calling the toll-free number at 1-800-652-9062, Monday thru Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Also, detailed information on almost any tax subject you can think of is available in the more than 90 publications available free from the IRS. There is also an index available from the IRS to help you select the publication that best serves your situation. These publications can be ordered by mail by calling the toll-free number, or by writing your local IRS district office.

In addition to these services the IRS also offers assistance to special groups of taxpayers. For small business persons the IRS conducts workshops to instruct them on their tax responsibilities. To find out the time and place of the workshops in your area you can call your local IRS office.

Even though the IRS assists literally millions of taxpayers a year, there may come a time when your federal tax isn't solved through normal assistance channels.

When this occurs you should contact the problem resolution office in your area. The problem resolution office has the authority to cut through red tape and handle your case promptly. Often your case can be resolved in as little as five days; when it can't, you will be kept informed on how your case is progressing. For help with your persistent tax problem, call the IRS toll-free number listed above and ask for problem-resolution.

Remember, whether you're single or married, farmer or lawyer, city-dweller or rural resident, IRS assistance is as near as your telephone.

U of M Shares $5.4 Million Mining Grant

Edgar A. Imhoff, regional director, Region III, office of surface mining, said recently that mining and mineral resources and research institutes in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota will share in new and continuing research grants totaling over $5.4 million during the next year.

Secretary of the interior, Cecil D. Andrus, explained that each institute created under the surface mining control and reclamation act of 1977, recieves annual allotment grants of $110,000 and, in addition, compete for research grants in seven areas for funds made available in interior's office of surface mining (OSM) annual appropriations.

Nationally, 25 institutes will share in 48 new research grants with a total value of about $3 million, and 17 institutes will receive continuing grants, (43 in all), totaling about $2.4 million.

"The competition for funds in new research projects was very keen," said OSM director Walter N. Heine. The 31 institutes, in as many states, submitted 466 pre-proposals. Heine added, "of these, 97 pre-proposals were selected to be expanded into full proposals for final review consideration." OSM subsequently selected 48 for new funding.

Final choices were difficult to make, Heine noted. "While each of these fully detailed proposals was judged to be excellent, the final awards had to be divided based on the total amount of funds available for the year," he said.

Seven major areas covered by the research awards are: mining, including exploration; extractive metallurgy; environmental research related to mining; mineral economics; mineral processing, including ceramics; petroleum and natural gas engineering; and legal and social aspects related to mining.

Research grants cover a wide territory in seven major areas. . . from "Surface Mining Blasting Effects on Underground Coal Mine Stability" to "Determination of Washability and Flotation Characteristics of Missouri Coal Seams"; from a study on "air-sparged Hydrocyclone" to "Revegetating Disturbed Areas to Protect the Environment."

Institutes at these universities received new and continuing research grants, including Purdue (Indiana) university, $207,285; Southern Illinois university, $595,240; Ohio state university, $153,789; Michigan technical university, $270,123; and University of Minnesota, $105,488.

Crop Production Outlook Given For Minnesota

Row crops were under considerable stress during the first 10 days of August. However, rains during the last three weeks of August replenished topsoil moisture throughout most of the state and boosted prospects for late season crops. The wet weather interrupted small grain harvest and caused some deterioration in quality and quantity of grain due to sprouting, shattering and staining of grain in both swathed and standing fields, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service.

Minnesota's corn production is now expected to total 566.4 million bushels, seven per cent less than last year. The prospective yield of 96 bushels per acre is up three bushels from the August 1 forecast but four bushels below 1979. Acreage harvested for grain is still estimated at 5,900,000. In most localities, conditions held steady or improved slightly during August except in some west central and southwest counties where considerable deterioration occurred.

The state's soybean production is projected at 150.4 million bushels, a 10 per cent decline from 1979. The estimated yield of 32 bushels per acre is the same as last year but up 1.0 from the August 1 forecast. Harvested acreage is now estimated at 4,700,000.

Minnesota's 1980 wheat production is expected to total 104 million bushels, a 15 per cent increase over the 1979 output. An average yield of 32.8 bushels per acre is anticipated, 2.3 bushels below last year's average. Production by type points to 98.3 million bushels of spring wheat other than durum, up 15 per cent; 3.6 million bushels of durum, up 26 per cent; 2.1 million bushels of winter wheat, up 16 per cent.

The projected 1980 oats crop of 74 million bushels is 13 per cent below last year's output. An average yield of 54 bushels per acre is forecast compared with last year's final yield of 57.

A state barley crop of 74 million bushels is anticipated this year, a 23 per cent decline from 1979. This year's yield of 41 is 12 bushels below last year.

Minnesota's projected flax production of 1.4 million bushels is 35 per cent less than last year's output. Yields should average 12 versus 14.5 bushels per acre in 1979.

The state's sugarbeet production is forecast at 3.5 million tons, seven per cent below last year. The estimated yield of 14.4 tons is down 1.1 from 1979. Acreage for harvest now estimated at 243,000 is down one per cent from last year.

Summer potato production is still estimated at 1.5 million hundredweight.

Historical Facts About Fighting Fires

The world's largest fire departments are in New York, London and Tokyo. Each has more than 10,000 employees.

In early Rome, fire alarms were sounded by fire sentinels who blew large, trumpet-like horns called bucinas.

A turbine-powered American LaFrance pumper, built in 1960 for the San Francisco Fire Department, featured a 325 brake-horsepower Boeing engine.

According to A-T-O Inc.'s American LaFrance division, the world's largest manufacturer of fire apparatus, horse-drawn steam pumpers didn't replace hand pumps in America until the mid-1800s.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My neighbor told me that her father had cancer of the colon. He said it's a common type of cancer that many people get. I sometimes have constipation and wonder whether this could be a symptom of colon cancer. What are the symptoms, and when should a person see a doctor about them? Also, what tests would have to be done?

Rochester Resident

Dear Rochester Resident:

Your neighbor is right — cancer of the colon (also called the "bowel") is a disease that many people get. In fact, it is the second commonest cancer in America.

One of the main symptoms of colon cancer is blood in the stools, which can appear either bright red, or black. Sometimes a change in bowel habits such as diarrhea or constipation is the first sign. Abdominal pain or discomfort is occasionally a warning signal.

If you discover blood in your stools, see your doctor right away. The other symptoms do not require immediate attention because they could be signs of a temporary upset in your digestive system. However, the American Cancer Society advises that if any such symptoms persist for more than two weeks you should see your doctor without further delay.

A rectal examination is generally the first test a doctor performs. If a tumor is present, it can often be felt with the end of the finger.

Next, the doctor will use a proctosigmoidoscope to examine the bowel more thoroughly. This instrument is a narrow tube, about 12 inches long, with a light at the end. The physician can look through the tube and see the inside of the bowel. If an area looks like it might be cancerous, a small sample of the tissue can be removed through the instrument. This tissue can then be examined with a microscope to determine whether cancer if present.

With the proctosigmoidescope, the doctor can see only a small length of the bowel, but it is the area in which two-thirds of all colon cancers are found. This examination, called a "procto," involves very little discomfort — contrary to what many people imagine.

In some cases, the doctor will decide to use another instrument called a fiberoptic colonoscope. This instrument is like the proctosigmoidoscope, but it is much longer, and it is flexible. With it, more of the large bowel can be examined.

If a tumor is suspected in the upper part of the bowel, the doctor may suggest an x-ray examination. For this, the colon is filled with a liquid containing barium. Then several x-ray pictures are taken. The barium allows the shape of the inside of the bowel to show up on the x-ray film. If a tumor is present, it will usually appear as an obstruction, or an irregularity.

Dear Cancer Answers:

You hear a lot about cancer spreading into lymph nodes, and from there to other parts of the body. What are lymph nodes, and how do they affect the spread of cancer?

L.M.

Dear L.M.:

Lymph nodes are small pea-shaped structures found all along the lumphatic system. The lymphatic system is made up of thin-walled tubes that carry tissue fluid from all parts of the body back to the heart. They resemble blood vessels in many ways. The tissue fluid is called lymph.

When cancer cells grow into one of the lymph tubes, they can begin spreading to distant parts of the body. Fortunately, the nodes often act as temporary barriers. Cancer cells may reach a node and remain there awhile, growing and causing the node to enlarge, but moving no farther for a period of time.

Eventually, though the cancer cells may break loose and travel inward. When the cells implant themselves in tissue at some distance from the original cancer and multiply to form new tumors, they are called "metastases."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My wife has recently been diagnosed as having breast cancer. We have two children, ages 8 and 10. Our problem is that we can't agree whether to tell them about their mother's cancer or to continue protecting them from knowing. What is the best way to handle this situation?

W.T.

Dear W.T.:

It is best not to try to keep your wife's cancer a secret from your children — you'll find that they intuitively know that something is going on. This is the consensus found by Morra and Potts, authors of the book, "Choices — Realistic Alternatives in Cancer Treatment".

It is probably frightening and confusing to your children not to understand what is happening, particularly if their mother has been hospitalized or is undergoing radiation or chemotherapy. Children need support and reassurance that whatever happens, they will continue to live, to be loved, and to grow. It is better to tell them as much as they are able to understand and give them a chance to share and help in the family's adjustment to your wife's condition.

Also, it may be helpful to tell your children's teachers that there is a serious illness in the family so they can understand and deal appropriately with any effects it may have on your children's school work or behavior.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Could you tell me the average costs incurred when you have cancer? Neither my wife nor I have cancer but there is a strong history of the disease in our families. We are trying to do some financial planning regarding our medical, disability and life insurance, and in doing so, want to approximate some of the typical health care costs. Thank you for your help.

Jim P.

Dear Jim P:

A 1978 Consumer Reports study estimated the average price tag of cancer to be about $20,000 per case for direct medical services, with the exception of minor forms of skin cancer.

The cost to the patient and his family can differ enormously, depending on how advanced the cancer is when it is diagnosed. Even basic hospital charges can run $200 or more per day, and Consumer Reports says an average hospital visit for a cancer patient is 15 days.

The indirect costs of cancer can be far greater, of course, taking into account reduced or lost earning powers due to illness and death.

In reviewing your disability benefits, you may want to consider the following questions:

Is there a waiting period before benefits begin: Does the waiting period vary depending on whether sickness or an accident is involved? How is total disability defined? Are there any benefits for partial disability? What is the amount of weekly or monthly benefits? (Between 50 and 60 per cent of gross income should be covered.) How long do regular payments continue? Are lifetime payments available? What provisions exist for renewing the policy?

In terms of life insurance, City Bank of New York has stated that five to eight times annual income is proper coverage for the breadwinner of the family, depending upon age. Of course, all of the above are just general guidelines and it would be best to speak with your personal insurance advisor to tailor a plan to your particular needs.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Can warts turn into cancer? Should they be removed to avoid this possibility?

Mrs. J.S.

Dear Mrs. J.S.:

Warts are a simple infectious disease of the skin, completely unrelated to cancer. They are caused by a virus that infects the epidermis, which is the outer layer of skin. Occasionally, warts appear on the moist membranes of the mouth or genital area — but these, too, are an infectious disease. There is no record of warts ever becoming cancerous.

About half of all warts disappear by themselves if left alone. Usually they need to be removed only when they are causing pain or other problems because of their size, number or location. Warts on the soles of the feet, for example, can cause considerable pain and are therefore generally removed. Often, individuals with warts seek treatment simply because they consider warts unattractive and embarrassing.

A sudden change in the appearance of a wart may be a sign of cancer. Some kinds of skin cancer can also look like warts. If you have a growth on your skin and you are not sure that it is a wart, or if the appearance of a wart begins to change, have it checked by your doctor. Remember, skin cancer, when treated early, is almost always curable.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My daughter is a sun-worshipper. She spends several hours a day at the public pool or in our backyard getting a tan.

I've told her that too much sun can cause cancer, but she says that only old people get that. All she cares about is how good her suntan looks.

What can I tell her that will convince her that so much sun is dangerous?

D.C.

Dear Cancer Answers:

How are cancer cells different from normal cells? How can doctors recognize cancer cells in tissues? How do these cells spread to other parts of the body?

Helen A.

Dear Helen A.:

Physicians and specially trained technologists can recognize cancer cells by looking at them under a microscope. When a piece of tissue is taken from the body and examined microscopically, the normal cells have an orderly appearance. Also, they possess the distinctive features of the organ from which they came. The cells from the thyroid gland, for example, are very different from those of the lymph nodes. Normal cells from different organs carry genetic "messages" that determine their structure and function.

The cancer cell is disorganized. Although cancer cells usually bear some resemblance to the cells in the organ from which they are taken, their sizes vary more and they do not collect together in the orderly way that normal cells do. Their appearance and behavior are unpredictable.

In normal tissue, when one cell grows and meets another, further cell division is stopped or it continues in another direction that is in keeping with the over-all pattern of the tissue. In cancerous tissue, the cells tend to grow in unruly clumps. They climb on each other in haphazard fashion, and the growth of the tumor tissue is unrestrained by nature's organized rules.

Basically, cancer cells contain no genetic message that tells them when to stop growing. They simply keep reproducing. And the only way to stop them is to destroy them by radiation therapy or chemotherapy, or to remove them by surgery.

Cancer cells can spread in several ways. Some cancers, like certain skin cancers, simply keep growing in the same location — becoming bigger and bigger until they invade normal neighboring tissue and destroy it. Other cancers keep growing in the original site, but they also spread via the bloodstream or lymphatic system. (The lymphatic system drains fluids from the body tissues and also plays a role in fighting infection.) When this happens, the cancer cells break loose from the original tumor, get into the blood or lymph, and are carried to distant parts of the body. There they start forming secondary tumors — called "metastases" — further invading and destroying normal tissue.

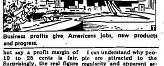
This is why early diagnosis and treatment are so important. If cancer can be identified before the cancer cells have a chance to break loose from the original (or "primary") tumor, the chances for complete destruction of the cancer are excellent.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

PROFIT!

Profits seem to be without honor in America today. Here, the executive vice president of finance of Georgia-Pacific, one of America's leading corporations, explains how business profits can profit all of us.

By Harry J. Kane



Business profits give Americans jobs, new products and progress.

Profits play a central role in our society; they are important to our way of life. They direct investment towards the goods and services that people want and are really willing to work for. In this sense, they are central to freedom and liberty.

Profits allow a company to stay in business, providing jobs for its employees. Reinvested profits create more jobs.

Kane

The largest parts of a company's earnings go to the government as tax, and as reinvestment to replace equipment and expand the business. The smallest part of profit goes to shareholders. This group includes small individual shareholders, as well as institutions like pension funds which depend on corporate profitability for their own prosperity.

Surveys show that most people estimate the profit margin on each sales dollar to be from 30 to 60 cents—but say a profit margin of 10 to 25 cents is fair. Surprisingly, the real figure is less than 5.5 cents for manufacturing companies!

Without profits, a central planning agency would decide what was to be produced, how, and to whom it would be distributed.

Russia is a model of why profits improve life for the average person. The Russians can accomplish fantastic things: witness their space program, their military establishment. Yet the system is a failure for the average Russian, whose standard of living is below the average American's. Long lines for food, clothing and other consumer goods are common in East Bloc countries.

Workers there have no incentive to work productively, no stake in the success of the enterprise. Profits from well-run businesses go to help poorly run ones.

I can understand why people are attracted to the regularity and apparent security of socialist or authoritarian regimes. I can't understand how they continue to admire them after comparing them to our own!

My favorite definition of profits is "return for risk." People will only invest their money where they believe they can obtain a return. And that return has to be adjusted for the risk involved in the investment.

Unless you have some risk, you have no progress. And when you have no progress, you eventually have social upheavals or other human disasters—which are the greatest risks of all.

When it comes to establishing products and product innovation, the U.S. is the leader. Our open free market system allows profits to be reinvested where they best serve the consumer.

You and Betty Crocker can Bake Someone Happy

Stir-In Sensations

If your desire to bake seems to take a vacation in the summer but your love of cakes does not, you'll like these quick and easy ideas that start with Stir 'n Frost® cake mixes.

The six flavors of these convenient cakes come complete with all you need... cake mix, frosting and pan. Just add water, stir in the pan and slide into a conventional or microwave oven. After it cools, frost with its own packet of ready-to-spread frosting. Easy to make with little cleanup, they're ideal for even the busiest summer day.

And the smaller, one-layer size makes them just the thing for picnics and lighter summer appetites.

Give your cake that little something extra by stirring in these creative touches you probably have on your kitchen shelf.

CHOCOLATE-ALMOND CAKE

Pastor and Mrs. Henry Mayor returned home Saturday after attending a pastor's conference of the Red River Valley Synod at Detroit Lakes. Sessons were held on Sept. 10, 11 and 12. There were two guest speakers: one spoke on the Holy Spirit and the church; and the other on communications. It was also a time of spiritual fellowship with other pastors and their wives.

Mrs. Ruth Anderson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Willard Brevik and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brevik of Karlstad to Red Lake Falls Sunday where they, together with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Johnson and Lois and Gerda Johnson of Middle River helped Kevin celebrate his 13th birthday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Brevik.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson returned home Thursday after spending 10 days visiting at the home of their son Roger and family at Missoula, Mt.

Mrs. Anna Brekke spent the weekend visiting at the home of her son Dennis and family at Warren. Others visiting at the Brekke home in Warren were Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Haroldson and Mr. and Mrs. Ragner Haroldson all of Hutchinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Minnie Pearson of Warren.

Pastor Henry Mayor visited with Ruth Holmstrom Thursday afternoon.

Sunday Eddy, Marcy and Kevin brought belated birthday greetings to Hugh Nelson. Others visiting there also were Art Nelson, Joan Johnson and children and Bob Lindstrom.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Kleinwachter and Toni spent the weekend at Two Harbors visiting at the Lee Olson home. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Olson of St. Paul were also visitors there.

Viola Fredricks visited Ruth Holmstrom Saturday evening.

Recent visitors at the Steve Chwialkowski home have been Pearl and Walter Grochowski, John Chwialkowski, Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Johnson and children, Dennis Chwialkowski, Todd and Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Chwialkowski and children, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hugg, Michael and Jonathan, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sollund and girls, Darwin Nelson, Erick, Elmer, Ervin and Gene Henrickson, Brian, Clayton and Stacey Westman.

Sunday dinner guests at the Anna Rud home following Sunday services at Bethseda were Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Rud and girls and Mabel Stromberg. Hulda and Mabel Stromberg were Wednesday supper guests at Anna Ruds. Others visiting at Anna's have been Johnny Rud, Margaret Ellefson and Mrs. Wesley Rud.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilman Stennes visited Florence Stennes at Stephen Tuesday and were supper guests at the Clifford Lunde home.

Gerda and Marion Johnson of Middle River visited Ruth Anderson Friday. They also visited Knute Swanson at the KMNC and later visited Edna Berg where they were coffee guests.

Rudy Lindgren visited Bertha Palm Thursday evening. He visited Andrew Stalock Friday afternoon and visited at Gust Johnsons Saturday afternoon.

Wednesday afternoon Ruth Holmstrom enjoyed another outing. Eleanor Johnson, Hilda Germundson and Frances Peterson all of Karlstad took Ruth to the KMNC to visit Bertha Holmstrom, Sadie Kushinski and Emma Lindberg. They also stopped at the Lena Larson residence so Lena could come out to visit with Ruth. Ruth really enjoyed the day and appreciated the thoughtfulness and help of the three ladies who helped her.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Anderson of rural Argyle visited Sunday afternoon at the Carl Johnson home.

Mrs. Roy Stennes, Gerry and Wendy, Gladys Johnson and Fern Kronz visited Adeline Stennes on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson of Park River, N.D. were Sunday guests at the Arthur Anderson home and also visited with Harold's sisters, Julia Kettelson and Ruth Storeby who are here visiting.

Irene Larson was a dinner guest at the Donald Nelson home Tuesday. She accompanied Janice Nelson to Warren in the afternoon to attend to some business and later they visited Aggie Hougard at the Good Samaritan home there. They also visited and were coffee guests of Mrs. Martha Larson before Irene returned home.

Nancy Boen took her horse to a 4-H region show at Crookston Saturday. Sunday Nancy celebrated her birthday by going to the Pizza Hut in Thief River Falls along with Michelle and Corey Boen, Melanie Lefrooth and Nancy McCullough.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Holmstrom were Sunday dinner guests at the Elsie and Ivan Kimbrough home. In the afternoon they all drove out near Drayton to visit at the Madeline Johnson home. Ernest and Myrtle Holmstrom have visited at the Elmer Holmstroms this past week.

Mrs. Gary Chwialkowski received the sad and shocking news that her parents drown while on a fishing trip at Pensacola, Fla. on Labor day. Mr. and Mrs. Gary and children left by plan to fly to Florida to attend the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludvik Stusynski, Ella Dean, Josie and Monica visited at Alvin Holmstroms Sunday evening.

Nan Hamberg of Thief River Falls visited Ruth Sunday bringing her early birthday greetings. Roger also visited at home Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Nelson and Kevin and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nelson, Jody, Jay and Nancy of Newfolden visited at the Nels Nelson home in Newfolden Friday evening.

There will be a products party Friday afternoon, Sept. 19 at the Irene Larson home in Strandquist at 2 p.m. You are welcome to attend or call.

Mrs. Julie Kittelson of Seattle, Wa. and Mrs. Ruth Storeby of Fergus Falls have been visiting their father, E. R. Anderson at the Karlstad hospital and with other relatives and friends for about a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Briff visited with Violet Lofstrom at Karlstad Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kleinwachter, Kent and Hope visited at the Glen Bridges home in Thief River Falls Sunday evening.

Strandquist Senior Citizen News

A good crowd of 25 gathered at our center on Thursday, Sept. 11, but for awhile we did not know how to get in. Mildred had gone to a meeting in Thief River Falls, thinking Polly would be there to open and Polly had other committments that day so she thought Mildred would open. I finally decided to go to Mildred's home and see if I could find a key, then back to open up.

Only Sara and Amanda worked. They rolled skeins of yarn into balls. They say when the cats away the mice will play. There was not enough prizes so we could not play bingo, but we had some visitors and it was nice just for once to sit and visit. Our guests were Julia Kettelson from Seattle, Wa., Ruth Storeby from Fergus Falls, Marguerite Ellefson of Karlstad, Jennie Filpula, Gerda Johnson and Alice Skoglund of Middle River, Peter Duvos of Baudette stopped in to say hi and to purchase tickets on our afghan and Bev Rux and Leatrice Larson also dropped in. Bev came to purchase some bed pillows.

Alice Skoglund gave our center a cute plastic decorated canister to sell when we have a sale later this fall. Thank you Alice. It's very pretty and useful. Three door prizes were given away. Jennie Filpula received Sara's gift; Gerda Johnson received Mabel's and Ida received Elsie's gift.

Evelyn Kline was Thursday's hostess.

Irene reporting

Mabel and Hulda Stromberg, Lennie Lofstrom and Jamie Donaldson visited Sally Weller on Sunday afternoon.

Ida Bruce accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Henfred Bernhardson to visit at the Robert Stromberg home near Radium Sunday afternoon and evening.

Florence Mayor, Marlys Lefrooth and Yvonne Boen drove to Cavalier, N.D. Tuesday to attend the women's retreat of the Northern Border district.

Thief River Falls school district will be scheduling a day of preschool screening for children who were four years of age prior to September 1 and who were not screened last spring. It will be held on Thursday at the United Methodist church in Thief River Falls.

This screening consists of: Educational and developmental — fine motor, gross motor, concepts and speech-language; medical — vision and hearing; lab — blood and urine, dental review and physical assessment.

If you have a child who became four prior to September 1 of this year, and your child has not been screened, please call 874-8215 at Newfolden.

Projected Affect of $15 Million School Bond Issue On District 564 Agricultural Property

160-Acre Farms With Ag and Homestead Credits

	1980 Estimated Market Value	Limited Market Value	Assessed Value	Mill Rate	Tax Payable
Farm A	$ 67,551	$ 50,041	$ 9,780	.91208	$ 372.66
Farm B.....	80,928	61,430	12,628	.91208	481.18

	1981 Market Value	Assessed Value	Mill Rate	Tax Payable	Rate With Bond	Tax Payable With Passage Of Bond Issue
Farm A.......	$ 80,000	$12,700	.91208	$396	.115208	$ 597.00

160 Acres Non-Homestead With Ag Credit Deducted

1980 Market Value	Limited Market Value	Assessed Value	Mill Rate	Tax Payable	Rate With Bond	Tax Payable With Passage Of Bond Issue
$67,551	$50,041	$12,510	.91208	$1,016
1981 Market Value

SEVERAL EXAMPLES of agricultural land taxes payable in 1980 and 1981, with and without the affect of the proposed $15,000,000 school bond issue, have been prepared by Gerard DeHaan, Pennington county assessor. The 1980 figures represent actual examples of two 160-acre tracts with homestead exemption. The 1981 figures are estimated projections on the same pieces of property. Because each agricultural property varies in valuation and applicable credits, the examples must be considered only calculated guesses. The mill levy of .91208 in 1980 is used for 1981 figures to provide a comparison, although it is expected to decrease because of increased valuations. On Farm A, paying $372.66 in taxes in 1980, the assessor projects $396 in taxes without a bond issue and $597 with a bond issue for 1981. On Farm B, paying $481 taxes for 1979, he projects $612 in taxes without a bond issue and $1,020 with a bond issue for 1981. On the non-homestead 160-acre example, taxes of $1,016 in 1980 would increase to $1,234 in 1981 without a bond issue and $1,600 with a bond issue.

First Aid, CPR Class Begins In Adult Program

An eight-hour class on first aid, will be conducted September 29 at the AVTI, room 110 from 6-10 p.m. for two consecutive Mondays. Fee is $6. The class uses audio-visual and demonstration techniques, and is designed to assist persons in caring for accident victims and-or persons who suddenly become ill. A Red Cross Certificate will be given to those completing the training.

An eight-hour class on Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) will also begin September 29 at the AVTI, room 120 from 6-10 p.m. for two consecutive Mondays. Fee is $7.

CPR is an emergency procedure to maintain life until an advanced life support facility is available. Fee includes materials which are needed in advance of course. Materials will be mailed upon receipt of registration fee. Limit: 10.

To pre-register for either class, contact Adult Education, AVTI; phone 681-5424.

Arctic Spirit Outboards And Suzuki Combine

Arctic Enterprises, Inc., today announced that it has entered into an agreement to combine its Spirit outboard operations with those of Suzuki International Sales Corp., Santa Fe Springs, Calif. Under the terms of the agreement, Suzuki will assume marketing responsibilities for both Spirit and Suzuki outboards in the U.S. Further details of the agreement were not disclosed.

Spirit outboards, which have been manufactured for Arctic by Suzuki Motor Co., Ltd. of Japan, contributed about $3,458,000 to Arctic's consolidated net sales in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1980.

Kenneth J. Severinson, Arctic's president, said, "Although the current model year Spirit outboard motor sales increased over last year, sales for the industry as a whole decreased in excess of 20 per cent. This decreasing market, together with the high cost of carrying inventory and the high cost of marketing makes it impossible for Arctic to continue in the business on a profitable basis and give the dealers the level of service and support they need in the outboard business.

"This agreement was made with Suzuki to insure that Spirit outboard dealers have the product support necessary to aid them in the market place," Severinson added. Arctic will distribute Spirit and Suzuki outboard brands in Canada through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Arctic Sports Products, Ltd.

"This transaction will free up the resources necessary to permit the company to be more aggressive with its other product lines," Severinson said.

Falls Delivered Meals To Begin Program October 1

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

It was in 1979 that Gloria Swanson decided to begin an "adventure" that would develop into the Falls Delivered Meals program in Thief River Falls.

"I kept hearing people say we needed a program, but no one wanted to start one," she said. "Talking about it created more interest. I finally decided, 'we've talked enough — let's do something'."

The process stemming from her idea involved doing a needs assessment to see if such a program was needed in this city, according to Swanson, who is now vice president and secretary of the board of directors for the program. Her search for the answer to the question of such a program being needed in this city carried her to such places as Grand Forks, Crookston and Minneapolis where she investigated home delivered meals programs, and met with directors of various agencies.

Once it was established that such a program was needed in the city, a board of directors had to be established to operate within the program and financial and legal matters had to be solved.

"We decided we didn't want the program to be government funded," she said, "so we began taking private donations."

A $4,000 grant from the city of Thief River Falls, and a $500 grant from L. B. Hartz, along with a private donation, aided in getting the program started, Swanson said. Legal services were donated by Curtis Charlson, local attorney, and Eugene Nesland of Nesland Accounting services in Thief River Falls donated his time for the program's organization, she said.

"It took a year and a half to do all of the legal work after we decided we were going to make the organization nonprofit," she said. "As soon as the organization became nonprofit we were able to move."

Presently there are nine members on the board of directors for the Falls Delivered Meals program, she said, including, Rev. J. M. Hovland, president; Gordon Ballingrud, treasurer (replacing Lawrence Bjorkman who had to retire due to health reasons); Miss Swanson, who is vice president and secretary; Debra Ernst, social services director at Northwestern hospital; LaRue Johnson of the Inter-County nursing service; and four members at large including Margaret Race, Libby Jones, Anna Waale and Helena Bolen.

The Falls Delivered Meals program is based on a program used in Michigan, according to Swanson.

It will officially be started October 1, Swanson said. Beginning on that date, one nutritional meal will be delivered a day to those persons unable to prepare or obtain their own meals. (Presently, 15 meals per day will be delivered, Swanson said.) Persons may be any age to receive the service, Swanson said. Those eligible include convalescents who might be discharged from the hospital earlier if meals were available in their homes; a person who is physically or emotionally handicapped; a person who feels that he or she

'80 United Way Campaign Starts

United Way campaign for $75,000 in the Thief River Falls area is underway following a kick-off breakfast held this morning.

"There will be no residential door-to-door canvass again this year," states Murial Olin, chairman of the United Way board. "To reach our goal of $75,000 every wage earner, business person and professional person is asked to contribute generously.

"Because United Way agencies serve people 12 months a year, employees and employers should consider their donation in terms of a monthly amount. Many firms are offering payroll deduction. In cases where deduction is not available, United Way billing will be provided on request."

Other assignments for board members are as follows:

Brochure — Bruce Steiger, chairman; Bruce Koppenhaver and Tippi Benson;

Business Canvass — Ron Nelson, Bruce Steiger, Nancy Tofte, Ila Anderson and Bruce Koppenhaver;

Arctic IWA — Fred Montry;

Arctic Office — Bruce Koppenhaver;

Hospital and Nursing Homes — Art Heinze;

Schools — Tippi Benson;

City, County and State Offices — Lloyd Rudd;

Rural, St. Hilaire and Goodridge — Jan Peterson and Barb Drees;

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Abrahamson-McKeever Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke on August 9 by Miss Betsy Abrahamson and Ralph McKeever, Jr., of Middle River.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Mylan Abrahamson and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McKeever, Sr., all of Middle River.

Rev. Robert Amundson officiated at the mid-afternoon, double-ring ceremony witnessed by 250 relatives and friends. At the organ was Mrs. Arliss Abrahamson, aunt of the bride. Terry Ruud, a friend, and Randy Larson, a cousin of the bride, sang "Never My Love," before the processional. During the ceremony, they sang "The Wedding Song," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Always and Forever," with guitar accompaniment. "O Perfect Love," was sung by the assembled guests. Following the exchanging of the vows and the lighting of the unity candle, the couple presented long-stemmed roses to their mothers.

As the processional "For Baby, For Bobbie," was played, the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. She was attired in a white polyester stain gown made by the mother of the groom. Sheen Venice lace, in pansy pattern, outlined the sweetheart neckline, accented the bodice and flowed down the skirt front, giving a peplum effect. Matching lace was repeated on the wide cuffs of the chiffon bishop sleeves and edged the chapel-length train. Her double-tiered finger-tip veil, edged with lace, was secured by a Juliet headpiece of a high-sheen Venice lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of peach roses, white daisies and babies' breath. For the old, new, borrowed and blue tradition, she wore a blue heirloom locket, worn at her mother's baptism, and carried her grandmother's handkerchief.

Brenda Abrahamson attended her sister as maid of honor. Other attendants were Julie Burrell, a friend, and Rachel McKeever, a sister of the groom. Their identical floor-length gowns of peach colored organza over taffeta, featured V-necklines and capelet sleeves with bow trim. Wide flounces encircled the skirts and extended up in back to a fabric flower at the waistline. The attendants wore a peach rose in their hair and carried silk nosegays, matching the fresh flowers in the bride's bouquet.

Best man was Larry McKeever, Killdeer, N.D., brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Jim Toren, a friend, and Bradley Abrahamson, a brother of the bride. Ushers were Bryce Abrahamson, brother of the bride, Brian Abrahamson, a cousin of the bride, and Bob Strandberg and Del Roy Johnson, friends of the couple. All wore tuxedos with the groom in all white tuxedo and his attendants in toast brown.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of peach taffeta with a white floral overlay. The groom's mother was attired in a peach polyester gown styled with a lace blouson top and a pleated skirt. Their rose corsages were in peach and peach-tipped, respectively.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Skadsem, grandparents of the groom; Mrs. Renee Stanislawski, godmother of the bride; and Wayne Larson, godfather of the bride.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed were Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Anderson, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mrs. Robin Asp, a cousin of the groom, registered the guests as Sherree Knutson and Tina Lucken, friends of the bride, ladeled the punch. The wedding programs were distributed by Kristin Anderson, niece of the bride, and Lorna Skadsem, a cousin of the groom.

The wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with peach rosebuds, was topped by an ornament featuring doves and a marriage symbol entwined with wedding bands. A cherub figurine graced the area beneath the pillars. The cake was cut and served by the bride's godmother and Mrs. Bernice McKeever, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Judie Johnson and Mrs. Elaine McKeever, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, presided at the coffee service.

Waitresses were Ann Abrahamson, Darcie McKeever, Tamra Bengtson, Lynnae Ness, Michelle Stanislawski and Vickie Munter. Lee and Lynde Pemberton, Jennifer Anderson and Tom Fisher were in charge of the gifts. Mrs. Bruce Abrahamson pinned the flowers.

Following the rehearsal, the groom's dinner, featuring American and Oriental foods, was held at the groom's parental home.

The bride is a graduate of Middle River high school and the East Grand Forks AVTI, and is employed as medical secretary in the radiology department at Northwestern hospital.

The groom is also a graduate of the Middle River high school. He is an, independent dragline operator, currently employed by Marshall county. The couple is living in Middle River. Photo, Associates Advertising, Inc., Thief River Falls

Rev. And Mrs. J. Aarhus Note 40th Anniversary

Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Aarhus observed their 40th wedding anniversary on August 24, at an open house from 2:30 to 5:00 p.m., at the Bethel Lutheran Brethren church in Fergus Falls.

The program and reception were given in their honor by their children: Mrs. Willmore (JoAnn) Gunderson, West Orange, N.J.; Mrs. Bruce (Ruth) Vallevik, Wahpeton, N.D.; James Aarhus, Minot, N.D., and David Aarhus, Moorhead.

Mrs. Aarhus is the former Alice Bredeson, who taught several years in Northrop school in this city. She and Rev. Aarhus were married Dec. 30, 1940 in Zion Lutheran church in this city. They have served Lutheran parishes in Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa and Washington. They are now semi-retired, residing in Carlisle.

Ann Hovde-Howard Goethe Vows Spoken At Baudette

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hovde of Baudette. Parents of the groom are Mr., and Mrs. Herbert Goethe of Goodridge.

Officiating at the ecumenical ceremony were Rev. Ray Quesnel and Rev. Keith Prekker. Organist was Lorene Ubel. She played "Colour My World," and "The Wedding March," and also accompanied Ronald Hanson and Ardith Thorstad as they sang "Love One Another," and "God, A Woman, and A Man."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length gown with a blouson bodice featuring reembroidered lace on the sheer yoke. Matching lace trimmed the sleeves and complemented her flowing mantilla. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and lilies of the Valley, arranged by Carol Hanson.

Attending the bride were his sisters: Mary Ellen Hovde, as maid of honor; and Patricia Beckel and Susan Hovde as bridesmaids. They wore yellow floor-length gowns, topped by floral jackets, and carried arm bouquets of long-stemmed yellow roses.

Attending the groom as best man was Mike Hemmesvedt, a friend. Groomsmen were Kevin Klockman, a cousin, and Jeffrey Hovde, a brother of the bride. The guests were ushered in by Tony Beckel, brother-in-law of the bride, Rod Hopkins and Ben Kleinwachter, brothers-in-law of the groom. All wore brown tuxedos with yellow shirts. The groom's shirt was white, trimmed in brown.

Rachel Hanson, a niece of the groom, served as flower girl. The rings were carried by Michael Hovde, a brother of the bride. Their attire corresponded with those worn by the other attendants.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. George Lindquist served as hostess. To accent the bride's chosen colors, the tables were decorated with yellow roses and ferns, made by Carol Hanson and Gladys Lindquist. At the guest book was Tami Sorenson, a friend of the bride. Diane Hanson, sister of the groom, poured the punch. The wedding cake, made by Colleen Pachel, was cut and served by the groom's sisters: Esther Hopkins and Delores Kleinwachter. Helen Hendrickson, aunt of the bride, poured the coffee.

After a wedding trip to Alexandria, the couple is now at home at 524 LaBree in Thief River Falls where both are employed. The bride is a graduate of the Lake of the Woods high school, Baudette, and the Thief River Falls AVTI. She is employed by the Ramsey Eye Clinic. The groom, a graduate of Goodridge high school and the local AVTI, is employed by Forsbergs, Inc. Photo: Image Photo — Rainy River, Ont., Canada

Northern Division Represented At REAM Meeting

Three units of the northern division of Retired Educators Association of Minnesota (REAM) were represented at the district workshop held in Thief River Falls on Wednesday, September 10, at the Rex cafe.

Units represented and those attending were Paul Bunyan unit of Bemidji; Mrs. Bert (Selecta) Thoren, president; Hazel Hogenson, Rev. and Mrs. Bratrud and Mrs. Marie Bishop; Hallock unit: Gladys Sutherland, president; Martha Lindholm, Margaret Anderson, Nora Nicholson and Ann Hanson; Northland unit: Myrtle Myrin, acting president; Bertha Anderson, Bertha Hastad, Celaine Votava and Anna Waale. The Agassiz unit with Olga Engevik as president was not represented.

Five members were invited from each group with the cost paid by NRTA.

Speaking to the group were Don O. Erter, assistant regional representative from the Kansas City National Retired Teachers association; and Mrs. Myrtle Beggren of Moorhead, assistant state director. Slides were also shown on "Minnesota 55 Alive," the new mature driver's program. It was noted that of the 12 million drivers, over 55 years of age, only 15 per cent were involved in accidents. People in that age bracket comprise 21 per cent of the driving population.

The meeting began at 9:00 a.m., with coffee and rolls.

Deer Park Club Holds Vegetable Tasting Luncheon

Members of the Deer Park garden club heralded the end of the gardening season at a recent meeting of the club held at the home of Marion Marquis. To highlight the meeting, each member brought a dish featuring a new vegetable variety to add to the tasting-luncheon. Each variety was identified by the contributor.

President Ethel Wiseth presided at the meeting, which included election of officers. Mrs. Wiseth was reelected to serve as president. Others elected were Marion Marquis, vice president; Selma Sanders, secretary; Lois Swanson, treasurer; Luella Peterson and Inga Coan, co-chairmen of the good cheer committee, south and north, respectively; Dorothy Svanjord, publicity; and Helen Chervestad, historian.

In preparation for the 1981 program booklets, ideas for coming events were discussed. Copies of the year's financial statements were given to the members with a summarization by Lois Swanson, treasurer. Correspondence was a letter from the 13th District Horticultural Society announcing the annual meeting to be held Saturday, September 27, at the Viking school. The theme of the meeting will be "Paths of Horticulture."

Adding interest to the meeting was the viewing of cards, gifts and pictures of the club's 20th anniversary celebration, which will be added to the club's history book.

The next meeting of the Deer Park garden club will be held October 7 at the Dorothy Svanjord home.

St. Bernard's Guild To Plan Fall Activities

St. Bernard's Catholic Guild will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m., at the church.

All members are encouraged to attend as the church bazaar and senior citizens' activities will be planned. All circles are asked to be represented, esepcially the August, September, October and November circles.

BPO Does To Honor Past Presidents On Tues.

Past Presidents will be honored at the regular meeting of the BPO Does to be held Tuesday at 8:00 p.m., at the Elks club.

All members are encouraged to attend. Lunch and entertainment will follow the meeting.

Officers will practice at seven o'clock.

Chat And Chew Homemakers Elect Officers

Officers were elected and program booklets were completed at the meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club held September 10 at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Murphy. All 11 members attended the meeting.

Elected as officers for the coming year were Mrs. Betty Feragen, president; Mrs. Vi Sullivan, vice president; Mrs. Betty DeHaan, treasurer; Miss Geneva Overum, secretary and publicity chairman; Pauline Aubol, junior councilor; and Carol Narverud, senior councilor. Out-going president Wanda Murphy presided at the meeting.

Pauline Aubol distributed the 1980-81 program booklets, which were completed at the members selected the month they wished to serve as hostess and the month they were willing to lead the topic. The members also drew names for their new secret pals. Gifts were presented as last year's secret pals were revealed. The possibility of a brief outing in the near future was also discussed.

The topic based on Christmas crafts was given by Pauline Aubol. To add interest, she displayed samples of several crafts.

Lunch was served by the hostess. During the social period, the members present signed a friendship card for Lena Hayes, a former member who is residing in Bethany Nursing home in Alexandria.

City View 4-H Performs At State Fair

"Twas the Night Before the Fair" was the share-the-fun number performed by the City View 4-H club for a large crowd of state fair visitors recently. The act was directed by Linda Reierson and narrated by Cindi Solem. Coreen Larson accompanied the cast with an original composition, "Decision of the Marchers".

Cast of characters included Lori Reierson, Steve Waswick, Jason Boughton, Robin Bruggeman, Jodi Fimrite, Kirby Hamre, Steve Erickson, Denise Ayers, Darla Ayers, Debbie Souto, Karen Schmitz, Jeff Hamness, Diane Ayers, Nicki Boughton and Stacey Vagle.

Share-the-fun performance is a non-competitive event provided for the entertainment of the state fair visitors. State 4-H staff work with the share-the-fun performers prior to the performance, giving them tips on staging and acting.

'80 Yearbooks Here; Signing Party Thursday

Weekend For Couples Slated By Methodists

Insight weekend — an enrichment experience for couples sponsored by the Thief River Falls United Methodist church — will begin Friday and continue until Sunday mid-afternoon near Park Rapids. Participants are expected to be present for the entire weekend.

Cost of the program is $50 with $10 payable in advance with registration. The fee covers room, board and all materials used in the program. Sign-up may be accomplished at the church office or by calling 681-4388.

Rev. Jonathan Law explained that the church created its own weekend retreat two years ago in response to needs of families in stressful times. He said the program draws on the resources of several nationally-known programs including "Marriage Enrichment", "Marriage Encounter" and "Couple Communication".

Participants will be guided through exercises which can help them discover some important things about themselves, their partners and their marriages, Rev. Law said. In addition, there will be suggestions of various patterns of relating which may be new ways for couples to enhance their relationships, he added.

Persons from other congregations have participated in the past and couples from other churches are again invited. Further information is available at the United Methodist church office.

75 At Hearing With Highway Task Force

It is intended that the task force consist of highway users other than persons whose primary business is highway design, highway construction, and highway transportation services, according to Gov. Quie.

Many area speakers presented their views to task force members as both oral and written testimony were taken at the hearing. Some of those speakers included: Bob Wolfe, district engineer with the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn-DOT) from Bemidji; Cliff Larson, Mn-DOT resident engineer from Thief River Falls; Glenn Ellinger, Mn-DOT maintenance engineer from Crookston; Terry Courneya, county extension agent from Pennington county; and Bob Miller, manager of the St. Hilaire elevator.

Main topics of concern to those at the meeting were the need for the 10-ton all weather highways, and establishment of economic need for highways as well as traffic count when determining priorities.

According to a news release including statements by Ken Eklund, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Economic Development in St. Paul, good highway facilities reduce transportation costs, allowing Minnesota's industries to be more competitive. These sayings, he said, can ultimately be passed on to the consumer.

Agriculture is our state's largest industry, he said. And agricultural production is growing each year. Rural areas of the state are more dependent than ever on highways for transporting farm commodities to elevators or subterminals.

In 1978 and 1979, highway construction costs increased 21 per cent each year. A quarter of a million dollars in projects have been cancelled in less than a year, he stated. This was not only new projects but badly needed reconstruction of existing roads.

In the early 1960s, Minnesota's construction cost index, which reflects the effects of inflation on highway construction costs, began to have a negative impact on the actual buying power of the motor fuel tax. And this trend has continued, he added. While the tax rate has been raised six cents since 1963, the buying power has declined rapidly.

The agribusiness industry is critically dependent on highway transportation, with 35 per cent of the total truck miles traveled annually in Minnesota related to agricultural transportation, he said.

Various points that the governor's task force took into consideration and made recommendations on included determining economic dependence on highways; recommending long range highway needs to insure economic vitality; priority of highway objectives; estimating funding needed; and recommending fund sources, improved highway resource efficiency, and the strategy for simplementation.

Following the hearing and luncheon at Lon's, Task Force members left Thief River Falls, traveling to the St. Hilaire elevator, to East Grand Forks, Crookston, Beltrami, and on to Ada where the second public hearing was conducted. From there, members traveled to Fergus Falls before continuing to Alexandria for a hearing September 18.

Registration Of Girl Scouts At St. Hilaire

Girl scout registration will be held at St. Hilaire today (Monday) from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

All parent consent forms must be signed and a $3 registration fee will be charged.

If unable to attend contact one of the following: Fourth and fifth graders — Mrs. Donald Appel, 964-5355; second and third graders — Mrs. Lawrence Larson 964-5404; or Kathy Turner, association chairman, 681-3361.

Scout Pack 57 Sets Round-up

Cub scout Pack 57 will hold a round-up for boys in grades 3-5 on Tuesday in the basement of St. Bernard's Catholic church. Parents are urged to attend.

STRANDQUIST . . .

Our community was shocked and saddened Sunday when we learned of the sudden passing of Hjalmer Gustafson.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Seidl of Sleepy Eye stopped at Paul Flatens recently while here attending to farming interests at the former Borsvold farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Thun, Ella Thun, Grace Boen, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Boen, Mr. and Mrs. Wally Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Braff, Mr. and Mrs. James Larson and Chris Johnson were among others who attended the threshing bee celebration near Strathcona Sunday.

APPROXIMATELY 75 persons attended the public hearing conducted at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls last Wednesday to express concerns on the economy and roads in the region to the Governor's Task Force members in attendance. Pictured is George Wikstrom, Jr. of Karlstad. Task Force members listened to transportation needs in the area and discussed funding sources seen as the most effective means of paying for our transportation system.

Adult And Community Education Classes Listed

A number of courses have been made available through the Thief River Falls area community and adult education program for those wishing to further their education.

Parent Class Focuses On Discipline

"Discussions on Discipline", a two-hour parenting session September 30, will be led by Peggy Johaningsmeir. It will meet from 7-9 p.m. at the AVTI, room 103 with $1.50 charged.

The class will focus on understanding and dealing with children's misbehavior. What are some of the causes of misbehavior in children of various ages? What are some appropriate and effective ways we can respond? Participants will have a chance to discuss some of the particular problems they, and other parents face.

Pre-register by contacting Adult Education, AVTI; 681-5424.

School Board Ass'n. Sponsors Regional Meets

Minnesota school boards association (MSBA) will sponsor 24 regional meetings starting Monday, the first step in developing MSBA's 1980 legislative program. Meetings in this area will be at Karlstad school music room Tuesday and Fertile high school cafeteria Wednesday.

Candidates for Minnesota's House and Senate have been invited and will participate in a candidates' forum. Discussions will include aid reductions, school finance, taxation issues, governance and federal legislation.

MSBA staff members conducting the meetings are: W.A. Wettergren, Executive Secretary; Willard Baker, Associate Executive Secretary; and James Jacobs, Administrative Assistant. It is anticipated that over 2,000 school board members and administrators will participate in the meetings.

All meetings begin at 7:30 p.m.

Reminder On Handicapped Parking Given

Thief River Falls police department has received a number of favorable comments from handicapped persons in regard to the department's emphasis on keeping handicapped parking areas open for people who need to use them.

Vehicles parking in the areas designated for handicapped must have the sticker designating such eligibility, according to chief Ken Froschheiser. He said the restriction applies in all places where the signs for handicapped parking are posted, including apartments, restaurants and other areas.

Drivers violating the restriction will be ticketed for illegal parking.

Chamber Sets Quarterly Meet For Sept. 30th

"A Fresh New Look for the Eighties", the program of action for the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, will be reviewed at a quarterly meeting of the chamber to be held Tuesday, September 30, at 7 a.m. at the Best Western Inn.

According to Dale Dillon, president of the organization, each committee will report on its activities at the meeting and project plans for future work. A charge of $1.75 will be made for the continental breakfast and all chamber members are encouraged to plan to attend.

The program of action is a result of information obtained at the general membership meeting held during the past summer. Short and long range goals, major priorities and goal objectives of each committee are outlined in the booklet.

4-H Horsemen Earn Places

Last week was northwest Minnesota's first Northwest Regional 4-H horse show in which 70 horses from 14 different counties were entered.

Representing Pennington county in the show were Rona Broten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Broten, and Mark, Susie and Jackie Thune, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Norris Thune, all of Thief River Falls.

Susie Thune had the best day, placing second in barrel racing, third in western horsemanship, fourth in halfter showmanship and fifth in the pole weaving competition. Mark Thune placed first in western horsemership, fourth in egg and spoon and fourth in reining. Jackie Thune placed first in egg and spoon and Rona Broten placed fourth in western pleasure.

Blood Drive At Goodridge Is Called Success

Blood drive conducted in Goodridge by the Goodridge Lions club last Wednesday was declared a success by club president Robert Wiseth.

"Sixty-six units of good Scandinavian and Polock blood were added to the bank of the United Blood services at Fargo," Wiseth boasted. He and Gary Iverson, registered donors, Emma Kassa gave telephone reminders to donors Wednesday morning and Joe Schlofer served coffee, juice and cookies.

United Blood services succeeds the former Northern Blood bank which formerly served Northwestern hospital and the Thief River Falls area.

Falls Delivered Meals Program Starts Oct. 1

cannot purchase and prepare adequate meals for himself or herself; a disabled or elderly person living with relatives who may need the service during a family vacation, or perhaps at noon when adults are employed away from home. But persons qualifying are only those who are homebound, Swanson stressed.

The determination of who can qualify for the program is made by a doctor's referral, the nursing service, a social worker, family or friend, pastor, or the person can refer himself, she said.

"Most are referred through the social services or through the Inter-County nursing service," she added.

Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls will prepare all of the meals, Swanson said. And, those receiving the meals are charged $2.50 per meal — if they are able to pay that price. "If they can't pay, they are charged a fee according to their income guidelines," she said. "No one will be denied the service because of inability to pay."

Meals prepared at the hospital include those for a diabetic diet, a low sodium diet, a dental soft diet and a regular diet, Swanson said. Workers at the hospital place the food in Styrofoam containers to keep them hot, while volunteers deliver them to the persons qualifying for the service between noon and 1 p.m. Monday through Friday except holidays, she said. Portable ovens are used for the deliveries. Presently, the program will utilize five of the ovens, Swanson said. The ovens are all aluminum and weigh less than 18 pounds.

Any person desiring the service must apply for a meal within the program, Swanson said. Following this, a screening committee (composed of Rev. James Bernauer, Debra Ernst and LaRue Johnson) interviews the applicants. Then volunteer coordinators of the program (Margaret Race and Mae Peterson) send a release form to the person's doctor who determines that the applicant is homebound, the meal will not jeopardize the person's health, and what type of diet is necessary for the applicant. After this has been done, he sends the statements back to the coordinators of the program.

If all standards are met, the applicant will begin receiving a meal, Swanson said.

Initial eligibility determination is to be made by a representative of the social service center, nursing service or Northwestern social service. An ongoing case review no less than every three months will be done by a coordinator to determine the need for the service, according to information supplied by Swanson on the program.

Collections for the service are made Fridays by a volunteer, or checks to Falls Delivered Meals Inc., may be mailed directly to the office at P.O. Box 295, Thief River Falls.

Contributions for the program or to make arrangements for public information meetings on the program may be made by calling Swanson at 681-6832.

It's Willie's second picture — he made his acting debut last year as Robert Redford's manager in "The Electric Horseman". This time, he's starring as a bandleader who loses his heart to Amy Irving, playing the guitar-picking daughter of his lead guitarist. Composer of hundreds of intensely personal songs, Willie's known for such favorites as "Hello", "Walls" and "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain". The score of "Honeysuckle Rose" will incorporate new songs of Willie's as well as past hits, with the lyrics being used almost as part of the dialogue. Opens Wed., Sept. 24 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

E. Mousley Rites Held At St. Bernard's

Funeral services for Emmett Mousley, 79, of this city were held Thursday at 11:00 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Mousley died Monday morning at his home.

Rev. John Kleinwachter officiated at the services. Mrs. Roger Amundson served as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Belmont Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Serving as active pallbearers were John Michael Anderson, Gote Anderson, Erland Anderson, Oreal Halland, Clark Dyrud, and Millard Nelson.

Emmett Mousley was born in Litchfield on Sept. 4, 1901 to Frank and Hannah Mousley. At the age of one year, he came to Thief River Falls with his parents. He had since made his home here.

In 1936, he started the Mousley Sign company which he operated until his retirement in 1979.

He was married Aug. 28, 1943 in Thief River Falls to Verna Becker. She survives.

Also surviving are a son, Frank Mousley, Appleton, Wis.; four daughters: Catherine Mousley, New York, N.Y.; Mrs. Raymond (Margaret) Anderson, Minneapolis; Mrs. Karl (Maureen) Mousley-Ludwig, Greenville, Calif.; and Sheryl Mousley, St. Paul; five grandchildren and two sisters: Mrs. Helen Nelson and Mildred Mousley, both of Detroit, Mich.

He was preceded in death by his parents and two brothers.

J. Veenstra Services Held At Crookston

Funeral services for Joseph S. Veenstra, 73, of Crookston were held Thursday at 10:00 a.m., at the Chruch of Christ. Veenstra, an employee of the Minnesota State highway department for 32 years, died Monday at his home.

Rev. Ray Dietz officiated at the services. Interment was in the Oakdale cemetery at Crookston with the Houske Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Joseph S. Veenstra was born Oct. 21, 1906 at Crookston to Sam and Nellie O'Neil Veenstra. He attended school and grew to manhood in Crookston. In 1923, he moved to Niagara, Wis., and was employed there by the Kimberly Clark Paper mill. He returned to Crookston in 1925 to help his father on the farm.

On Nov. 2, 1928, he was married at Crookston to Hazel Frisbie. The following year, the couple moved to Chicago, Ill., where Veenstra was employed by the Santa Fe railroad and the Ford Motor company. In 1935, they returned to the Crookston area and opened a filling station and store at Shirley, which they operated until 1943. In April of 1940, Veenstra began working for the Minnesota State Highway department, a position he held until his retirement on June 27, 1972. He received the State of Minnesota Governor's award in 1971 for 30 years of on the job safety.

During World War II, he served in the Minnesota Home Guard.

He was a member of the Church of Christ, served as deacon, was Sunday school superintendent for many years, and also taught the adult Bible class. He was past president of the State highway department employees local union and was past president of the Washington school parent and teacher association. He played "Taps" for the Veterans Council of Crookston at many of the funerals in that area.

He is survived by his wife, one son; Myron Veenstra, College Park, Md.; a daughter, Mrs. Jerome (Priscilla) Amolt, Crookston, four grandchildren, a brother, Leonard Veenstra, San Marcus, Calif.; and three sisters: Mrs. Leon (Bertha) Pierce, Euclid; Mrs. Lawrence (Sophie) Kugler, Minneapolis; and Nettie Veenstra, Crookston.

He was preceded in death by his parents, a son, two brothers and two sisters.

Raoul Welch, Once Of TRF, Dies Sept. 11

Raoul A. Welch, 57, a former resident of Thief River Falls, died unexpectedly on September 11, at his home at 6970 Clay Avenue East, Inver Grove Heights. Mass of Christian Burial was offered there on Monday, September 15, at 11 a.m., at the Church of St. Patrick. Interment was in the National cemetery at Fort Snelling.

Raoul A. Welch was born in Thief River Falls and attended school here. At the time of his death, he was employed as a machinist.

He was a member of the VFW post 295, and the Machinists local 459.

He is survived by his wife, the former Bernadette Schires of Red Lake Falls; five sons: Stephen Welch, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Thomas, Rosemount; Leonard, and Charles, both of Inver Grove Heights, and James, Eagan; three daughters: Mrs. William (Michelle) Falk, Minneapolis; and Mrs. Richard (Susan) Rowell and Catherine Welch, both of Inver Grove Heights; and nine grandchildren.

Also surviving are his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Scherer, a brother, James Welch, and two sisters: Mrs. Harlan (Lucille) Bailey, and Mrs. Evelyn Miller, all of South St. Paul.

He was preceded in death by his father, Alex Welch, a sister, Helene Leach, and one brother, David.

Dear friends,

A funeral in the family gives rise to all kinds of needs to be met - seeing that someone is available to go on errands - to care for children - to take over in the kitchen. Notification of family advisors, such as the attorney, insurance agent, the bank where a safe deposit box is held. Close relatives and friends can render such kindly assistance.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Midwest May Avoid Serious Economic Drop

The Upper Midwest may avoid a significant economic slowdown for the rest of this year and in 1981, according to the current "Quarterly Review" of the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis. The region, though, will probably have to live with double-digit inflation through at least 1981, the "Quarterly" predicts.

The region is composed of Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, northwestern Wisconsin, and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Specifically, the "Quarterly" reports that employment in the region increased one per cent in the first half of this year and predicts that for the year it will be up two per cent from 1979. It also reports that the region's inflation rate was 12.4 per cent (annual rate) in the first half of the year and predicts that it will average 13 per cent for the year.

In its preliminary forecast for 1981, the Federal Reserve publication predicts that employment in the region will increase 2.4 per cent and that inflation in the region will decrease only slightly, to 12 per cent. For comparison, many forecasters expect that in the nation as a whole in 1981 employment will increase very little or not at all and inflation will be about 10 per cent.

During the first half of 1980, the region's economy did not seem to languish as much as the nation's, the "Quarterly" reports. It is difficult to compare the region's economic growth to the nation's, because there is no regional measure of output that corresponds to real gross national product. But employment grew one per cent in the region while it declined almost one per cent in the nation as a whole.

The publication's prediction for moderate growth and high inflation in the region comes from the Minneapolis Federal Reserve bank's forecasting model. The preliminary data for the second half of 1980 support the model's prediction. Home sales have begun to improve — the dollar value of mortgage loan applications increased 44 per cent between June and July. Although the drought reduced crop yields, the decline in farm income may have been halted by the government's increased price supports and by recent increases in the prices of farm products, according to the publication.

Marijuana New Great Threat To Lung Tissue

Greatest single new threat to the lungs of U.S. citizens comes from marijuana smoking, warns Robert L. Dupont, M.D., president of the American council on marijuana and former director of the National institute on drug abuse.

Dr. Dupont will be among experts to speak at the tobacco, marijuana and health conference, November 12-13, at the Sheraton Inn NW, Brooklyn Park. Conference is designed especially to meet the needs of state educators and health professionals and is sponsored by the Lung associations of Minnesota and Mankato state university.

Dr. Dupont has said that "American young people are literally the only population in the history of the world in which large numbers of an entire population have smoked marijuana." Dupont cites statistics indicating well over half of those between 18 and 25 years of age use marijuana.

Particular attention at the conference will be given to health problems related to the use of tobacco and marijuana in our schools and to strategies that have been employed to deal with the problems and promote healthy lifestyles.

College credit is available for those attending the conference and continuing education credit will be granted to participating nurses. Conference fees are $45 for two days and $25 for one. For more information, contact Penny Gottier, Minnesota lung association, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55102 (612) 227-8014.

Also cooperating in this conference are the office of alcohol and other drug abuse programming (AODAP), at the U of M, the State department of education, and the Minnesota association for health, physical education and recreation (MAHPER).

Solar Collector Class Begins Oct. 1 At AVTI

Thief River Falls AVTI is offering a Flat-Plate Air-Heating Solar Collector Construction class beginning October 1. Class will meet for 10 Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m. at the AVTI, room A123. Tuition fee is $75.

The class will identify and explain those principles which influence the design, construction, and installation of solar collectors and to indicate items that may require maintenance. At the conclusion of class, students will be able to identify and describe the functions of the individual components of a solar collector, construct a typical flat plate solar collector, install a typical solar collector array, size and locate the thermal storage unit in a system, and size a solar heating system for residential buildings. A 4x8 flat plate collector will be built by each student, which meets the energy tax credit requirements.

Instructor, Leland Hayes, holds certification in sizing and installation of solar energy systems in residential buildings from Colorado State University; practical design and economics of solar heating and cooling systems from the University of Colorado; Minnesota certified as mini-energy auditor, and is a member of the International Solar Energy Society and American Section ISES.

To pre-register contact adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI; phone 681-5424.

New VA Benefit Helps Pay For Grave Markers

A new Veterans administration benefit has helped pay for headstones or grave markers for almost 40,000 veterans buried in private cemeteries since it first became available in 1979.

The legislation permits VA to reimburse part of the cost of an individual headstone or marker placed on the grave of a veteran buried in a private cemetery. Reimbursement cannot exceed the average cost of headstones purchased by VA for this purpose. Current amount is $53.

Families of veterans who select a burial site for a deceased veteran in a private cemetery now have two options for VA assistance in marking the grave. VA will provide a headstone or grave marker free of charge and ship it to the consignee designated on the application. Cost of placing the marker in a private cemetery must be borne by the applicant, however. If a marker other than the VA standard is chosen, VA will reimburse up to $53 toward its cost.

Application for reimbursement can be filed at any VA regional office. Applications for the VA headstone or marker should be addressed to Director, Monuments Service, Department of Memorial Affairs, Veterans Administration, 810 Vermont Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20420.

The VA assistance on headstones is in addition to the $300 VA burial allowance and a $150 plot allowance, according to the agency.

TASK FORCE MEMBERS gathered for a public hearing at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls Wednesday for a discussion on the economy and roads of the region, through which they travel from on-bus experts, visual experience and public meetings. Of major concern at the meeting was the need for 10-ton loads on highways, and the economic need for highways.

SEN. MARV HANSON was one of several speakers who appeared at the hearing last Wednesday at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls to present comments to the Governor's Task Force on Highways for Economic Vitality.

Program Helps In Electronic Game Selection

Electronic games seem to be everywhere. But how do you decide which game to buy? A consumer guide is now available to help you select the right game from the hundreds in toy departments.

"Choosing Electronic Games" is a 45-minute program designed to help consumers answer this question in very personal terms. Created by JCPenney consumer affairs department, the program is available on loan to community groups from the Penney store in Thief River Falls. The kit containing the program includes a complete leader's guide to planning and presenting the program; a 10-minute slide show with cassette tape; three electronic games and a chance to try them; and a take-home guide, "Choosing an Electronic Game," for everyone.

Electronic games fall into five general categories. For children who need to build their confidence in math or spelling there are a variety of "learning-skills" games. Sports fans can pick their favorite from the "sports-target" games. Many of the "memory-concentration" games are based on repeating back longer and longer sequences of musical notes. "Information-quiz" games can appeal to any age group depending on the type and level of information programmed into the game. "Logic-strategy" games range from the familiar blackjack, chess and bridge to new games that pit your human logic against that of the mini-computer in the game.

The program gives sensible guidelines to help make those choices and get the most for gift-giving dollars.

For more information about the program, or to schedule a date for a program for your organization, contact store manager Bill Duckworth.

Area Audubon Society To Meet On Wednesday

Agassiz Audubon Society will stage its fall meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pennington County Sportsmen's club.

Featured speaker will be Carroll Henderson, non-game supervisor for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Henderson will talk about the DNR non-game program, and will discuss the "Chickadee Check-off," a new program where citizens may return part of their tax refund to the state to pay for non-game programs.

The meeting is open to the public.

Welfare Board Meets Tuesday

Pennington county welfare board will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Pennington county court house in Thief River Falls.

A name game to get acquainted was played and then the meeting was adjourned.

Survey Shows UM Graduate Satisfaction

Nine out of ten spring 1977 graduates of the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, indicated at least "slight" satisfaction or better with their "University experience," according to a recent survey conducted jointly by the offices of student affairs and academic affairs.

In general, the survey found that proportionately more graduate and professional school students than undergraduate degree holders thought their education would help them get jobs.

The Former student survey project is the first in a series of student surveys scheduled to be done every four years. The information collected through the survey is meant to assist in program planning and evaluation, and to inform the public about the outcomes of attending the University.

Responses were received from 664 of the sample group of 1,000 graduates of two-and four-year undergraduate programs, and master's, doctoral and professional programs.

Even though respondents overwhelmingly indicated some degree of satisfaction with their University experience, one in three graduates reported doubt about their major; 17 per cent said they would not take the same major again and 14 per cent said they were not sure. Professional graduates were most positive — only 19 per cent expressed doubt.

Eighty-six per cent of the graduates considered the quality of instruction they had received good or better; 42 per cent said it was very good.

Sixty-seven per cent of the professional graduates and half of the doctoral and master's graduates (55 per cent and 49 per cent) said the skills they learned benefited them "very much" or more in preparing them for a job. That compares to only 28 per cent of the undergraduates who said skills they learned helped them "very much" in getting a job.

By contrast, 93 per cent of undergraduates felt that they had achieved "some" to "very very much" benefit in personal development through their exposure to the University.

How are they doing a year later? Overall, 75 per cent said they were working full time and 15 per cent said they were working part time. One per cent had no plans to work. Ninety-four per cent of the men were working full time or part time compared to 86 per cent of the women. One hundred per cent of the doctoral graduates were working full time, as were 93 per cent of professional graduates, 83 per cent of those with master's degrees and 70 per cent of those with bachelor's degrees.

Men made more money, the survey found. Among men, the average salary was $14,000 compared to $11,500 for women. The mean annual income of employed bachelor's degree recipients was $11,600; professional degree recipients, $15,400; master's degree recipients, $15,900; and doctoral degree recipients, $21,800.

There were no reported earnings over $35,000; however, 1 per cent of the men and 2 per cent of the women made between $30,000 and $35,000. Sixty-two per cent of the men and 48 per cent of the women made between $10,000 and $20,000. Twenty-six per cent of the men and 44 per cent of the women made less than $10,000 one year after their spring 1977 graduation.

A study of all graduates from all University campuses from fall quarter 1977 through summer 1978 is now under way.

Offer Puppet Training As Teaching Aid

PACER Center, Inc. will be training volunteers in Region I in the use of puppetry to teach children about handicaps. A three-day workshop has been scheduled for October 23, 24 and 25 at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute on highway 1 east, room 120.

Volunteers may be parents of handicapped children, teachers, handicapped persons themselves or anyone else interested in children or puppetry. Library personnel and theater arts enthusiasts might also be interested. Volunteers must be prepared to memorize a good deal of material and do further research on the disability he or she decides to portray.

Volunteers will be expected to be available to schools in their geographic area to hold puppet show performances following their training. Details will be worked out with each volunteer regarding time available, expenses, etc.

A fund raising effort is underway to buy a special set of puppets ("The Kids on the Block") to be used by the volunteers following their training. Two sets of puppets, donated by PACER Center, Inc., and Mahube community action in Detroit Lakes, will be available for use by the participants during the training sessions.

Volunteers may register for the workshop by writing or calling Sari Clark at 281-1396. There is no charge for the training, however, volunteers will be responsible for their own food, lodging and transportation.

Co-sponsors are PACER Center, Inc. Count Me In Project; Northwest regional development commission's developmental disabilities advisory board; Region I association for retarded citizens; Northwest educational cooperative service unit; and Mahube community action, Detroit Lakes.

Legal Liability Of Nursing Seminar Set

A one-day seminar on the "Legal Liability of Nursing Practice" will be offered October 4 at Moorhead state university.

Minneapolis attorney Stephen Bergerson, a specialist in the field of nursing law, will lead the program, scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in King biology hall.

Seminar is designed to help nurses and other health professionals understand the legal liabilities and responsibilities of their jobs. Bergerson, who's also an assistant professor at Metropolitan state university in Minneapolis, will cover legal theory and specific cases that bear on the medical profession.

Cost of the seminar is $25. Six continuing education units in nursing are available. For more information and to register, contact the university's nursing department at 236-2693.

'Cosmos' Show Featured At Planetarium

"Cosmos: The Voyage to the Stars," a new planetarium show narrated by Carl Sagan, will be featured September 24-October 26 at the Moorhead state university planetarium.

The show complements a 13-part public broadcasting service series, "Cosmos," also narrated by Sagan, that premieres on Prairie public television at 7 p.m. September 28.

The 45-minute planetarium program looks at the human quest to explore and understand the universe. Questions about the origin and fate of the cosmos and some of its mysteries — black holes, time travel and communication with extraterrestrial civilizations — will also be examined.

Showtimes are at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays and at 3 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

The MSU planetarium is located in Bridges Hall 153 on campus near the intersection of Eleventh street and Eighth av. S.

Class On Energy Management Begins Sept. 24

A 30-hour course, "Energy Management for Building and Industry," will be conducted September 24 at the AVTI, room A123, from 4 to 6 p.m. Wednesdays for 15 consecutive weeks. Tuition is $22.50.

Instructor, Leland Hayes, is certified as a mini-energy auditor for the state of Minnesota. Purpose of this class is to establish an energy management program within each participant's place of employment through the use of an energy audit. Objectives are to be able to estimate savings from operational and maintenance procedures, start an energy report checklist, make an annual energy savings, train and promote energy conservation within your place of employment and save money for your employer.

To pre-register contact adult education, AVTI; 681-5424.

Between Apathy And Extremism

A number of seemingly unrelated events over the past several days can be observed in a way that forms a contiguous picture, and a discouraging one.

Consider these happenings within the perimeters of current events:

—Abbie Hoffman, the leader of the yippies who once scorned the establishment, re-emerges intent on using the same establishment and all the publicity it will give him to make a million on his writings — as well as to escape its retribution for his lawlessness. And he will probably succeed.

—Several Catholic priests are involved in another blood-throwing, anti-war demonstration and may now face yet additional prison terms — after having proved little, if anything beyond their own desire for martyrdom.

—The primary elections locally see only 17 per cent of the registered voters participating, a disproportionate number of these being senior citizens. Younger voters were noticeably absent.

—In Superior, Wis., some 75 high school students hold a sit-down demonstration — to protest crowded halls and lunchrooms.

—Figures are released reflecting 52 per cent of this country's population as recipients of government assistance or government jobs.

—There is now the existence of paid "volunteers" (MPIRG and COACT) to attempt to form activist groups.

—Social, humanitarian and civic concerns — challenges of such magnitude as to dwarf all that has preceded it, are left unattended while those with the intellect and the resources to offer meaningful contributions argue over who shot J.R. or whether or not their high school hockey coach discriminates in his selection of players.

—Then there is the approaching presidential elections for the most democratic nation on earth, where we see a field of three superficial and second-rate candidates — and a populace, it appears, who couldn't care less.

Considering these things, it is overly pessimistic to say that a basic flaw in our human nature has widened to a dangerous extent? Is it overly dramatic to suggest that a serious re-evaluation of our goals, both personal and as a society, is badly needed?

This is a collection of opposites, of apathy and dullness on one hand and pricks of meaningless extremism and abuse on the other. Between these there is left a wide expanse of fertile ground with fewer and fewer to tend it.

We once believed these richer fields would be full. But it seems that our dreams of less than 20 years ago, dreams that then appeared immediately before us, have moved farther and farther away.

There are not many who would want to return to the trauma of the 60s. Yet it is a valid reference to what is happening today, for the dreams are not irrelevant and there existed then some responsible activism that could be used today.

There was fire and strength and visions and a sense of commitment among many of those participants, mostly young participants (none of whom were of the Abbie Hoffman-escapist-opportunist variety). Many of their qualities, their fire and commitment, and especially their ability to identify goals of importance, could be used today.

Their anti-war demonstrations occurred while brothers and those who were more than brothers were dying in Nam, not while the country — at peace — is seeking a realistic level of military strength.

Many of their victories were for today's youth. In many cases, these were for their own children. Among these was the passage of the 26th Amendment, granting 18-year-olds the right to vote.

Aided by additional gains in equal education and this new opportunity for being a part of the governing process, there was much hope for the future — the future that is today. There was the belief that we were at last moving toward a society of well-educated and actively participating members.

It didn't happen.

With all the love we in the 80's feel toward our young, who can deny that they, as a class, are generally given to self-gratification — not sacrifice, are eager to demonstrate for themselves — but not for others.

And they, of course, are but reflections of ourselves, reflections that result from our excessive desires for them to have a better life. They are how we have shaped them.

We know the talent and the abilities are available for all the challenges before us. The potential is awesome.

But what has happened to the prerequisite perspectives and goals?

Has apathy and self-gratification and self-righteous extremism ended the dreams?

Beyond their own little spheres, does anyone even care?

Bucking The Opposition

Joe Clark, a nationally-known photographer who calls himself the "Hillbilly Snapshooter", also writes occasionally about things as he perceives them to be. One of his latest writings is as follows:

"During the gas shortage some five or six years ago, I came up with this wonderful idea to do away with the need for gasoline altogether. You see, what most people don't understand is that cars don't run on gasoline. They run on air.

"Each car is equipped with a gadget called a carburetor. A carburetor sucks in about 90 per cent air and 10 per cent gasoline. The gasoline is merely used to explode the air. And the explosion of the air, not the gasoline, powers your car.

"So I invented this little gadget which bolts onto the left hand side of your engine and explodes the air by compressing it until it overheats and eliminated the need for gasoline altogether. With my gadget, which costs about $80 installed, you can take off your carburetor and gas tank and sell them for junk. You don't need them.

"Figgering that you use 10 gallons of gasoline per week, my gadget will pay for itself in 10 weeks. Since we plan to sell it on a 90-day charge, you won't be paying for it until is has saved you its cost plus a small profit. Therefore, it is acutally free. (At least that's the way some politicians figure when they're talking about government money and grants.)

"I was ready to market this gadget five years ago. But then I got to studying on it and I realized that if I were to market it, all the big oil interests would buck it because they wouldn't want to be left holding all that worthless gasoline.

"All the people who work for the big oil companies would buck it because they wouldn't want to be thrown out of work. Likewise all the carburetor people would oppose it for the same reasons.

"And all the Democrats would oppose it because they wouldn't want the administration to be blamed for more unemployment. And all the Republicans would oppose it because they wouldn't want the Democrats to take credit for freeing us from the Big Arab oil interests.

"The Consumer Protection agency would oppose it because of this uncontrolled urge to protect the public from anything useful. The general public would oppose it because the general public always opposes everything.

"And who am I to stand up against all this opposition. My wonderful gadget, my dream gadget, my gadget to completely free us from the need for gasoline had to be tossed onto the junk heap because of opposition. Life is full of weird things."

Interesting Opinions:

"There is far more danger in public monopoly than there is in private monopoly, for when the government goes into business it can always shift its losses to the taxpayers. . . The government never really goes into business, for it never makes ends meet, and that is the first requisite on successful business. It just mixes a little business with politics, and no one ever gets a chance to find out what is actually going on."
—Thomas Edison

"The person without love of self has no sense of personal worth and his only assumed worth rests on his ability to perform. Consequently, when his performance leaves something to be desired he immediately excuses himself, rationalizes his failure. To admit that he is wrong, to confess his faults and failures would mean too much pain. He can never afford to lose an argument or have false information, etc. His worth is only conditional and such failures would destroy the last vestiges of selfrespect."
—John Powell

"No idea is so antiquated that it was not once modern. No idea is so modern that it will not some day be antiquated. . . To seize the flying through before it escapes us is our only touch with reality."
—Ellen Glasgow

Watching television doesn't have to be a waste of time. Educational programs can provide mental stimulation, career advancement and college credits. Television independent study program at the University of Minnesota sponsors six programs yearly that are broadcast throughout most of Minnesota.

Shows are programmed for adult students who are hampered by time constraints and distance from a university, David Horgan, coordinator of the program said. Some remote areas receive courses over cable TV.

Design requirements for television courses are quite different than for classroom teaching, Horgan said. Programs are developed one year in advance through consultation between producers and instructors. Issues of concern, such as death, alcohol abuse, and crime, have been covered. "People expect topical, current information from television," Horgan said. "We keep very close tabs on polls and trends that could be developed into good course topics."

Some subjects don't adapt well to television, Horgan said. "We don't want to give data alone on the screen. We want to motivate the student and provide concepts. Technical subjects such as accounting can be taught on television if the theory is provided on the screen and the actual numbers are in the study guide," Horgan said.

The instructors don't stand before the camera and lecture. "Dramatization and remote location shooting provide the best use of the medium. We create a sense of identity with the students," Horgan said, adding that this identification helps account for the high course completion rate.

Each course includes a half or full hour television program, a study guide and an instructor. Students take tests and may consult with the instructor by telephone. Videotapes of the programs are available at participating campus and community libraries.

Tapes allow students to review material and to register late since they can go back to programs they missed. "Television has always been viewed as a single exposure medium," Mark Woodard, administrative assistant, said. "With books you can flip back a page and refresh your memory. Now, with videotapes you can do the same thing."

Students can also watch a few of the programs before they decide to register, Horgan said. Although they will have to pay a late registration fee, students will get credit if they register through the fourth week of class. The cost is $80 to $90 per course. Texts and study guides are available by mail.

The six courses offered this year are: "Principles of Human Communication," "The Vikings," "Black Music: A History of Jazz," "Loosening the Grip: A Survey of Alcohol Information," "Connections: Technology and Change," and "Cosmos: Science in a Humanist Perspective."

Courses begin in late September and early October.

Stanina is currently serving with First Force service support group, Camp Pendleton, Calif. A 1977 graduate of Lincoln high school, Jeffrey joined the marine corps in July of that year.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Thief River Falls Times:

To the citizens of TRF:

I should have started this missive as "To the citizens of little Minneapolis."

Well, folks, how do you like the traffic lights along First street?

You people going to work or school between 8 and 8:30 a.m. will have to go through this arrangement five days a week; six days a week if you work on Saturday.

How many of you happened to go down First street when a train was passing through town? Didn't it just tickle you that the lights were red all this time?

Granted, we probably needed a few more traffic lights. But to put so many lights in one stretch of roadway is ludicrous. How could they forget to put up lights at the intersection of Third and Horace?

I feel neglected! We now have a double set of marvelous lights at Pennington and First. There is a network of traffic signals at Horace and First, LaBree and First, Main and First, Main and Second, Main and Third, LaBree and Third and Atlantic and Third. But where are the lights at Third and David-Red Lake Boulevard? How about a set at Third and Markley?

I shouldn't forget the traffic flow at noon but most of these people also are involved in the 8 a.m. display. One of the better shows of the day occurs between 3 and 3:30 p.m. Then the whole business section is involved in this circus.

Ah, but the city fathers might say that this just happens at the peak periods of the day. So a semi trailer with his many gears heading west on First street will have to stop four times in four blocks. When we get the lights adjusted he might only have to stop three times!

Wouldn't a four-way stop sign at Pennington and First be just as effective? They use this arrangement along Columbia road in Grand Forks with great results.

I think the city fathers are insulting the intelligence of Thief River Falls drivers. We have to be led through each intersection like a bunch of grade school children.

Our city council has created a Frankenstein's monster and I don't think they know what to do about it. They must have known something like this was going to happen before they gave permission to put these lights up.

Why then, did they allow? Did they receive misguided information from the state? Didn't they consider the ramifications of their folly?

But members of the city council have said, "Well, you can't stop progress."

Progress? Go out and look at the mass confusion you have created. What kind of thinking went into this proposal? Is it progress to install lights where they aren't needed?

But First street wasn't so bad on Wednesday morning. A lot of drivers went out of their way and took Third street. Of course, this must have created some problems with double the traffic on this street.

If we could just get the people that take First to use Third, the drivers that frequent Third could switch to Eighth. Then the drivers that normally traverse Eighth street could fend for themselves!

We probably wouldn't need First street but there would always be that one driver that won't play the game. And, after all, isn't that what this is?

I wonder who the winner is?

It's hard to decide who needs your gift the most, isn't it?

United Way helps you do the right thing.

Some people only give financial support to the large, well-known charities. That's fine, but there are also a lot of small agencies providing vital aid to a lot of people. And United Way helps them do it. Because it helps not just the well-known causes, but those people you wouldn't turn your back on if you knew how much they really needed your help.

Thanks to you, it works. For all of us.

Fed Economists Discuss How To Cut Inflation

Balancing the federal budget on average over the course of the business cycle would systematically reduce inflation without necessarily reducing output, according to an economist at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

Preston J. Miller, assistant vice president for monetary studies, stresses that the ability to reduce inflation without reducing output depends on a budget policy of lower deficits that is followed consistently so that people come to understand it. Once such a policy is understood, Miller says, people expect lower deficits and lower inflation in the future.

"This change . . . in expectations will change behavior immediately, not just in the distant future," he says, "because economic behavior depends vitally on what people expect in the future."

Miller says that higher budget policies quickly reduced inflation in the United States after the Civil War and in Germany after World War I. The cost of these tighter policies, in terms of lost output, was not high, Miller says in the current issue of the bank's "Quarterly Review," which examines "What's Wrong With Macroeconomics."

The common estimate that it would cost $200 billion in lost output to reduce inflation one percentage point is not credible, Miller says. The estimate is wrong, he explains, because it assumes there is a stable relationship between inflation and real output.

"If there is anything economists are sure of," Miller says, "it is that the relationship between inflation and output is not stable . . . We can't increase output by deliberately creating inflation, and we won't necessarily lose output by deliberately reducing inflation."

Miller says proposed tax cuts are examples of a continuation of the deficit policies the United States has followed for almost two decades. Such policies are inflationary, he explains, because when the federal government runs deficits it simply prints and sells more bonds. Because the bonds are not likely to be paid off by higher taxes in the future, they are merely promises to deliver currency in the future.

"In fact," Miller says, "they are really much like currency." Like currency, he says, bonds are backed by nothing — neither tangible assets nor future taxes. As such, they are part of our expanding money supply. And, Miller says, the expanding money supply increases demand which in turn pushes up the price of goods.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Minneapolis Fed's "Quarterly," economist James N. Duprey writes that the equation economists use to predict money demand has been failing. It is a useless equation for analyzing policy changes, he also argues, because it simply is not built to capture how changes in policies affect the decisions of people in the economy.

In another paper, Thomas Sargent explains more generally what is wrong with macroeconomics and what can be done to set it right. He argues that economists must build models that explicitly let individual behavior change when government policies change. Since the policies people expect to face tomorrow affect their behavior today, Sargent contends that policymakers must consider long-term strategies instead of just one-time actions.

Courage Center Offers Success Story Book

Stories of 13 people who overcame severe physical disabilities to become productive members of society are featured in "Tributes to Courage", a new book published by Courage center.

"Tributes to Courage" is intended to show the public that people with physical disabilities can develop their talents to become self-sufficient citizens. Each story showcases a determined individual who, with good luck, timely opportunities and support of family and friends, was able to work beyond the limits imposed by his or her disability and become an independent contributor to society.

Persons featured in the book include: internationally-known violinist Itzhak Perlman, who wrote the foreword; Dr. Karl Anderson, Excelsior, disabled by a stroke, retired vice president and medical director of Northwestern National life insurance company; Merle Bader, Breckenridge, handicapped by a severe skin condition and loss of both hands, employee at Kost Brothers Ready Mix of North Dakota, Inc. of Wahpeton; James Carlisle, Rosemount, disabled by cerebral palsy, accountant; Anne Carlsen, Jamestown, N.D., a quadruple congenital amputee, administrator of the Anne Carlsen school for the physically handicapped; Karen Casper, White Bear Lake, disabled by cancer, ground floor program manager of Courage residence, a transitional living facility for adults with physical disabilities;

Also Steven K. Chough, Northville, Mich., deaf from spinal meningitis, director of the Center for Deaf Treatment Services, Northville regional psychiatric hospital; William H. DeParcq, Tucson, Ariz., injured in a car accident, well-known trial attorney; Michael Dowling, a distinguished teacher, banker and legislator in the 1890's from the Canby-Marshall area; Henry W. Haverstock Jr., Minneapolis, disabled by polio, attorney and real estate investor;

Also George "Judd" Jacobson, Owatonna, disabled from a diving accident, owner of a retail travel agency and Flying Wheels Travel, a travel service for people with physical disabilities; Linda Marzinske, Golden Valley, a triple amputee, senior education specialist at Prudential Insurance company; Max Rheinberger, Duluth, disabled by polio, business executive; George A. "Pat" Rooney, Richfield, injured in a car accident, telephone marketing expert.

Copies of "Tributes to Courage" can be ordered directly from Courage Center at a cost of $8 each, plus one dollar for mailing and handling. Minnesota residents should add 32 cents sales tax. Checks should be payable to Courage Center and mailed with a letter requesting the book to Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota, 55422. Proceeds from the book will help support Courage Center

ZENITH 2345
N. W. BELL TELEPHONE CO.

ALTHOUGH 85 PER CENT of Northwestern Bell's facilities are underground, some of the 15 per cent still visible are damaged, either accidentally or intentionally, during the hunting season. Al Bacon, local manager, said damage could result in service outages, which could become tragic if the disabled phone is needed to report an emergency such as a fire, accident or illness. Small buildings housing equipment along cable routes have been damaged by gunfire. "What concerns us is that a building could be occupied by maintenance technicians. The absence of a company vehicle does not necessarily mean the building is not occupied," Bacon said. Besides repeater huts, facilities damaged by gunfire in past seasons include cables, wires, insulators, terminal blocks and pedestals. Bacon pointed out that the intentional damaging of communications facilities is a violation of state and in some cases federal, law. Anyone who observes damaged telephone facilities is asked to call repair service and report the condition. "While we wish hunters a successful season, we do urge caution when hunting in the vicinity of telephone facilities," the manager said.

Psychologist Stille Joins Hospital Staff

Richard G. Stille

Richard G. Stille joined the staff of Northwestern hospital's day-night psychiatric unit today as staff clinical psychologist. A graduate of the University of South Dakota with a masters degree in clinical psychology, he will soon complete a doctorate from the University of Manitoba, Canada.

Before coming to Thief River Falls, Stille completed a one-year internship at the Veteran's administration medical center in Reno, Nev. There he specialized in medical psychology, the affects of stress on physical health and the use of psychological methods to influence physical health.

Stille is a member of the American Psychological association and the Canadian Psychological association.

Babysitting Co-Ops Topic Of Parent Meet

Babysitting co-ops and playgroups will be the topic of the first fall parenting class to be conducted today (September 22) from 7-9 p.m. Cost of babysitting can often prohibit a mother from getting away from home when she needs to for appointments or just for time to herself.

This information session on babysitting co-ops and playgroups will be conducted at the AVTI, room 103. Cost is $1.50.

To pre-register contact adult education, AVTI; phone 681-5424.

TRF Women To Hear From WIBC Representative

Diane Nelson, a representative of the women's international bowling congress will visit Thief River Falls Tuesday for an 8 p.m. meeting in the Eagles club basement meeting room.

Questions dealing with league procedures and rules, record-keeping systems and other WIBC procedures and policies will be answered at the meeting.

The meeting is open to all members of the women's bowling association.

Workshop On Indoor Climate Control Set

Thief River Falls AVTI is co-sponsoring a two-day workshop designed for building operators and building supervisors responsible for indoor climate control October 6 and 7 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the AVTI, room 120. Fee for the complete workshop is $40 per person — coffee, lunch and materials included. Enrollment is limited to 22.

Participants in this program will progress on an individual basis with the aid of the instructor and extensive audio visual materials. A great deal of practical experience will be obtained by doing actual control adjustments on special training panels.

Instructor Dave Seaberg is an instructor for the building operating and maintenance program at 916 AVTI. He has been employed as an engineer in the past for a major hotel and restaurant in the Twin Cities area. He also serves as a consulting engineer for building operations.

This workshop is co-sponsored with 916 AVTI, Minnesota Department of Education, and the Minnesota energy agency.

Pre-register by October 3 by contacting: Adult Education, AVTI Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424. A detailed brochure is available.

Dr. Owen T. Nelson recently moved from vice president to chief of staff on St. John's hospital's medical staff in Red Lake Falls. This office was held by Dr. Rodolfo J. Mirandilla until July 31 when he terminated his practice in this community.

Dr. Nelson began his family practice in Red Lake Falls in October of 1979 and has been a member of the hospital medical staff since that time, serving as secretary and later vice chief of staff.

Dr. Nelson and his wife Patricia reside at 1142 River Drive, Red Lake Falls.

T. Schaffter Joins FmHA Staff Here

Farmers Home administration (FmHA) has announced that Thomas E. Schaffter is the new assistant county supervisor for Pennington and Red Lake counties.

Schaffter, originally from Seville, Ohio, earned a BS degree in agricultural business at Iowa State university, Ames, Iowa. He began working for FmHA September 2, 1980.

12th Overnight Planned At Gov's. Mansion

Mrs. Gretchen Quie established the first category for the October night at the governor's mansion on a visit to the Minnesota state fair last month. She invited an accredited state fair judge and spouse to come to the governor's mansion on Tuesday, October 7.

Fair judge is one of four special categories of people being asked to send a postcard before September 29 to Gretchen Quie, 1006 Summit Ave., St. Paul, Minn. 55105.

The other three categories for Mrs. Quie's twelfth overnight are:

—A person who has overcome the stigma or disabling symptoms of a major emotional illness, and spouse;

—A volunteer blood donor who has given at least 10 pints of blood; and

Stephen Minor Participates In Theater Class

Stephen Minor, son of Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Hartz of Thief River Falls and a student at the University of Minnesota, is participating in the exchange program of the Eugene O'Neill Theater center's National theater institute.

National theater institute (NTI), a laboratory in theater arts training, is located on the grounds of the O'Neill center at 305 Great Neck Road in Waterford, Connecticut. It is partially funded by the Mandeville foundation and offers a one-semester resident program (14 weeks during the fall term and 14 weeks during the spring term) of intensive studio work in theater with professional staff and guest artists in acting, directing, scene and costume design, movement, voice, puppetry and dance. In addition, students make regular field trips to professional theaters to view productions in such places as Boston, New Haven and New York. Each semester's group puts on a production of its choice which tours throughout the New England and New York regions.

The NTI receives its accreditation through Connecticut college. For this semester, there are 31 students enrolled and are drawn from 23 participating colleges and universities in America and Europe.

Muppet Exhibit At Minnesota Science Museum

"The Art of the Muppets," an exhibit on the history, construction and performance of the television stars the Muppets, will be on display at the Science Museum of Minnesota from Saturday, October 4, through Sunday, November 9.

The exhibit traces the history of the Muppets from creator Jim Henson's first television show, "Sam and Friends," in 1954. Henson coined the word "Muppet" to describe his characters as a cross between puppet and marionette. Some of his original dolls, including the prototype of Kermit the Frog, will be displayed in the exhibit.

A workshop collage of noses, feathers and other trimmings will show the actual materials used for the Muppets with 100 dolls to demonstrate the final results. Life-size photos of a Muppet set will illustrate how the characters are brought to life by the puppeteers.

"The Art of the Muppets" will also feature continuous video screenings from Muppet television programs and films, including a segment from their recent appearance on the CBS show, "Sixty Minutes."

The exhibit is part of a two-year tour of major American museums and is coming to St. Paul from the museum of science and industry in Chicago where it attracted over 260,000 visitors since it opened on July 19. Admission to the exhibit is included in the price of an exhibit hall ticket: $2 for adults, $1.50 for senior citizens and $1 for children 12 and under.

Science museum of Minnesota is located at Exchange and Wabasha streets in downtown St. Paul. Exhibit halls are open Tuesday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Sundays from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. The museum is closed on Mondays, except October 13. For further information on the Muppet exhibit, call 227-6184.

There has been talk that Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston might get together to form a three-team Class A high school football conference in 1981 following the announced withdrawl by the Green Wave and Pirates from the current five-team Northwest Athletic Conference at the end of the 1980 season.

The idea behind the three-team conference was that the winner in the round-robin scheduling format would get a berth in the Minnesota Class A state football playoffs as a conference champion.

However, a telephone conversation with Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League last week indicated that a three-team conference champion probably wouldn't gain an automatic state playoff berth.

"It would be unlikely," said Larson, an administrative assistant on the MSHSL executive staff and the league's director of information and publications.

Actually, the state football playoff format will be drawn up during a football forum at Anoka in January. That's where the Prowlers, Green Wave and Pirates would find out if they could advance into the state playoffs as a champion of a three-team conference, if they decide to make that pitch.

Larson said it would be more likely, though, that all three would be classified as independents in the Class A ranks next fall. And it's a heckuva lot tougher to gain a state playoff berth as an independent than as a conference champion.

Moorhead, as an example, as a Class AA independent, can gain an automatic state playoff berth only if the Spuds do not lose more than one game this year. The Spuds can also make the state playoffs if their losses do not exceed the number of losses suffered by the Class AA conference champion with the most number of losses.

The MSHSL this year is giving automatic state playoff berths to three four-team conference champions, but would apparently like to draw the line there.

However, MSHSL officials will not attempt to change the conference structures across the state.

"The league has never gotten involved in the alignment of conferences," pointed out Larson. Several changes in football conferences in Class B, C and nine-man classifications in southern Minnesota were made recently, and Larson said, "We'd like to see that happen in the northwest and southwest sections of the state. But the problem is that the league can't dictate moves like that."

Some 46 schools were represented at a recent football conference realignment meeting at Marshall where Thomas Prunty of Jasper said, "It's time to set aside our petty grievances and set up some reasonable conferences with respect to school enrollments, geography and the responsibility we have to the energy situation."

Superintendent John Feda of Marshall, who is president of the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League was in attendance at the meeting and said, "Schools must accept the idea that they may not end up the largest school in the conference, or be geographically in the middle of the conference, or be able to preserve all of their traditional rivalries."

"It's unfortunate that you people face the enrollment and mileage problems that you have," noted Larson.

East Grand Forks and Crookston will leave the Northwest Athletic Conference so they won't have to face Class AA-size NWAC members Bemidji and Fergus Falls on the gridiron. The GreenWave and Pirates, along with the Prowlers, applied for membership into the Mid-State Conference, but those members — Aitkin, Park Rapids, Staples, Crosby-Ironton, Detroit Lakes and Wadena — rejected the trio's bid because of the added mileage they would face.

RLF To Get Artificial Ice Plant

Red Lake Falls will get its artificial ice plant after all, even though voters were rejected a bond issue by a marrow margin earlier this fall that would have raised the money to install artificial ice in the city arena.

The project became a reality when J.A. Hughes, a former superintendent of schools in Red Lake Falls, announced earlier this month that he represented an anonymous person or persons who was (were) prepared to give the city of Red Lake Falls $20,000 for the purchase and installation of equipment required to make artificial ice in the arena.

There was one stipulation. One way or another, the city would have to match the sum in order to receive the donation, reported Marc Parenteau of the Red Lake Falls Gazette. Other requests by the donor(s) was that the ice plant be inspected by a certified engineer and the arena be renamed the Cardin-Hunt arena.

The name Cardin-Hunt comes from two people who were instrumental in developing a hockey program in Red Lake Falls. Through the efforts of Monsignor Victor Carsin in the mid-1920's, Red Lake Falls had their first hockey rink. Sam Hunt, Sr. was an avid hockey fan and he donated the first uniforms as well as some equipment to the hockey team.

The original donation of $20,000 has already been matched. Twenty-three people in the community signed a $20,000 promisary note so the project could begin as soon as possible. That note will be paid off from money raised for the Cardin-Hunt Youth Development Foundation, intended to develop projects of various kinds that will help the youth of Red Lake Falls.

TWO STAPLES DEFENDERS chased Thief River Falls quarterback Scott Wiebolt, but did not catch him as Wiebolt reached the right corner of the end zone to score a two-point conversion during the first minute of play in the second quarter of Friday's high school football game played in Thief River Falls. An undetected left hand of Thief River Falls fullback Scott Kezar (32) held off Staples' Erick Tiegen (48) on the play that provided the Prowlers with a 14-7 halftime lead. Thief River Falls finished with a 29-7 victory as Wiebolt scored on runs of 52, 51 and five yeards, while Kezar started it with a 54-yard first quarter touchdown run. The Prowlers, now 3-1, will challenge Moorhead Saturday night in Moorhead.

TRF Defense Stars In 29-7 Victory Friday Over Mistake-Prone Staples

A Thief River Falls defense that was criticized earlier in the week after being ranked at the bottom of nearly every Northwest Athletic Conference defensive statistic, played superbly Friday in forcing eight Staples turnovers as the Prowlers defeated the Cardinals 29-7 on the rain-soaked Thief River Falls athletic field.

A new look on defense — a 4-4 set with just two down linemen — helped the Prowlers recover five fumbles, intercept three passes and limit Staples to just 147 yards total offense for the night. Coming into the game the Prowlers had been giving up an average of 302 yards per game.

"I'm very pleased, said Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz with a smile after the game. "The defense played much better tonight."

The 4-4, featuring tackles Dean Dokkin and Rick Gobell as the down linemen; ends Jim Dillon and Jeff Spencer; linebackers Mark Harder, Rob Jorstad, Wade Hruby and Steve Jorstad; along with Scott Wiebolt, Dan Odegaard and Jon Stimac in the secondary; stopped the Cardinals' ground game, led by powerful fullback Greg Anglin, on just 117 yards. Anglin, a 212-pound senior, gained just 29 yards on 11 first half carries before sitting out the second half with a knee injury.

"The 4-4 cut that big fullback off," pointed out Schmitz, "and that's what we wanted to do."

Hruby, Spencer, Steve Jorstad, Jeff Imgrund and Paul Waswick all recovered fumbles for the Prowlers, while Odegaard, Mark Harder and Keith Grochow came up with interceptions. Staples, in fact lost the ball on turnovers on every offensive possession of the second half — three fumbles on handoffs, a pass interception and a fumbled kickoff return.

Offensively, the Prowlers didn't do badly, either, racking up 279 yards and continuing a season-long penchant for the long touchdown strike. Wiebolt again starred as the option quarterback, rushing for 120 yards on just eight carries, scoring on runs of 52, 51 and five yards. Fullback Scott Kezar supplied the power up the middle, rushing for 74 yards, including a game-opening 54-yard touchdown sprint.

"The option worked well at times, especially in the second half," mentioned Schmitz. "Our dives worked very well for us in the second half. We got some excellent blocks."

It didn't take long for Thief River Falls' long-range offense to put points one the scoreboard. On the Prowlers' second snap of their second offensive possession Kezar burst through a hole off left tackle on his 54-yard touchdown run with 3:33 elapsed. Kezar was stopped, however, on the two-point conversion attempt.

Staples, a 14-7 winner over East Grand Forks a week earlier, enjoyed a brief 7-6 lead after the Cardinals recovered a Thief River Falls fumble at the Prowlers 24-yard line late in the first quarter. A 21-yard Steve Peterson to Neil Jennissen first down pass play took the ball to the three, and two straight-ahead dives by Anglin put it into the end zone. Ron Olson had lady luck on his side as a low line drive conversion kick was tipped at the line of scrimmage and hit the cross bar, but still went through the uprights.

Thief River Falls responded immediately, regaining the lead just six plays later when Wiebolt took the option around the left side, turned the corner, read his blocks (including a crushing block thrown by Odegaard to open up the play) and sprinted 52 yards for a touchdown on the second snap of the second quarter. Wiebolt threw an incompletion on the two-point conversion, but a pass interference call against Staples moved the ball closer to the goal line for a second try, and this time Wiebolt went wide right to reach the corner of the end zone for a 14-7 lead with 11:28 remaining in the first half. That was just the second successful Thief River Falls conversion attempt in 10 tries this fall.

Rest of the scoring was done in the third quarter. Staples fumbled away the first offensive possession of the second half and Hruby recovered the ball at the Cardinals 48-yard line. It took 11 plays before the Prowlers could reach the end zone this time, with Wiebolt, who had hit Kezar with a key 21-yard pass play over the middle to the 14 on a third-and-17 call, stretching to hit the right corner of the end zone on the option from the five. Odegaard took the pitch wide left for the two-point conversion for a 22-7 difference with 5:05 on the clock.

Three plays later Spencer recovered a fumble at the Thief River Falls 49 and Wiebolt struck immediately, hurdling defenders and blockers, stepping through would-be tacklers and receiving great open-field blocking on a 51-yard first down touchdown sprint off the option to his right side. Spencer kept the Prowlers' new-found conversion string going with a kick for a 29-7 cushion with 2:41 remaining in the third quarter.

The victory was worth a 3-1 record for the Prowlers who will wait until Saturday night to visit Moorhead for their final nonconference game of the season. Thief River Falls will finish the 1980 campaign with Northwest Athletic Conference games at Bemidji vs. Fergus Falls, vs. East Grand Forks and finally at Crookston.

Staples fell to 2-2 with the loss. The Cardinals begin their Mid-State Conference schedule Friday at home against Crosby-Ironton.

Prowlers Win Volleyball Title At Roseau Sat.

Already down 1-0, Thief River Falls rallied from a 9-1 second game deficit to outlast Crookston 10-18, 18-16, 18-7 in the finals of the Roseau Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday.

"Elated," was the word Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss used to describe her feelings after the Prowlers' championship performance in the day-long double-elimination event that began at 2 p.m. and continued until 10. "I was so proud the way they came back from 9-1."

Thief River Falls opened with an 18-10, 18-10 victory over East Grand Forks, with Stacy Ehrenstrom, known mostly for her spiking ability, serving the final seven points of the second game.

First of three Thief River Falls vs. Crookston matches came in the second round when the Prowlers beat the Pirates 18-12, 18-11 as Joleen Gibson came off the bench and sparked the winners both offensively and defensively.

Crookston came back to gain a championship berth against Thief River Falls and came out an 18-15, 9-18, 18-14 winner to force a third Prowlers-Pirates confrontation for the trophy. Stauss credited Sue Gere for leading a strong performance from several Thief River Falls reserves who saw extended duty in the match.

In the title showdown, Crookston opened with an 18-10 win and had Thief River Falls on the ropes, 9-1 in the second game. But once again the Prowlers received a spark from the bench, this time from Wendy Erickson who quickly came up with a momentum-changing ace spike "that turned everything around," according to Stauss. The Prowlers rallied for an 18-16 decision and then ran away with the final game, 18-7.

In the rest of the day's matches, Crookston beat Roseau 19-17, 18-12; East Grand Forks knocked off Roseau 18-15, 18-12; and Crookston eliminated East Grand Forks 18-9, 18-15.

Ironically, after playing Crookston three times Saturday, the Prowlers will host the Pirates Tuesday in a 7:30 p.m. match in the Lincoln gym.

GF Skating Pros To Instruct In TRF Program

Two gold medalists in figure skating will begin working with local figure skaters through the recreational skating program in Thief River Falls.

Kris and Rich Murphy, natives of Grand Forks, returned to this area from Michigan because they saw a need for coaching figure skating here, they said.

Kris 18, has been skating since she was three. She moved to Lansing, MI when she was 15 where she competed in the Eastern Great Lakes figure skating championships. She earned medals from other competitions and skated in various shows, including the Thief River Falls figure skating show in 1977.

Rich, 23, has been skating for 13 years and has competed in all phases of the sport including singles, dance and pairs, as well as competing at the national level four times. His medals include three golds at the Eastern Great Lakes championships and one gold at the Midwestern championships. During the past three years, he has traveled to Grand Forks to work with the dance students and partner their tests. He has skated in the Grand Forks show twice along with many other shows in the Michigan area.

The couple met while they were skating in Lansing and were married there. Following that, they moved to Grand Forks and taught at the summer skating school at the University of North Dakota.

Both of them like the area, they said, and plan to make a profession of coaching figure skating in the Red River Valley.

Spuds Defeat Prowlers 18-6, 18-1 In Volleyball

Despite an 18-6, 18-1 setback to Moorhead Thursday that extended the Spuds' domination over the Prowlers to ten consecutive straight-set victories during the past six years, Thief River Falls volleyball coach Sharon Stauss said she found plenty of reasons to smile following the parent's night match in the Lincoln high school gym.

"We're both happy and proud tonight," said Stauss, who was also talking for assistant coach Karen Schulte. "My hitters hit hard and my setters set up some nice hits. It was a good game for the fans to watch; the final score wasn't an indication of the way things were going."

Still, Moorhead controlled play. Thief River Falls hit a rare 100 per cent serve success in the first game, but still came out an 18-6 loser.

Unable to come up with Kari Larson's game-opening serves, Thief River Falls quickly fell behind 3-0. And although the Prowlers managed to gain a 3-3 tie, they never led. The Spuds ran up a 12-4 lead, then 15-5 before hitting 18.

Larson once again served up a 3-0 Moorhead lead in the second game when the Spuds' Karla Olness, a 5-8 senior, emerged as the night's best performer with some heavy hitting at the net, including two eye-opening kill spikes.

"She was good last year, and now she's even better," said Stauss of Olness.

Moorhead quickly put a 9-1 lead on the board and was never threatened, even though Thief River Falls did come up with a few strong volley efforts during the Spuds' scoring plays.

"The girls feel better about themselves," added Stauss. "They worked like a team tonight, and they looked like a team."

Carrying a 2-5 record, Thief River Falls will try to snap a three-match losing streak Tuesday when the Prowlers host Crookston at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

Lincoln junior varsity, beaten 18-2 in the first game Thursday, came up with an emotional 18-14 second game decision, but lost the match-deciding third game 18-6 for a 3-4 season record.

SHERYL STIMAC was able to handle this Moorhead serve Thursday during Thief River Falls' 18-6, 18-1 volleyball loss to the Spuds. The Prowlers will be back in the Lincoln high school gym Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. match against Crookston.

Boosters Club Meets Tonight

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club will meet tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria.

Special guest speaker tonight will be A.G. Edwards, head trainer at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. Area coaches and parents of athletes are urged to attend the meeting to hear Edwards discuss treatment of athletic injuries.

Football coaches John Schmitz of Lincoln high school and John Helley of Northland community college will also address the meeting.

The meeting is open to the public.

Change Made In Steel Shot Regulations

Until October 18, only those Minnesota waterfowl hunters using 10 and 12 gauge shotshells will have to comply with the previously announced steel shot regulations.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, in making the announcement, said it was just notified by ammunition makers September 12 that the 20 gauge three-inch steel shotshells expected to be in good supply by now will not be widely available in time for the October 4 waterfowl opener.

Starting October 18, however, there will be no gauge exemptions and only steel shotsells may be used or possessed while hunting waterfowl in a steel shot zone.

Only areas where the two week delay will not apply are three federal refuges that have certain lands open to waterfowl hunting. They are the Sherburne, Tamarac and Upper Mississippi national wildlife refuges. On these three federally administered areas all waterfowl hunting must be done with steel shot beginning October 4.

Howard Beito Directs 21-12 Northland Victory . . .

Coach Turns Quarterback To Lead Northland Past Mesabi

A lot of athletes decided to go into coaching when their playing days are done. But Howard Beito did it in reverse order Saturday when the coach-turned-quarterback scored one touchdown and passed for another score in leading Northland to a 21-12 community college football win over Mesabi on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

A week earlier Beito was helping direct things as a student assistant on the Northland coaching staff while the Northmen dropped a season-opening 19-14 MJCAA Northern Division decision to rival Crookston. Saturday, after a week's worth of practice, he quarterbacked the Northmen to their first win in five tries against Mesabi.

"It was his idea," explained Northland head coach John Helley about Beito's decision to suit up. He played fullback for the Northmen last fall until a knee injury sidelined him. The Hallock sophomore is a top-notch hockey player and he had decided to rest his knee while waiting for the 1980-81 hockey season to begin. "He just couldn't take being on the sidelines any more," smiled Helley.

It was a solid, if not spectacular performance by Beito that enabled the Northmen to more than double their sorry first week offensive production. The Northmen, held to a mere 60 yards against Crookston, including a minus figure in the rushing department, hit 186 yards against Mesabi while putting two touchdowns on the board.

"I thought it was a very good performance," said Helley of Beito's quarterbacking. "He's got the confidence and the high school experience. And being a coach, he certainly knows the plays."

Northland's offense was also strengthened by the presense of two potentially outstanding wide receivers — sophomore Lyndell Knight and freshman Kenneth Crouch. They both missed the opener when Knight was favoring a leg injury and Crouch was awaiting the completion of some eligibility papers.

"They (Knight and Crouch) gave us a morale lift," mentioned Helley. "They make us a more solid football team. We had a little more offensive potential with them in there."

It was a Beito-to-Knight touchdown pass late in the first quarter that opened the scoring Saturday. Facing a third-and-six situation from the Mesabi 30-yard line, Beito dropped back to pass, scrambled away from a hard Mesabi rush, pulled up and hit Knight, who was backpeddling in the end zone. Knight, a promising performer from Inkster, Mich. who was forced to sit out his freshman season here last fall because of a transfer rule, got behind the Mesabi secondary and made a twisting catch on the play. Thief River Falls sophomore Jeff Gobell added the conversion kick for a 7-0 edge with 1:10 remaining in the first quarter.

Northland's defense, which scored both touchdowns against Crookston, got into the act again Saturday when defensive back Paul Wilcox stepped in front of a Mesabi receiver and intercepted quarterback Ken Wojtysiak's short pass into the right flat at the Mesabi 11 and ran it into the end zone. Gobell's kick was blocked, but a Mesabi penalty gave him another shot, which he made for a 14-0 lead with 9:58 left in the first half.

Mesabi got back into the game by going 65 yards on a 13-play march in the third quarter. A soft-touch passing play from Wojtysiak to halfback Brian Smith scored the touchdown on a toss to the left side from the Northland eight with just two seconds left in the quarter. Northland's Bob Benson blocked the conversion kick.

Two quarterback sneaks by Beito put the points on the board with 12:33 left in the game. Gobell then made it 5-for-5 in the conversion department for the year.

Mesabi narrowed the gap to 21-12 with 3:36 to go on a 72-yard halfback option pass by Ron Castle to Rick Ralidak, who slipped behind the Northland defense on the play. But whatever hopes the Norsemen had of pulling it out disappeared when the two-point conversion pass was complete, but short of the goal line. That gave the visitors, who had beaten Northland over the years 30-7, 62-0, 46-7 and 20-6 last fall, a nine point deficit instead of a catchable seven-point margin to make up.

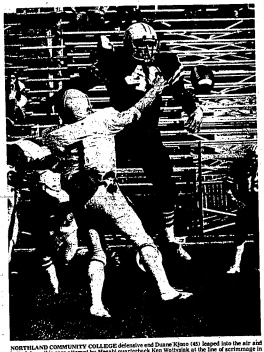
"We have a lot of offensive work to be done yet," admitted Helley. "But if we can stay healthy, I think we can be a competitive football team."

Castle, a Michigan City, Ind product, was the game's top star, producing some 259 yards worth of offense. He rished for 93 yards on 13 carries, was 2-for-2 on the halfback option pass for 106 yards, returned two punts for 43 yards and ran back one kickoff with 17 yards.

But the hard-hitting Northland defense, led by Kjono, stopped most of the other Norsemen, recovering four fumbles to go along with Wilcox's pass interception.

"It was a hard-hitting game," acknowledged Helley. "I know some of our kids' heads are ringing."

Northland will be on the road for the first time this season Saturday afternoon when the Northmen travel to Ely for a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game against Vermilion.



NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE defensive end Duane Kjono (45) leaped into the air and batted down this pass attempt by Mesabi quarterback Ken Wojtysiak at the line of scrimmage in the fourth quarter of Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division football game played in Thief River Falls. Kjono, a sophomore from Mahnomen, led the hard-hitting Northland defense that beat Mesabi 21-12. The Northmen, 1-1 for the year, will play Vermilion in Ely Saturday.

Pirates Blank Otters 21-0 In NWAC Opener

Steve Johnson rushed for 108 yards and scored two touchdowns Friday as defending Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston began the 1980 NWAC schedule with a 21-0 victory over Fergus Falls.

Mark Berg capped a 12-play, 51-yard first quarter drive with a one-yard touchdown plunge for the Pirates. Johnson finished another Crookston drive with a one-yard touchdown dive in the second quarter and added a 14-yard scoring play late in the game.

The struggling Fergus Falls offense, shut out for the third straight game, netted just 64 yards for the game. Crookston ran up an 18-6 edge in first downs and gained 266 yards on 65 rushing plays.

Crookston, 4-0 overall, will wait until Tuesday, Sept. 30, to visit Breckenridge. Fergus Falls, 1-3, will host Bemidji in an NWAC contest Friday.

EGF — Detroit Lakes

Quarterback Jeff Strandell completed eight of 12 pass attempts for 189 yards and two touchdowns, while scoring once himself to lead East Grand Forks to a 20-7 homecoming win over Detroit Lakes.

Strandell passed 17 yards to Paul Bothun for the game's first touchdown with just 57 seconds left in the first half. Strandell ran eight yards for a touchdown early in the third quarter, then passed 38 yards to Rob Schneider for a fourth quarter score and a 20-0 cushion.

The Green Wave finished with a 371-167 edge in total yards, limiting Detroit Lakes' Dan Douglass to an 8-for-22 night passing for just 22 yards.

East Grand Forks, 3-1, will be at Breckenridge Thursday night.

Bemidji — Park Rapids

Bemidji spotted Park Rapids an early 2-0 lead on a first quarter safety before coming up with a 20-2 non-conference win.

The Lumberjacks did their scoring in the middle two quarters as Pat Erhart scored from the six; Daryl Strunk passed 41 yards to David Sea; and Troy Hendricks went in from the seven.

Hendricks led the winners with 70 yards rushing and three pass receptions for 48 yards.

Bemidji, 3,1, will be at Fergus Fall s Friday for that NWAC affair.

Lincoln JV Is 26-0 Winner

Now 1-1 for the year, Thief River Falls led just 6-0 at halftime, thanks to a game-opening kickoff return for a touchdown by Jeff Imgrund.

A HOLE OPENED up for Mesabi quarterback Ken Wojtysiak and he ran a fourth-and-five option play six yards for a Mesabi first down at the Northland 28-yard line in the third quarter of Saturday's community college football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field. Northland's Kelly Turgeon (77) and Paul Wilcox (20) closed in to make the stop. The Northmen beat the Norsemen 21-12 — their first win over Mesabi in five tries.

Goodridge Forces Oklee Into Overtime Before Losing 34-28

Winless Goodridge rallied from a 20-point fourth quarter deficit to force overtime Friday before its upset bid fell short in a 34-28 North Tri County Conference nine-man high school football loss to unbeaten Oklee.

Richard Bronken's third down quarterback sneak from the Goodridge one-yard line — his fourth touchdown of the game — won it for Oklee in overtime, wiping out a Goodridge comeback that saw the underdog Huskies score 20 points in the final 4½ minutes of regulation time.

"We're really proud of the kids," praised Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "They did everything we asked them to do."

Goodridge opened the game with a successful on-side kick that set up a six-yard Mike Drangstvelt touchdown pass to Randy Henrickson, and a Carroll Bishop two-point conversion that provided the Huskies with an 8-6 halftime edge.

Oklee took charge in the third quarter, though, as Jon LaJambe and Bronken scored on a short touchdown runs, with Bronken adding a 58-yard pass interception touchdown return in the fourth quarter for a 28-8 spread.

But Rory Haugen broke loose on a 58-yard third down touchdown run with 4½ minutes remaining; Drangstvelt passes to Kirk Wiseth and Bishop set up a five-yard Bishop touchdown run; and a successful on-side kick was followed by Drangstvelt's game-tying two-yard touchdown pass to Ken Frazer with 48 seconds remaining.

Goodridge lost its chance at winning the game in regulation time when Drangstvelt, while trying to run the option, slipped to the turf on the two-point conversion try.

On offense to start the overtime, Goodridge reached the Oklee three-yard line on four tries beginning at the 10.

"We played well in the first half; poorly in the third quarter; and had a super fourth quarter," explained Nelson.

"Everything was going wrong at the beginning," recalled Oklee coach Dale Svaren, "but we were a little more fired up for the start of the second half."

Svaren said he would have taken the blame if Oklee would have lost the game. "We had the game wrapped up. They (Goodridge) had been pasted pretty good by McIntosh and Middle River, so I substituted. But I guess I called the dogs off too soon. If we would have lost it would have been my fault."

Goodridge rushed for 191 yards, with Bishop and Haugen each netting 82, and Drangstvelt was 8-for-16 in the passing department for 94 yards.

Nelson praised the defensive play of John Cullen, Mark Grabowska and Haugen, while also citing Oklee's Brad Gunderson, an end on both offense and defense, for playing "an outstanding game."

Goodridge, 0-3, will host Mentor Tuesday in a rescheduled contest that was weathered out of an original August 29 start. The Huskies will be at home again Friday against Clearbrook. Oklee, 4-0, visits Plummer Friday.

Plummer 0

Middle River jumped out to a 32-0 first quarter lead and rolled to a one-sided 60-0 North Tri County Conference win against over-matched Plummer Friday night.

Scott McKeever scored three touchdowns for the Skippers, while Steve Bengston scored two touchdowns and added four two-point conversions.

"They just blew us out," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "We were out-manned. They sent Bengston up the middle; McKeever to the outside; and (Delray) Ness ran the option well."

The Skippers, who led 40-0 at halftime, are now 3-1. They'll be at Erskine Friday. Plummer, winless in four starts, will host Oklee that night.

Mentor 38
Grygla 12

Rod Fladhammer scored twice and tossed two touchdown passes Friday in leading Mentor to a 38-12 North Tri County Conference win over visiting Grygla.

The Trojans built a 38-0 lead before Grygla's John Nordby and Gene Lunsetter hooked up on a pair of fourth quarter touchdown passes covering 40 and 35 yards.

Grygla was unable to move the ball on the ground, rushing for just 57 yards (47 by John Verbout), but Nordby was 14-for-27 passing for 205 yards. Lunsetter caught three passes for 88 yards and Verbout caught five for 70 yards.

Goodridge Is 2-0 Winner Over Eagles

Sheri Swanson was a perfect 14-for-14 serving Thursday to lead Goodridge past East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 18-9, 18-11 in a high school volleyball match played at Goodridge.

It was the Huskies' first win in four starts this fall.

"They were really fired up," noted Goodridge coach Sue Saurdiff. "They didn't get as many spikes as I would have liked, but they still played well."

The Huskies will be at Warren Tuesday for a 7 p.m. match.

One biological rule states that the larger the animal, the slower the heartbeat. A robin's heart, for example, beats 570 times a minute, while an elephant's beats only 34 times. But it all evens out in the end, explains Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, because another rule says that most large animals live longer than smaller ones. So, from birth until death all hearts, fast and slow, beat about the same total number of times.

MCC 34
Tri-County 6

Bill Johnson, Rick VanCamp, Gordy Collin and Allen Lindemoen all scored on one-yard touchdown runs Saturday night as Marshall County Central belted Tri-County high school 34-6 in a Top of State Conference nine-man game played at Karlstad.

After those four one-yard plunges supplied the Nordics with a 27-0 third quarter lead, Scott Anderson went in from six yards out in the fourth quarter. Dave Kragness was 4-for-5 in the conversion kick department for the winners, who posted their third straight victory after a season-opening setback.

The Nordics will be at Argyle Friday.

Sportsmen Honored On National Hunting, Fishing Day Sept. 27

Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander has called attention to the observance of national hunting and fishing day scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 27.

He said the modern environmental movement can trace its origins to the conservation efforts of American sportsmen which began in the 1830's.

"The record shows that those who hunted and fished for sport were the first to call attention to the need for preserving natural areas and for laws controlling the killing of wildlife.

"It is ironic, that the sportsman, who was the leader of the conservation movement, should now be villified by penthouse protectionists who seemingly will stop at nothing in their efforts to kill the sport of hunting."

And today, as always, he said, it is those who hunt and fish who are footing most of the bill to preserve habitat and insure the survival of wildlife species including those which are not subject to hunting.

He said there are now more deer, elk, antelope and wild turkey in the U.S. than there were 50 years ago. He also noted that pheasants, which now number in the millions, were not even present in America 100 years ago and were introduced here by sportsmen in 1882.

MSHSL Survey . . .

Minnesota Rouser Most Popular Song

What is the most popular school song for a high school athletic team in Minnesota?

If you guessed the Minnesota Rouser, you were right, reports the Minnesota State High School League, because 81 of the more than 500 high schools in the state that have school songs have the Rouser as their fight song.

On Wisconsin was next in line, ekeing out the Notre Dame Victory March by a 41-40 margin. Ohio State's Across the Field and Go "U" Northwestern rounded out the top five.

Information was compiled from the 1979-80 edition of the MSHSL directory, which lists songs of all MSHSL member schools.

In an earlier MSHSL listing, it was revealed through information compiled from the directory that Tigers was the most popular nickname for a high school athletic team in Minnesota, with 27 teams going by that name. The Eagles and Indians rank second and third with 25 and 23, respectively.

Top ten school songs — 1. Minnesota Rouser (81); 2. On Wisconsin (41); 3. Notre Dame Victory March (40); 4. Across the Field (Ohio State) (40); 5. Go "U" Northwestern (29); 6. Illinois Loyalty (23); 7. Anchors Aweigh (21); Hail to the Victors (Michigan) (20); 9. College Boy (18); 10. Michigan State Fight Song (17).

Fargo North Beats Lincoln Swimmers

Fargo North won nine of 11 events Saturday afternoon to run up a 113-59 win over Thief River Falls in a girls high school swimming meet staged in the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls coach John Hustad decided to use the meet as an experiment, making several changes in the Prowlers' regular line-up. The changes cost the Prowlers points Saturday, but Hustad was still satisfied with the way things worked out.

One change that wasn't made was in the diving competition where Thief River Falls' Brenda Lund continued to dominate the event with a first place 283.5-point performance Saturday.

Thief River Falls' only other win came in the 100-yard breaststroke where Franki Kuyath swam a 1:20.20. Robyn Dallmann gave the Prowlers a 1-2 finish there with a 1:20.54.

Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River will be in Thief River Falls for a 5 p.m. triangular meet Thursday, with the annual Thief River Falls Prowler relays scheduled to be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Franklin pool.

PAIRED WITH Pam Wassink at No. 1 doubles, Thief River Falls' Marsha Erickson returned a shot at the net against Bemidji Thursday during a triangular high school tennis match played here. The Lumberjills won nine of the ten matches to take the team title, followed by Thief River Falls with five wins and Roseau one.

Cross Country Runners Shine At Detroit Lakes

Bouncing back from a sub-par performance at Crookston Tuesday, Thief River Falls turned in its best effort of the season Thursday with a second place finish at the Detroit Lakes invitational cross country meet.

Staples won the event with 52 points, followed by Thief River Falls 78, East Grand Forks 110, Detroit Lakes 127, Wadena 154, Breckenridge 169, Fergus Falls 170, Frazee 181, Park Rapids 187, Crookston 224 and Perham 267.

"TRF had it all together at the Detroit Lakes invitational," reported Prowlers coach Lynn Dyer. "This is the way I've been waiting for our kids to run. Detroit Lakes has one of, if not the toughest course we'll run on all year, so it was nice to see it come in a situation like that. Our varsity ran great against a tough field."

Matt Grabanski of Thief River Falls was the individual winner in the junior varsity race with a final sprint that carried him past a Staples runner near the finish line for an 18:17 clocking over the three-mile course, and providing Thief River Falls with a 39-40 edge over Staples.

Thief River Falls girls and junior high teams were shorthanded at Detroit Lakes. The girls were missing two runners because of injuries and two others because of illness. The junior high squad had two runners elevated to the junior varsity for the day.

LHS Freshmen Edge Schroeder

Thief River Falls came up with six pass interceptions, one of which was returned for a touchdown, Thursday in an 18-12 freshman football win in Grand Forks over Schroeder junior high.

An 85-yard touchdown run by fullback Scott Jorstad on Thief River Falls' first offensive play of the game got the visitors off to a strong start.

Dave Stimac's one-yard plunge capped a second quarter drive and Tim Bottem, who intercepted three passes, returned an interception 61 yards for a touchdown and an 18-6 halftime lead.

Survival Tips Are Given To Duck Hunters

Duck hunters run a greater risk from drowning than from being shot by a hunting companion, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Elverum told duck hunters they can avoid falling overboard or capsizing their craft by remaining low in the boat, avoiding overloading it with hunters, dogs, and equipment and by staying away from large expanses of open water as much as possible.

He said hunters can now buy comfortable personal flotation devices (PFD's or life preservers) in camouflage colors with full sleeves that will not only keep the hunter afloat but help retain body heat, increasing survival time in the cold water.

And he said that even if the hunter falls overboard wearing heavy clothing and chest waders he is not necessarily doomed.

"On the contrary," he said, "warm clothing is an asset in cold water. Those layers of clothing and the waders contain pockets of air that can increase buoyancy.

"In addition, water trapped between the clothing and the skin is warmed by body heat and acts as an insulator."

Elverum said that a hunter who falls overboard should try to re-enter the boat. If unable to do so, a hunter wearing a PFD should draw up his knees and keep his arms close to his sides for maximum heat conservation.

If the hunter has no PFD," he said, "items such as gas cans, decoys and vacuum jugs can be used to remain afloat."

He said swimming to shore should only be attempted if it is less than a mile away since it will increase heat loss and shorten survival time.

Snowmobiling occurs regularly in 31 states and all Canadian provinces and territories.

Northland Opens Volleyball Season

A season-opening weekend schedule that brought five teams to Thief River Falls left the Northland community college volleyball team with a 2-3 record.

The Northwomen hosted Rainy River and Crookston in a triangular Friday night to start the 1980 season. Northland beat Rainy River 15-13, 15-2, but Crookston was a double winner for the evening with a 15-8, 15-9 decision over Rainy River and a 14-16, 15-5, 15-6 conquest of Northland.

"I was really very happy with the way we played Friday," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "Our defense really came through for us."

A Saturday afternoon quadrangular meet here found Northland beating Vermilion 15-13, 15-8. But the Bemidji State University junior varsity handled Northland 15-6, 15-3 and the Moorhead State University junior varsity defeated the Northwomen 15-7, 15-13.

Ironically, Vermilion beat both of those teams, stopping Moorhead 15-12, 3-15, 15-12 and downing Bemidji 15-10, 15-2.

Moorhead got by Bemidji 8-15, 15-12, 15-9 to complete the day's activity.

"We couldn't get our serves over and we couldn't receive their serves," said Jacobson about the losses to Moorhead and Bemidji. But against Vermilion; "We really played good ball," she pointed out.

Northland built an 11-2 first game lead on Vermilion, but fell behind 13-11 before Nancy Noreen served the final four points for the win.

"It was a good weekend for us," mentioned Jacobson. "I was quite happy with the way we played."

Northland will be on the road this week, playing Brainerd, Fergus Falls and Crookston in the Northwest Division quadrangular at Fergus Falls Wednesday; traveling to White Bear Lake to face Lakewood Friday; and then participating in the North Hennepin invitational tournament at Brooklyn Center Saturday.

EXCHANGE WANTED:
Our Cash For Your Real Estate

If you have real estate for sale, we have buyers with cash (in all amounts) ready to buy. Most want to acquire income properties, and many are seeking commercial sites or acreage.

The National Real Estate Exchange (NRE) administers a central clearing house which inventories, in its national computer datacenter, confidential information on what qualified buyers from the United States (and all over the free world) are seeking. Through NRE you can be in touch with their authorized representatives instantly.

With over 250 independently-owned offices in 43 states, Europe, and the Caribbean, NRE network members can assist you in structuring the sale of your real estate to one or more of these buyers on a totally confidential basis.

For the names of NRE network members nearest you and your real estate, wherever you or it might be, please call or write

Help Wanted

MEN—WOMEN

So you want to learn Office Management

If you qualify, the Army will train you in this field or some other skill for which there is a current need.

You'll be tested before you enlist, so you'll know what you qualify for ahead of time.

We'll pay you $448 a month to start (before deductions). Promotions are there to be earned.

After several years using and polishing the skill you've learned, you'll have a lot of practical experience under your belt.

Whatever skill you're interested in, the Army could be a good place to get started.

We help women find challenging opportunities.

Today, women are looking for different things from life. If they qualify, the Army has a lot of different things to offer them.

Hundreds of skill training opportunities, to start with. Including surveying, motor transport, metal working, electronics repair, administration and food service.

The Army also offers a woman the chance to continue her education. Either by studying on her own time (with the Army paying up to 75% of tuition for approved courses) or by saving for future education with the help of the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program.

In the Army, women are going new places, meeting new people, gaining new confidence in themselves and new pride in their country.

September 22, 1980
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
August 28, 1980

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 1:30 P.M., August 28, 1980.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

George Singer of the Memorial Committee appeared and expressed appreciation for the contribution by the County toward the Veterans Memorial at the Airport.

The Board received a letter from the Kiwanis Club expressing appreciation for the development of Oakland Park as an additional recreation facility in the Community.

Bob Wold, Deputy Sheriff and Mike Conners, Dispatcher appeared and presented a written proposal for amendments to their Union Contract to be effective for 1981. The Board took the proposal for study to be discussed at the earliest convenience, possibly Sept. 9th.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Grabanski who moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Soil Sampling and Mapping agreement with the Soil Conservation be renewed and the Chairman be authorized to sign said agreement with payment according to agreement to be made upon presentation of a bill for services.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

The matter of the request for assistance for repair of the Goodridge Historical Society was discussed and it was suggested that the Chairman of the Goodridge group visit with the Pennington County Historical Society to discuss the matter and to assist the Board in making a decision.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Grabanski that the Auditor, Nursing home Director and Office heads be authorized and instructed to confer and determine a date and advertise and sell at Auction surplus items from the old Courthouse equipment, old Sanatorium and Nursing Home consisting of beds, old machines, surplus materials from old moving partitions, etc. with the sale to be held at the earliest opportunity. Motion carried.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Koop that meeting adjourn to convene at 1:30 P.M., Sept. 2, 1980. Motion carried.

Co., Grygla, $106,489.60; Duluth Superior Erection, Duluth, $121,102.00; Strom Constr., Moorhead, $142,919.25; Den-Mar, Inc., Frazee, $132,424.00; Sellin Bros., Hawley, $133,452.04.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Koop that the bid of Holthusen Constr. Co. in the amount of $106,489.60 be accepted as the lowest and best bid received and the Chairman and Auditor are hereby authorized and instructed to enter into Contract with said low bidder. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the construction of Township Bridge No. 95322 over Judicial Ditch 13 and: WHEREAS, the amount of the grant has been determined to be $39,378.50 by reason of the lowest responsible bid. Now therefore, Be It Resolved: that the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington, and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Commissioner Hoffman introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the Construction of County Bridge No. 95323 over County Ditch 68 and; WHEREAS, The application for the grant has been reviewed by the Northwest Regional Development Commission, and; WHEREAS, The amount of the grant has been determined to be $19,491.80 by reason of the lowest responsible bid. Now Therefore, Be It Resolved: that the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington, and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the construction of County Bridge No. 95324 over County Ditch 43 and; WHEREAS, The Application for the grant has been reviewed by the Northwest Regional Development Commission, and; WHEREAS, The amount of the grant has been determined to be $26,502.00 by reason of the lowest responsible bid. Now Therefore Be It Resolved: That the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington, and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the construction of County Bridge No. 95325 over County Ditch 32 and; WHEREAS, The application for the grant has been reviewed by the Northwest Regional Development Commission, and; WHEREAS, The amount of the grant has been determined to be $21,117.30 by reason of the lowest responsible bid. Now Therefore Be It Resolved: that the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington, and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that the meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., Sept. 9, 1980. Motion Carried.

Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
September 9, 1980

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., September 9, 1980.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Members of the City Council of the City of St. Hilaire appraised the Board of a program being developed by the City for improvements in the City.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The City of St. Hilaire, located in Pennington County, Minnesota, has made application for Federal assistance under the Community Facilities Loan Program and the Water & Waste Disposal Systems for Rural Communities Program, and

WHEREAS, A preliminary survey and engineering study indicates a need for improvement of City facilities.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the proposed project is necessary and feasible for the City of St. Hilaire.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Vernon Holmstrom, County Surveyor, presented a Plat entitled Swensen's Subdivision, being a part of Unplatted St. Hilaire in Section 6 - 152-43 and a replat of part of Ives Addition in St. Hilaire. Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that Plat be approved. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The Minnesota Legislature has authorized the Commissioner of Natural Resources to enter into a settlement agreement with the White Earth Band of Chippewa Indians; and

WHEREAS, The Becker County Board of Commissioners, the Clearwater County Board of Commissioners, and the Mahnomen County Board of Commissioners have enacted Resolutions in opposition to such a settlement agreement at this point in time; and,

WHEREAS, The Pennington County Board of Commissioners has been requested to support by Resolution the position of these three Counties most directly affected; and,

WHEREAS, The interests of Pennington County in this matter are similar to those of Becker County, Clearwater County and Mahnomen County.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Pennington County Board of Commissioners do not think that it is in the best interests of Pennington County for the Commissioner of Natural Resources to enter into a settlement with the White Earth Band of Chippewa Indians at this point in time.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon call for a vote was declared unanimously adopted.

A discussion of procedures and activity in and by the Highway Department of the County was then held. No action.

The County Extension Budget was then reviewed as received for 1981 and recommended by the Extension Committee. Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the sum of $40,090.00 be set apart from the General Revenue Fund and appropriated subject to the order of the Dean of the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota for the support of county extension work in agriculture and home economics in Pennington County, for the year beginning January 1, 1981, in accordance with Chapter 202, Laws 1953 and acts supplementary thereto.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Grabanski that the Road Committee and Bridges and culvert committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 2:00 P.M., Sept. 15, 1980. Motion carried.

Triumphant Firsts Make Great Pictures

From the first word, to the first stop, to the first fish, a small child's life is a steady progression of achievements that flash by with incredible speed.

There is little time to savor each wonderful event as it happens. When you capture the moment in a picture, however, you not only can savor it at your leisure, but you can share it as well. A picture of the triumphant youngster with fresh-caught fish will be cherished by his or her grandparents as a description in a letter never could be.

And of course the child can have a great time showing a print to friends.

Fishing is by no means the only situation in which this is true. Triumphs and firsts can occur in almost any situation that makes a child shout "Hey, look at me!"

Getting these pictures requires, first, that you be there with your camera. Modern technology has made cameras so sophisticated that the camera can almost, but not quite, take it from there. The new Kodak Ektralite cameras, for example, have built-in electronic Sensalite flash that turns itself on (and off) as needed, so that you can just aim and shoot whatever the lighting conditions.

The content of the picture, however, is still up to you. You have to choose the angle, watch the background, and pick the exact moment to take the picture. It is your perceptive eye that determines whether the result will be yet another triumph.

Oakland Park Hosts 25th Anniversary Party Sun.

An anniversary open house will be conducted Sunday (September 28) at Oakland Park Nursing Home in Thief River Falls beginning at 2 p.m. in honor of the Home's 25th Anniversary celebration.

Schedule of events planned throughout the day will begin with the prelude given by Mrs. Barb Geer with Mrs. Joyce Fox, chairman of the Pennington county welfare board (Home's executive board) presiding.

Rev. J. M. Hovland, the Home's "unofficial" visiting pastor, will give the invocation, and songs will be presented by Oakland Park Nursing Home's residents' choral group directed by Lois Anderson, activities director at the home.

A welcome to all residents will be given by Miss Bea Erickson, president of the Oakland Park Nursing home resident's council; a welcome to resident's families will be given by Otto Stenberg, a family member and county commissioner for 10 years; welcome to the staff will be given by Mrs. Doris Peterson, an employee for 17 years, and a welcome to the board (and recognition of guests) will be given by Glenn Tasa, Pennington county commissioner for 32 years, and a member of the Oakland Park Nursing Home executive board since January of 1969.

"25 Years of Caring" (1955-1980) theme for the celebration, will be discussed by Alice Wold, R.N., and first director of nursing at the home in 1955; and Mrs. Mary Numedahl, current director of nursing.

A history of the home will be summarized in "Remember When" a presentation which will be given by Carl V. Anderson, Pennington county; John Coleman, Red Lake county; Roy Edman, Marshall county, and Andy Erickson, Roseau county — the original committee charged with deciding, "Should there be an Oakland Park Nursing Home?"

Remarks and recognition of 25 years of service to the home will be presented by Sherryll Irvine, the Home's administrator, along with Mabel Torkelson, Glenn Tasa, Charles Rodekuhr, and Alyce Geske.

"It has been home" will be discussed by June Thrane, a nurse's aide for 21 years who has cared for a resident of the home for 21 years, Percy Nabben.

A sing along medley will be presented by the residents' chorus and the audience, and will include the selection, "God Bless America."

Refreshments — throughout the day will be prepared by the Oakland Park Nursing Home dietary staff.

No invitations are being sent for the anniversary party, but the residents, staff and board of Oakland Park cordially invite all friends of the Home to share in saying, "Happy Anniversary, Oakland Park."

Trentyn Johnson

Trent Johnson Named Merit Semi-Finalist

Trentyn Johnson, a senior at Lincoln high school and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson of rural Thief River Falls, has been named a semifinalist in the national merit scholarship program.

As semi-finalist, he represents the top one half of one per cent of the state's high school senior class. Over 90 per cent of the semi-finalists are expected to advance to finalist standing by meeting further requirements, including recommendation by secondary school principals, submitting records that confirm high academic standing and substantiating their high qualifying test scores with equivalent scores on another examination.

Over a million students enrolled in about 18,000 secondary schools in the country entered the program by taking the test in 1979 when most of the students were juniors.

The 14,000 finalists to be selected will be notified next February that they are competing for about 4,500 merit scholarships to be awarded and announced next spring. At least 1,000 of the awards in 1981 will be nonrenewable scholarships of $1,000 for which every finalist will be considered.

The one-time national awards are allocated on a state representational basis in proportion to the state's number of graduating seniors. About 3,500 scholarships, most of which are worth between $1,000 and $8,000 over four years of undergraduate study, will be awarded in 1981.

Commissioner Approves Building Of High School

Review and comment from Minnesota commissioner of education Howard Casmey regarding the proposed $15 million bond issue for new school construction in Thief River Falls has been received by the School District 564 board of education. Full content of the statement is published in the legal section of today's issue of the Times.

Review and comment summary given by the commissioner is as follows:

(1) The need for both new and renovated educational facilities was well documented;

(2) The proposed building construction promises elimination of the use of substandard elementary and secondary school facilities;

(3) The school district is in sound financial condition;

(4) Planning documents should include more detailed information regarding proposed improvements to all district buildings. Those identified as being hazardous for occupants must be considered the first priority for improvement.

"Based on the department's analysis of the district's documentation and the above review and comment," Commissioner Casmey states, "the commissioner of education judges the proposed construction to be educationally and economically advisable if current life-safety hazards are remedied and the vocational center programming is made compatible with the regular high school program."

The review and comment statements point out that the district has bonded indebtedness of $870,000 as of June 30, 1980, and that the district's maximum allowable bonded indebtedness is in excess of $30 million.

"It is apparent," the comments state, "that major and costly renovations would be necessary to continue using the 1910 and 1918 sections of the existing high school. Such renovations would not make the complex into an effective and efficient plant, but simply improve safety conditions."

Also in regard to facilities, the commissioner comments on concentration of the community-college, AVTI and high school along highway 1, surface drainage in the area, appearance of limited future expansion and flexibility, consideration of sun, wind, rain, snow and views in regard to high school parking and other components, and parking lot size considering personal transportation of students.

"The very preliminary high school building plans submitted for review make an evaluation of the efficiency and effectiveness of the proposal very difficult," the commissioner's review states. "Interior arrangements of spaces shown on the high school preliminary plans appear quite inflexible and may force future school boards to make expensive changes to the building to accommodate changes in the instruction programs."

Regarding school enrollment projections, the review states: "Starting with the 1980-81 school year, the school district projects an increase in students in grades K-6 along with a decrease of students in grades 9-12 for the next three years. The student population is expected to decline until the 1983-84 school year, at which point the school district expects the school population to begin increasing.

"The Minnesota department of education enrollment projections through 1985 are lower than those of the district, particularly at the secondary level. This difference can be accounted for largely in that the department projects a 22.5 per cent dropout rate from ninth grade to 12th grade as compared to the school district's 20 per cent estimate."

Statements of need and alternatives considered are also included in the review and comments. All voters in the district are encouraged to read the complete text published in today's legal section.

Telemarken Church Has 75th Year Anniversary

September 14 dawned beautifully clear and pleasant and the fine weather continued throughout the day, a fitting setting for the 75th anniversary of the Telemarken Lutheran church.

The morning program began with a greeting extended to everyone by Rev. Raynard Huglen. Morning services were conducted by Rev. Harold Peterson and duets were sung by Rev. and Mrs. Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mathison.

The afternoon program, following a noon luncheon, was introduced by Roger Mickelson. Devotions were given by Rev. Huglen. Greetings from former pastors were read by Carl Lindblom.

Rev. Donald Fredine talked on how the past was the groundwork of our present churches.

The church's history was read by Alice Brorby Lendobeja with the recognition of all descendants of charter members and members 50 years ago. A tribute was given to all organists.

Roger Mickelson paid tribute to the Bjornson and Sabö descendants and recognized Rev. and Mrs. Arlen Hermodson, and Rev. and Mrs. Gene Broughton. Greetings and a solo were given by Rev. Peterson, accompanied by Mrs. Peterson.

Rev. Huglen dedicated the improvements that had been done to the church.

Closing with the benediction and table prayer, Rev. Huglen extended an invitation to everyone to partake of anniversary cake and coffee in the new dining area.

Guests from a distance who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Burton Aarness, St. Louis Park; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Aarness, Fertile; Hazel Aarness, Minnetonka; Clifford Aarness, Bremerton, Wa.; Rev. and Mrs. Harold Peterson, Avoca, Iowa; Mrs. Stella Luczak and Edna Kuras, Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ellofson, Red Lake Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bayes, Thunder Bay, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, Hibbing; Mr. and Mrs. Sig Sigurdson, Oklee;

Also Mrs. Ronald Bodell, Rhonda and Shelly, Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Olav Arneberg, McKinock, N.D.; Mildred Wold, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Parish, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mathson and Gina, Bertha; Roger Kilen, Gatzke; Rev. Donald Fredine, Middle River; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lundeen, Trail; Ingeborg H. Olson, Fergus Falls;

Also Signe Lie and Lydia Lie, Trail; Mrs. Kathy Vathauer and Kristen, Red Lake Falls; Bill and Aljean Svendsgaard, Minneapolis; Gunda Pederson, Grand Forks; Pauline Hanson, Minneapolis; Rev. and Mrs. Arlen Hermodson, Fosston; Alice Skreland and Betty Hanson, Oklee; and numerous people from Thief River Falls and Goodridge.

Approximately 300 people attended.

Church History

In the beginning when the reservation was opened, people settled on every quarter of land, necessitating the building of many churches of which Telemarken was one.

At the Halvor Waale home, Sunday, March 5, 1905, the Telemarken church was organized, given the name Telemarken since so many of the congregation came from Telemark, Norway including the Pastor Halvor Bjørnson who became the pastor of the newly formed congregation which included approximately 50 families.

After services on the 30th of January, 1906 at the Pastor

SERVICE OF DEDICATION was held at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Sunday when new additions and remodeled areas of the church were dedicated. Bishop Harold Lohr (right) of Moorhead officiated at the dedication service, assisted by Rev. Keith Prekker (left), pastor of the congregation, and Rev. Don Knudson, associate pastor. Additions include a new fellowship hall and fireside room while previous fellowship hall was remodeled into Sunday school rooms.

DNR Speaker To Address Audubon Club

Agassiz Audubon society will hear about the Minnesota department of natural resources non-game program at its meeting to be held tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Pennington county sportsmen's club. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Carroll Henderson, head of the program in the St. Paul office of DNR, will discuss the non-game program and the authorized income tax check-off to help subsidize non-game management programs. Passed late in the last session of the legislature, the income tax provision has been dubbed the "chickadee check-off".

A brief business meeting will be held and a farewell recognition given to society president Randy Johnson who is leaving for missionary service in Madagascar.

Holmaas Steps Down As Mayor

Stan Holmaas, mayor of Newfolden for the past five years and councilman for 16 years prior to that time, has announced his decision not to seek reelection this fall.

Holmaas said he wants his decision known well in advance of the city election so serious thought can be given by other citizens to filing for the position.

"I have enjoyed city service very much," he said, "although there have been some trying times. I have had many experiences and have learned a few things from them. It has been a joy to work with the present council, the many past councils and three different mayors while I was a councilman.

"I sincerely appreciate the fine support I have had while serving the past five years as mayor and I hope this spirit will continue for whoever becomes the new mayor," he added.

CETA Office At New Location

Department of economic security's CETA center office, will be in the process of moving to 318 Knight av. N. in Thief River Falls September 30, and will be open for business at its new location October 1. Telephone number will remain 681-7350.

With this move, the Department of economic security will be one step closer to co-locating all of the department's Thief River Falls offices.

Properties Redefined At Parking Project Hearing

21 YEARS OF SERVICE as councilman and mayor of the city of Newfolden was recognized for Stanley Holmaas (left) when Newfolden hosted the regional League of Minnesota Cities meeting Tuesday evening. David Kragness, representing the Newfolden city council, made the presentation. A similar plaque was awarded by the Newfolden council to Ben Nelson who also had 21 years of council and mayoral service prior to his retirement several years ago. Holmaas announced publicly this week that he will not seek reelection as mayor to give other prospective candidates time to consider filing for the office.

Due to a change in sites and assessment costs related to the special assessment district parking project, a project hearing was conducted Monday evening in the meeting room of the city auditorium to give property owners a chance to be heard on the matter.

Purpose of Monday evening's hearing, according to Jon Larson, chairman of the downtown parking assessment district committee, was to redefine properties involved in the project, and to plan for a final hearing on the matter — hopefully in October, he added.

Under the new proposal, properties being considered for acquisition include the former Lind Motor Supply building on LaBree ave; a 50-foot lot south of the Lind Motor building, owned by Northwestern hospital; the 50-foot lot located between Sjoberg's Inc., and the Credit Bureau on Main avenue; the Credit Bureau property itself; and a vacant lot located northeast of the intersection of Horace avenue and Fourth street.

The Bloomquist building across from the post office on LaBree avenue is now proposed to be eliminated as being too costly. The hospital-owned lot and the property at Horace and Fourth were not included in earlier proposals. The areas proposed would have a total of 138 parking spaces, according to assessment district estimates.

Previous hearing conducted May 20 involved a total project cost of $551,000 — a $101,000 increase from the previous estimate. During a June 3 meeting, it had been stated that additional relocation costs of approximately $95,000 would be included in the project — costs that could not be figured into the project until it was determined what properties were being purchased — according to Jack Quinlivan, city planner, who discussed the situation at that time.

"The total project cost at that time was $650,000," Larson said Monday night. "We would now like to propose new properties at lower costs," he said.

At the June 3 meeting, it was resolved that the city would pay 50 per cent of the additional relocation costs and that the city engineer would prepare an assessment role for submission to council which would include $47,500 for additional special assessments for the possible additional relocation costs.

Assessments made, explained Don Stewart of the Stewart and Walker firm, are based on the total square feet of the business with credit given for storage area and if the property owner owns parking within the assessment boundaries.

Breaking down the assessments according to percentages, he said, commercial and retail business

Plummer Hosts German Student

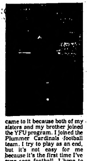
Dear Sirs:

My name is Udo Steffens, and I am 17 years old. I am a foreign exchange student from the northern part of Germany, near Hamburg. My father, Theodor, is a teacher at a senior high school. My mother, Sigrid, is a housewife. I've two older sisters, Karin and Elisabeth, and an older brother, Peter. I'm living with Pastor Luther Heitz and his family. I'll stay with them for a whole year. I'm a senior at Plummer high school and hope to graduate in '81.

The American school system is totally different to the German one. In Germany, we have four years of elementary, six years of junior high and three years of senior high. In junior high we have a schedule made by the school. Every day you have different subjects. One lesson is 45 minutes long and between second, third, fourth and fifth hours, we have 15-minute breaks. School starts at 7:55 a.m. and ends at 1:10 p.m. We don't have lunch at school. From the fifth grade on, every student is supposed to take English.

Many people asked me how I came to the YFU (Youth For Understanding) program. I came to it because both of my sisters and my brother joined the YFU program. I joined the Plummer Cardinals football team. I try to play as an end, but it's not easy for me because it's the first time I've ever seen football. I hope to know more about it in the time I leave.

Thank you,
-s-Udo Steffens



Goodridge Sets Council Meet

Goodridge city council meeting has been postponed from October 1 to October 8 at 8 p.m. in the city hall. Filing for the office of Mayor and two aldermen is now open and will close on October 7. Persons interested in filing for office may contact Rhonda Downs or Mayor David Brown.

LEAGUE OF MINNESOTA CITIES held its regional meeting Tuesday evening in Newfolden with approximately 80 people from the Northwestern part of the state in attendance. Among those on the program were Don Slater (left), executive director of the League of Minnesota Cities from St. Paul, and Vaughn Thorfinnson of Red Lake Falls, regional director on the board of the state organization. Slater and Thorfinnson were called upon frequently during the evening discussion to answer questions.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Kristie Joy Ortloff And Sheldon R. Hodgson Wed

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city by Kristie Joy Ortloff, daughter of Mrs. Raymond Ortloff of Thief River Falls, and Sheldon Robert Hodgson of Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hodgson of Red Lake Falls.

Rev. Don Knudson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. William Halbasch, organist, played "Nadia's Theme," for the processional, and accompanied Arla Wiskow, a friend of the couple, as she sang, "Annie's Song," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Candelabra with greenery and blue bows graced the chancel. Matching bows marked the front pews reserved for the immediate families.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brothers: Dwight and Wayne Ortloff. She was attired in a gown of white chiffon, with imported Chantilly lace accenting the empire waistline, bishop sleeves and Queen Anne neckline. Her bouffant skirt flowed into a chapel-length train. To complete her attire, she wore a veil of bridal illusion, edged with the same lace as trimmed her gown. She carried a bouquet of camellias, in shades of peach, accented with blue forget-me-nots.

Maid of honor was Brenda Puppe, city, a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Debbie Sigerud and Patty Johnston of Thief River Falls, also friends of the bride. Their light blue spaghetti strapped gowns with shirred bodices and flowing skirts, were topped by light blue openwork lace jackets, deeply fringed, and tied in front. They carried bouquets of deep blue wild roses, light blue forget-me-nots, and touches of babies' breath. In their hair, they wore two wild roses, accented with forget-me-nots and babies' breath.

The groom was attended by Steve Larson as best man, Craig Amiot and Mike Puffinger, as groomsmen. All are friends of the groom, and all reside at Red Lake Falls. Ushers were David Abner, Grand Forks, N.D., brother-in-law of the bride, and Richard Audette, Crookston, brother-in-law of the groom. The groom and his attendants wore light blue Wellington tuxedos with dark blue trim and white ruffled shirts. The groom's boutonniere was a cluster of forget-me-nots and lilies of the valley. His best man wore a white carnation tipped in blue and the others had all white carnations pinned on their lapels.

Following the ceremony, the mother of the bride hosted a reception in the church fellowship hall for approximately 275 relatives and friends. Reception host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Doug Disterhaupt, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Karla and Karmen Ortloff, nieces of the bride, were at the guest book as Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morken, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, ladled the punch.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Barb Johnson, sister of the bride. The cake was decorated with white roses and blue forget-me-nots with each corner accented with doves and bows. Topping the tiers, separated by pillars, were clusters of silk camellias and forget-me-nots. The upper tier was topped by love birds. The cake was cut and served by Delores Mortrud, godmother of the bride, and Harriet Clemetson, aunt of the groom. Dorothy Bergman, friend of the bride, and Adelaide Nass, aunt of the groom, presided at the coffee service.

Waitresses were DeAnna Knutson, Darla Knutson, Kelly Erickson and Cindy Mortrud. At the gift table were Jeff Johnson, Randy Audette, and Mike Anderson. Irene Ortloff, sister-in-law of the bride, made the flowers for the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Northwestern hospital. The groom is self-employed as a mechanic in Red Lake Falls. The couple is at home in rural Brooks. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau

John R. Olsons Note Their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Olson, rural Newfolden, observed their 50th wedding anniversary recently at an open house at their farm home.

Hosting the event were their five children: Mrs. Millie Everson, Grand Forks, N.D.; Mrs. Mavis Haglund, Salt Lake City, Utah; Mrs. Willis (Janice) Grochow, Warren; James Wolson, Viking, and Jerry Olson, Newfolden.

Also present were 14 of the couple's 18 grandchildren, and seven of their 10 great-grandchildren. All wore corsages and boutonnieres, as did the honored couple, their children and Mrs. Andy Hjelle, Newfolden, who served as bridesmaid at the wedding 50 years ago.

A brief program, planned by the children, was given with Mrs. Willis Grochow serving as mistress of ceremonies. She read "Parents," "The Old Coffee Pot," and "Love Makes a Home", introduced the children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren and identified the grandchildren, Jennifer Grochow, Jared and Tracie Olson, as they sang "Jesus Loves Grandma and Grandpa," and "Jesus Loves Me," with Mrs. Grochow playing the accordion accompaniment. The assembled relatives and friends sang "Amazing Grace."

The program also included devotions by Jerry Olson; two solos by Harvey Dyrud, with harp accompaniment; and two vocal selections by James and Marge Olson and Jerry and Darlene Olson. Millie Everson read "The Life History of 50 Years," which she had written; and Rev. Merle Knutson gave a meditation of the sanctity of marriage, based on Biblical teachings. The program concluded with words of appreciation by the honored couple, a song by their five children, the Lord's Prayer, and table grace.

A reception followed. Highlighting the serving table were a candelabra, a gift which the couple received at their wedding 50 years ago; their wedding picture, a bouquet of flowers, and a three-tiered anniversary cake baked by Mrs. Grochow. The cake was decorated with yellow roses and topped with a gold 50th anniversary Christogram, a gift from the children.

The cake was cut and served by Laura Haaseth, Newfolden, and Mrs. Ethel Anderson, Viking. The daughters served the coffee and nectar. Katie Olmstad, Grand Forks, and LaDawn Haglund, Salt Lake City, great-granddaughter and granddaughter, presided at the guest book and distributed the thank-you booklets.

Hours will be from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m., with a program at 2:00.

All friends and relatives are welcome to attend. The couple requests "No gifts, please."

Brandon Lee Page Baptized Sunday At Oak Ridge

Brandon Lee Page, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Page, was baptized Sunday, September 21, at the regular morning worship service at Oak Ridge Lutheran church. Rev. K. David Gabrielsen administered the sacrament. Sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Lewis.

Following the service, a dinner was hosted by his parents and grandparents at the Martin Solseng home. Centering the table was an inscribed cake, trimmed with a cross. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Lewis.

Present, in addition to the child, his parents and sponsors, were his great-grandmothers: Mrs. Esther Solseng and Mrs. Lillian Knutson of Thief River Falls; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wally Page of Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng; and his uncles, aunts and cousins: Mr. and Mrs. Elton Solseng and Heidi of Fargo, N.D., Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Page, Twyla and Dean of Hines, Becky Page of Isle and Michelle Solseng.

Also present were Rev. and Mrs. David Gabrielson, Derek, Tony, Chris and Heidi of Viking; Mr. and Mrs. K. Hegland of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Gladys Parenteau of Chicago, Ill., Mark Bruske of Isle; Mrs. Edith Dyrdal, Mrs. Eleanor Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Don Dyrdal, Greg, Kathy, John and Kristy, Allen Gerde and Todd Lewis.

Pictures were taken to record the day's events. The child received many gifts and cards to mark the occasion.

Alpha Phi Hosts Luncheon For Epsilon Province

Alpha Phi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International hosted a luncheon on Saturday, September 20, at Lon's.

Guests were eight members of Epsilon Province, 13 members of the Alpha Xi chapter, and Margaret Berg of Bemidji, president of Tau State, the Minnesota state group.

Seated at the head table were Anne Ole, Roseau, president of Alpha Xi chapter; Estelle Grinde, Thief River Falls, who was in charge of the program and also gave the invocation; Art Lee, professor of history at Bemidji State University, who served as guest speaker; Edith Etter, Thief River Falls president of Alpha Phi chapter; Mrs. Alice Cheatley, second vice president of Delta Kappa Gamma society International; Mrs. Nadia Preyma, Winnipeg; president of Epsilon Province; and Margaret Berg, Tau state president.

The luncheon opened with the group singing "The Star Spangled Banner," "O Canada," and the "Delta Kappa Gamma song" with Jeanne Harger as accompanist. Art Lee, in telling of some of his experiences while writing the book, "The Lutefisk Ghetto," shared portions of the book which tells of life in a small Wisconsin town where he lived as a child. He stated, "All people should at some time live in a village. Help is human in small towns, never institutional. It is good friends and neighbors that are your roots in life. "Following the meeting, he autographed copies of his book.

Also speaking to the group was Tau State President Berg and Dr. Cheatley, who gave information on the International Society's educational foundation programs and encouraged members to support its new fund drive, "80 for the 80's."

Following the program Mrs. Etter announced the winners of the door prizes, selected by numbers on the program, each with a significance to the society. The prizes were distributed by the hostesses Mary Boutiette and Deone Cerny, who also presented gifts from Alpha Phi chapter to each of the visiting presidents. Mrs. Preyma gave gifts from Epsilon province to the other three presidents. Pens from Hydro Mac and key rings from Arctic Enterprises were given to each guest. Mrs. Grinde and her helpers distributed the items from the silent auction that preceded the luncheon.

Later in the afternoon Margaret Berg and the Canadian guests were guests at the Etter home. Assisting Mrs. Etter as hostesses were Deone Cerny, Janet Shaw and Clarice Galliher.

School Board Awards Bids On Insurance

Thief River Falls board of education received its 1979-80 audit report and let contracts for several insurance coverages at its regular meeting held Monday morning in the school district service center board room.

The district continued its legal liability coverage with CNA for an annual premium of $1,227; accepted bids of the Genereux Agency, Inc., for basic coverage in the amount of $38,948, umbrella for $2,399 and comprehensive auto for $7,908; accepted the bid of MSBA Insurance Trust in the amount of $38,411 for workmen's compensation coverage effective October 1; and accepted the bid of Thune Upham, Inc., for faithful performance bond coverage in the amount of $571.

Audit report was received from Holcomb, Knudson and company with Richard Anderson making the presentation.

The district employed Cecelia A. McKenna-Barda as SLD teacher at Lincoln effective September 9 at a rate of $80.38 per day and Ralph Berg for four hours per day instruction in the learning resource center at the AVTI at a rate of $13.40 per hour. Violet Muzzy was hired as a cook helper at Lincoln at a rate of $4.55 per hour.

Extra-curricular assignments approved were for Sharon Stauss as head high school softball coach at a salary of $1,130; John R. Rennicke as boys eighth grade basketball coach at a salary of $526.75; and Howard Thorson as fifth and sixth grade football coach and elementary boys basketball coach.

The board also entered into an agreement at no expense to the district for the Inter-County community council-school youth program for 1980-81. The program will involve four to six youths in the building and grounds department. Similar programs have been used by the district in prior years.

Kjos Accepts Bank Office In Dodge Center

David Kjos, cashier at First Northwestern state bank of Thief River Falls, has accepted the position of vice president at Northwestern state bank of Dodge Center.

Kjos began working at First Northwestern here in the spring of 1975 under the internship program through Northland community college. He completed his college education at Moorhead state university in June of 1977, graduating with a BA degree in accounting.

Following graduation he returned to the bank in Thief River Falls, working in the operations department. In June of 1978 he was elected assistant cashier and in July of 1979 was promoted to cashier and personnel officer.

David and his wife Lori, who has been employed at the Ramsay Eye clinic, will be moving to Dodge Center in early October.

Forrest Ballou Services Held At Grygla

Funeral services for Forrest Ballou, 70, of rural Grygla, were held Tuesday at 10:00 a.m., at the Pentecostal Assembly church in Grygla. Ballou died Friday afternoon at his farm home in Espelie township, Marshall county, near Grygla.

Rev. Stewart Nereim officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Nancy Sandland. Interment was in the Espelie cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Ola Byklum, Alfred Sorenson, Kenneth Sandland, Carlyle Askeland, Earl Ballou and Bob Ballou.

Forrest Berdette Ballou, a son of the late James and Stella Mae Thompkins Ballou, was born Dec. 1, 1909 in Shelby, Ind. At the age of six years, he moved with his family to the Grygla area. He attended school and grew to manhood in the Grygla area and has since lived on the family farm in Espelie township. He never married.

He is survived by his brother, Basil Ballou of Grygla; a sister, Mrs. Melva Owens, Thief River Falls; and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by one sister, Velma, and four brothers: Ellsworth, Jess, Fred and Vance.

Services Held Here Today For D. S. Green, 88

Funeral services for Deforest S. Green, 88, of Thief River Falls, were held today (Wednesday) at 2:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Green died Sunday afternoon at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital, where he had been a resident since leaving Valley Home.

Rev. Keith Prekker, pastor at Redeemer Lutheran church, officiated at the service. Melinda Green served as organist. Vocal selections were tape recordings by Merrill Womach. Cremation will take place at the Riverside cemetery in Fargo, N.D.

Deforest Sylvanus Green was born Sept. 10, 1892 at Shadrun, Neb., to Silvanus and Mahala Green. In 1896, he moved with the family to North Dakota, where he attended schools at Wheatland and grew to manhood there.

He was married at Wheatland to Pearl Brown. The couple lived and farmed there with his parents. He began working for the Soo Line Railroad in 1917 at Enderlin, N.D. In 1933, during the depression, he moved to Moorhead and worked there for the Parks Department.

In May of 1933, he was married in Moorhead to Maybelle Rife. The couple lived in Moorhead until 1937, when Green began working for the Soo Line in Thief River Falls. He was fireman for trains 9 and 10, serving Thief River Falls. Later he became an engineer and continued in that capacity until his retirement in 1963. He was an avid gardener.

On Sept. 23, 1965, he was married at Bemidji to Eva Markey. She survives.

Also surviving are three sons: Dennis Green, Thief River Falls; Clayton, Post Falls, Idaho; and Dalen, Devils Lake, N.D.; a daughter, Mrs. Dakota (Dickie) Larson, Post Falls, Idaho; eight grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, three sisters: Effie, Pearl and Bertha, and a brother, John.

Mrs. Marcella Gutterud, 65, Dies In Idaho

Mrs. Marcella Gutterud, 65, of this city died Thursday, September 18, in Post Falls, Idaho at the home of her son, Myron Gutterud, where she had spent the past two weeks.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marcella Gutterud were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at the Calvary Lutheran church in Post Falls. Interment was in the Evergreen cemetery there.

Mrs. Gutterud, the former Marcella Quammen, was born north of Thief River Falls on Jan. 14, 1915 to Blanche and Selmer Quammen, now deceased. She ws married in 1934 to Art Gutterud and they made their home in Thief River Falls. She was employed by Land O' Lakes for 33 years, retiring in 1975.

She was a member of the Silver Creek Lutheran church, American Legion auxiliary 117; Ladies auxiliary of VFW 2793; and the Eagles auxiliary.

She is survived by two sons: Myron Gutterud, Post Falls, Idaho, and Ross, Moscow, Idaho; three grandchildren, and a sister, Adeline Douglas, Elmira, Wash.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in 1972.

Memorials may be sent to Calvary Lutheran church, box 415, Post Falls, Idaho 83854, or to the donor's choice.

Scout Troop 59 Awards Court Held Friday

Boy Scout Troop 59 court of awards was held Friday evening at Zion Lutheran church. Scoutmasters Jerry Okland and Jim Hoks conducted the event, assisted by Senior Patrol Leader Jim Van Schaick.

Darrin and David Sumner presented the colors, after which all boys repeated the outdoor code. Special recognition was given to Jim Hoks and Jim Van Schaick on their achievement of Order of the Arrow. Chris Okland and Mike Melby led the group in a song.

Following skill awards were presented: citizenship — Bill Ryan, Jay Jonson, David Rauch and Mike Johnson; hiking — Bill Nygaard; first aid and family living — Darrin Sumner; citizenship, family living and first aid — David Sumner; and hiking, environment and community living — Quincy Lofberg.

Tenderfoot advancement award was presented to Darrin Sumner; and Second Class advancement award was presented to Quincy Lofberg.

Ceremony closed with everyone singing "Taps".

Telemarken Church Notes Anniversary

Bjornson home it was voted to have the church and church yard in the northwest corner of section 14 on the farm which is now Truman Hemmestvedt's. At this same meeting it was decided that each member give not less than $2 per year per person or more if so wished or able, as salary for the minister. Pastor Bjornson supplemented his income by farming.

Sunday the 1st of April, 1906 after services at the Torjus Hemmestvedt home, a meeting was held with the final decision where the church was built. It had taken several meetings since January with much discussion to come to this decision to have the church located at the present location, then the G. Swenson farm. The vote was 16 to 13 in the favor of the present site. At the same time plans were formed to build a church building 24 feet long and 20 feet wide. The building committee appointed were Torjus Hemmestvedt, John Johnson and Simon Olson.

On March 10, 1907 after church services, a meeting was held to plan for the building of the church. Torjus Hemmestvedt was appointed head carpenter with a salary of $2 per day. Resolved, too, that all members were to help with the building.

At the annual meeting Jan. 8, 1908 decisions were made to hold parochial school from four to six weeks, a practice which was continued year after year, to purchase 100 chairs for the church at 50 cents apiece, to have a clean-up day of the church yard on Memorial Day, an observance that has continued, and to have the trustees of the church get the church insured. It is interesting to note how our forefathers planned for the future.

Reading from the minutes of January 6, 1909 it was decided to have parochial school at the church from June 15 for six weeks. On the school committee were A. Haugen and Christ Nygaard.

On the 25th of April 1909, the Andrew Gullingsrud family became members of the Telemarken congregation. It was interesting to note this was the first family mentioned after the charter member entries.

In May 1919 after a church service, a meeting was held to decide to build a new church 30x40 with the sacristy 18x12 and the steeple 12x12. The building committee chosen were Torjus Hemmestvedt, Andrew Gullingsrud and Nels Aarness. One of the decisions made was to use a decorative metal ceiling.

On May 6, 1920, Pastor Bjornson submitted his resignation having accepted another call. He had served the Telemarken congregation for 15 years.

During Pastor Bjornson's 15 years of service, Mrs. Bjornson and Valborg Bjornson were organists.

A farewell gathering of all the members of the congregations Pastor Bjornson had served was held at the newly built Telemarken church on June 20, 1920.

The first baptism was Hilda Marie Waale on Nov. 12, 1905; sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Waale, Torbjorn Waale and Mrs. Joe Kilen.

On Dec. 10, 1905 the first confirmation was held with the following confirmands: Elmer Tronnes and Carl Theodore Nygaard.

On Oct. 4, 1908 the second confirmation took place with the following: Pearl Brorby, Annie Haugen and Maria E. Iverson.

The first funeral to take place was for Mrs. J. Norby on the 28th of July, 1906.

The first wedding to take place in the new church in June, 1920, was for Tillie Thompson and Jerry Race who have now been wed for sixty years. Pastor Bjornson performed the ceremony prior to his departure.

Pastor Sabo was installed at services held Sept. 12, 1920 in the newly built church.

Mrs. Sabo, Hazel Aarness, Agnes Hanson and Alice Skreland served as organists during Pastor Sabo's time of service.

In 1920 it was resolved to hold Sunday school.

Telemarken was then served by interns with the help of Pastor Heltne of the Goodridge parish and Neil Hendrickson, lay pastor of Zion church, Thief River Falls.

Telemarken is now being cared for by Pastor Raynard Huglen of Newfolden.

We owe a deep abiding debt of gratitude to the pastors who were our shepherds for such a long time, Pastor Halvor Bjornson and Pastor E. O. Sabo.

Our gratitude to the secretaries who kept the minutes so carefully, Kristian P. Brorby, Alice Brorby Lendobeja's father; Olga Waale Lindblom's father, Halvor Waale and brother, Henry Waale; Nels Aarness, R. M. Johnson, Andrew Gullingsrud, and the carpenters who built the two churches, the Hemmestvedts, Myrtle Hemmestvedt Thompson's father, Torjus and her brothers, Einar and Sidney. They built a church that stands as beautifully strong as it did 60 years ago.

Our thanks to everyone who has served us and especially we owe a hearty thank-you to Pastor Huglen. Without his help and enthusiasm we would not be celebrating our 75th anniversary today, Sept. 14, 1980.

Much reading and research into the old records, the translation of the Norwegian language, and information from several have been written into these histories. Thanks to Myrtle Thompson, Olga Lindblom and Beatrice Wilson for their help. Thanks to Gunhild Syrtveit and Signe Bjornson Lie for their information. Thanks to everyone who helped. It has been nostalgic and emotional reading over what happened so long ago.

Ladies Aid

The Telemarken ladies aid was organized by Mrs. Bjornson who became the first president.

The ladies met once a month at the homes of the members where they would card wool and tie quilts to be sold at auction on Thanksgiving Day.

A tiny dime tied in the corner of a handkerchief paid for the lunch which consisted often of freshly baked bread, freshly churned butter and wild strawberry preserves. Often when they met at the Haugen home, lefse and sylte (head cheese) were served.

Many times dishes were scarce so tops of shoe boxes and pieces of cardboard served as plates.

Through the ladies' efforts with a Thanksgiving dinner and fancy work sale at the Bjornson home graciously opened to the public by Pastor and Mrs. Bjornsn, the church's finances were helped many a time.

Fourth of July celebrations were also held at the Bjornson home, with the ladies aid serving.

A special treat, romme grod, drew bankers and doctors from Thief River Falls to sample the Norwegian delicacy. The person renowned for the cooking of the romme grod. was Mrs. Halvorson, the Anenson's and Agnes Tieman's grandmother.

Sports and games went on during the day. The tug of war team on which Pastor Bjornson was chosen always won. He was a powerful man.

Proceeds from the ladies' aid and the young peoples' society, the name of the Luther League at that time, helped pay for many things. The ladies' aid has continued these 75 years.

We owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Bjornson who organized our ladies' aid.

The Young Peoples' Society or Luther League

According to the minutes the Young Peoples' Society was organized 63 years ago.

The meetings were held every three weeks, but discontinued during the winter months.

They always had a program consisting of singing by the audience, recitations, musical numbers and now and then a speaker.

The Luther League helped at the 4th of July celebrations and shared the proceeds with the ladies' aid.

The Y.P.S. or Luther League paid for the church bell in 1920. They also contributed to the light fixtures, costing $300.

They helped to pay for the altar and pulpit and paid $277 on the price of the pews, each costing $28.65. Total cost was $474.40.

Due to a shortage of young people the last years, we have not had a Luther League.

FIRESIDE ROOM for small meetings and use by families during weddings and funerals is part of the new addition to Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. The room has about 500 square feet of space and was dedicated by Sunday by Bishop Harold Lohr of Moorhead.

NW Hospital Auxiliary To Meet Monday

General membership meeting of the Northwestern hospital auxiliary will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the third floor day-night unit of the hospital, according to Darla Twomey, president.

Dr. Ross Taylor of the Falls clinic professional association will speak on risk factors for heart disease and heart attacks. Dr. Taylor has stated that in 1979 acute myocardial infarction was one of the leading diagnoses made at Northwestern hospital.

A stress test will also be demonstrated to show what cardiac equipment at the hospital does and is capable of doing.

Future plans for the auxiliary will also be discussed at the meeting and a dessert served by auxiliary board members. Member bringing the most guests to the meeting will receive a silk floral arrangement.

Other auxiliary events planned for the future include a fall fashion show October 14, hosting of the district fall meeting October 15 and sponsoring a booth at the annual holiday fair November 15.

NFO Convention Set Saturday At St. Cloud

DeVon Woodland, national president of the National Farmers organization (NFO), will address the Minnesota NFO convention at the Sunwood Inn and convention center in St. Cloud on Saturday.

State NFO prfsident Eugene Paul of Delavan will call the convention to order at 12:30 p.m. The afternoon's business will include the nomination of a director to serve on the national board and an alternate director.

"This fall's presidential election doesn't change the fact that farmers have to organize to price their production," Paul said.

The convention will give farmers an opportunity to take a closer look at the programs NFO has to offer, he said.

Rev. George H. Speltz, bishop of the diocese of St. Cloud, will give the invocation at the 6 p.m. banquet.

Woodland, a Blackfoot Idaho farmer, will speak after the banquet.

Visitors are welcome to attend both the afternoon business session and Woodland's speech.

County Cancer Society Drive Collects $4,890

According to American Cancer society crusade co-chairwoman Judy Skogerboe, $4,890 was raised in the door-to-door drive held the past year. Many volunteers from throughout Pennington County took part in the drive.

Each year the cancer society moves closer to finding a cure for cancer. Advances are seen in research and medical treatment offering hope for tomorrow," Mrs. Skogerboe said. "The greatest chance an individual has for a cure is by detecting the cancer early."

American Cancer society distributes literature during the educational drive emphasizing the warning signs of cancer. Teaching films on self-examination to detect breast cancer and other educational programs are also available through the society.

Patient services such as dressings and loan of sick room equipment, mileage reimbursement for transportation to treatments, counseling and help with rehabilitation are offered in this community.

Mrs. Skogerboe challenges the public to become involved in the fight against cancer. Statistics report one in four Americans will have cancer. It could be you, a neighbor, a friend or a loved one. American Cancer society work is done strictly by volunteers and they are in need of your help in the 1981 crusade. Those interested in volunteering should call 681-5613, 681-7409 or 681-1076.

The United States joined the International Labour Organization in 1934, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Important Events in Labor History."

County Names Courneya For Award Judging

Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director, was nominated by the Pennington county board of commissioners Tuesday for consideration as recipient of a rural leadership award for this economic development region.

The awards program is co-sponsored by a number of Minnesota organizations to recognize exceptional service in rural leadership. Selection will be made at a rural leadership conference to be held January 26-29 at Arrowwood Inn at Alexandria.

Meeting in regular session Tuesday, the board also reappointed Otto Stenberg and Mrs. Neal (Joyce) Fox to the board of directors of the Inter-County nursing service.

C. W. Rodekuhr, county auditor, was directed to develop planning for equal access and adequate space for offices in the courthouse in preparation for renovations necessary to be made in the courthouse.

The board also took advantage of an offer from the IBM company which reduces the monthly cost of computer financing by about $500 per month.

St. John Youth Study Religion At Seminar

Approximately 15 high school youth and counselors from St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will be attending a religion studies seminar in the Twin Cities September 26-28.

Those attending include Tom and Jeff Eckstein, Aaron Bartsch, Paul Krenz, Joni Hanson, Merry Vennes, Tara Nicholson, Peggy Mehrkens, Lisa Ringling, Denise Opdahl and Kari Stark. Serving as counselors are Mr. and Mrs. Don Nicholson, Robert Eckstein and Rev. Barrie Henke, pastor of the congregation.

The seminar was developed by Rev. Henke, in connection with Dr. Milton Rudnick of Concordia college in St. Paul. Intent of the teen-oriented seminar is to introduce young people of the church to the worship doctrines and traditions of selected religions and Christian demoninations.

Seminar will include a visit to St. John's abbey on Collegeville; an orientation and worship at Temple Aaron, a Jewish synagogue in Minneapolis; a tour of an Eastern Orthodox church; worship services at the Cathedral in St. Paul at a Quaker church; and a visit to Central Lutheran church.

During the weekend, the group will have the opportunity to meet with an ex-cult member as he tells of his experience of being brainwashed into cult membership, and the de-programming which resulted in his breaking away from the cult.

High point of the weekend will be the group's attendance at the Lutheran Hour rally in the Minneapolis auditorium, at which Dr. Oswald Hoffman will be the guest speaker. Lutheran Hour is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, and has been sponsored through funding provided by organizations of the Lutheran church-Missouri synod, of which St. John's is a part.

Properties Are Redefined At Parking Meet

will be assessed at a rate of 100 per cent; night clubs and restaurants, 90 per cent; professional offices, 70 per cent; wholesale, 50 per cent; and manufacturing, 20 per cent. It was also indicated again that private property owners and churches would be exempt from special assessments.

The basic business area is multiplied times the rate, with storage area computed at half of the business rate, Stewart said. The assessments may be paid on a 12 to 15 year pay-off basis, he said.

It is esimtated that the city's in-kind service toward the project would be $114,000 (based on comparable contract prices, which would include excavation and backfill, demolition and some relocation costs), with $480,000 assessed against the district, resulting in a total project cost with the new properties of $594,000.

Following nearly an hour of discussion with property owners, the hearing was adjourned.

During the regular city council meeting conducted after the project hearing, various requests were approved by council.

Mayor Bob Carlson and alderman Dr. Don Goodrich were absent from the meeting, and alderman Ambrose Wysoski presided over the meeting in the mayor's absence.

At the meeting, various concerned citizens appeared from the Jerome street and Columbia avenue area stating their complaints brought up at the last regular city council meeting when the city tabled the decision on the 1980 street and utility improvements.

During Monday evening's meeting, a petition bearing 11 signatures from citizens in that area was presented to council members, indicating their feelings toward the proposed project which they said had been voted down at one hearing but which council had decided to go ahead with at a following hearing.

Questioned about the procedure, city attorney Robert Wurst explained that a new hearing was required because no action was taken by the council within six months following the first hearing in March.

During last evening's meeting alderman J.J. Womack introduced the resolution to adopt the assessment roll, and the motion carried following a second from alderman Ole Engelstad.

Also, an item involving "No Parking" signs to be placed behind the medical office building and east of Riverside Terrace apartments, brought up at the September 8 meeting, was resolved by council members. Following a meeting between Norm Peterson, chief executive officer of Northwestern Hospital; and Ken Froschheiser, chief of police, it was resolved that no parking would be permitted in the area indicated.

Main purpose of the proposal was for safety, according to Froschheiser. The proposal would also benefit the ambulance in terms of safety as it goes to and from the emergency exit, according to statements attributed to Peterson in a letter from Froschheiser addressed to the city council.

Date for advertising for the purchase of garbage bags for the 1981 supply was set October 28 at 2:30 p.m. following a resolution offered by alderman Bill Penning.

In planning commission recommendations, variance requests for Don Barth, Thomas Drug store and Sherman Johnson were approved by council members. Also the preliminary plat for Marvin Johnson on North Barzen Avenue (to finalize land transfers) was approved.

Next regular city council meeting was set October 7 in the council chambers of the city auditorium.

Viking Church Plans Rally

Viking Covenant church will hold its Sunday school fall rally on September 28 at 10:30 a.m. Hixon Borstad and his family from Park Rapids will present a program of music and stories, using puppets in the program. Fellowship dinner will follow the service and everyone is welcome.

Hegland Harvest Festival Hosts Rev. Stueland

Life in Christ cursade will be held in the Hegland Free Lutheran church, rural Strandquist from Sunday through Thursday, October 2.

Rev. Rodney Stueland, Buxton, N.D., will begin this series of meetings by speaking at Hegland's annual Harvest festival at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, continuing each evening through Thursday at 8 p.m. Special music will be presented at each service. Prayer time will be held one-half hour before each service.

Some of the topics and themes Rev. Stueland will cover, are: "Healing of Memories", "Prayer", "Faith", "The Turning Point" (Father's Love), and "Satan's 3 Ds".

Rev. Stueland pastored at the Newfolden Free Lutheran parish for four years (1970 to 1974). Hegland is one of the three churches in that parish. He is presently pastor of the Buxton-Portland Free Lutheran parish in North Dakota.

Rev. Stueland and his wife have five children ranging in age from 4 to 18 years.

Offering will be taken each evening to help defray expenses.

WHY A GOLD CROWN?

You normally associate gold crowns with kings or queens. But the average person can have a gold crown also - not on his head but in his mouth. And it will probably be a lot more practical than the king's head piece.

Cast gold crowns cover the cusps (chewing surface) of back teeth entirely as well as three or more other surfaces. They fit over the remaining portion of a prepared tooth. Crowns are used to restore proper tooth form and contours for the correct biting function when much of the tooth is extensively damaged.

Gold is an ideal restorative material for use in reforming the shape and function of a tooth. In fact, of all restorative materials, gold is the strongest and most long-lasting. There are other reasons for the use of gold as well as long-life.

Gold can provide maximum resistance against the forces of chewing on tooth surfaces. Fluids in the mouth cannot affect gold. Gold will not shrink or expand once it has been cemented into the prepared surface. Breakage of the restoration is less likely.

Conference On Water Future Sept. 28-29

A conference on the future of water — and why we should be concerned about it — will be given on September 28 and 29 at the Radisson hotel on Kellogg in downtown St. Paul.

Noted futurist Harlan Cleveland, director of the Hubert H. Humphrey institute for public affairs at the University of Minnesota, will set the framework for a look at how society's decisions about water use reflect its perceptions. Issues and facts of today's water will be outlined from three perspectives: the scientific state by Richard S. Hanson, bacteriologist at the University of Wisconsin; water and health by Roger DeRoos of the Minnesota department of health; and the current status of water "politics" by Stephen Alnes, executive director of the Upper Midwest council.

William A. Thomas and Warren Viessman Jr., will discuss mechanisms that turn values into realities: Thomas, attorney and consultant in law and science will explore water law, and Viessman, senior specialist at the library of congress, will discuss the present and future of national water policy.

Finally, Luther Gerlach, anthropologist, and Mulford Q. Sibley, political scientist, both of the University of Minnesota, and David McLaughlin, chairman of the Toro company, will discuss philosphies and policies for change. "This is a challenging subject to get your hands around," according to Joseph Rossillon, executive director of the Freshwater biological research foundation, of which the Freshwater Society is the membership and support arm. "We are not 'doomsday' voices, but we want people to start realizing that our water is going to be only so available and useful as we have the will to make it. The energy crisis caught us unprepared . . . we don't have to be unprepared for a water crunch." Rossillon is both discussing water in the 80's and summing up the conference. Moderator is Dr. Paul Cashman, professor of speech and communications at the University of Minnesota.

A diverse group of organizations and agencies, led by the Freshwater society, has come together completely to plan and sponsor the conference. These groups range from the Minnesota medical association through state agencies like the environmental education board of DNR, the water planning board and the department of health to the League of Women voters and the army corps of engineers. Altogether 22 groups have worked on this conference.

A registration fee of $35 ($45 at the door) or $20 for students and seniors ($25 at the door) will cover two meals, all presentations, exhibits organized by the co-sponsoring groups, and conference materials. Signing for the deaf can be available if requested. Conference will begin with dinner at 6 p.m. on Sunday, September 28 and end at 5 p.m. on Monday, September 29.

Conference coordinator is Christine Olsenius, who is coordinator of the Freshwater society. The society supports freshwater research and public information programs.

Marathon For Non-Public Education Set

Students at St. Bernard's parochial school will participate in the annual marathon for non-public education on Saturday, October 4, during which 30 miles of roadside ditches will be cleaned of litter by the youthful participants.

Ditches along highway 59 and the Smiley bridge road will be cleaned by older students while those in kindergarten through second grade will clean the school grounds and Floyd B. Olson park adjacent to the school. Participants are soliciting pledges at a specified amount per mile for the 30 miles of ditches to be cleaned; a pledge of 10 cents per mile is a $3 pledge.

Our Lady of Lourdes council of the Knights of Columbus is sponsoring the fifth annual marathon and notes that all of the money raised goes directly to non-public education. It is also pointed out that cost of roadside cleanup by county or state crews is estimated at $175 to $200 per mile.

Other non-public schools in the community have been elected not to participate in the marathon.

Agassiz HSA To Consider Area Requests

Two applications affecting the Thief River Falls area will be considered by the Agassiz health systems agency at its annual corporate meeting Saturday at the Ramada Inn in Grand Forks, N.D.

Northwestern hospital services of Thief River Falls is seeking approval of ultrasound equipment purchased in 1977 for $49,950. The application is not subject to Minnesota certificate of need review.

North Central Planned Parenthood of Bemidji has an application for $104,728 in federal Title V funds to be allotted through the Minnesota department of maternal and child health. The organization proposes to provide family planning and community education services to individuals in Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Mahnomen, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

Board meeting at which the above items will be considered is scheduled for 1 p.m. Annual corporate meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. with registration open until 9:30 a.m. Dr. David Braddock, member of the research staff of the University of Illinois in Chicago, will speak at 9:30 a.m.

Election for positions on the board of directors will be held at 11:30 a.m. and announcement of the election results at 12:45 p.m. will follow a noon luncheon.

It's hard to decide who needs your gift the most, isn't it?

United Way helps you do the right thing.

Some people only give financial support to the large, well-known charities. That's fine, but there are also a lot of small agencies providing vital aid to a lot of people. And United Way helps them do it. Because it helps not just the well-known causes, but those people you wouldn't turn your back on if you knew how much they really needed your help.

Thanks to you it works. for all of us.

How much protein should a person eat to be healthy? One of the most amazing facts that a person who has lost a great deal of weight learns is that people do not need to eat very much food to maintain a healthy body weight. The secret of maintaining optimal health is in correct choices of food. An average woman needs 46 grams of lean protein per day and a man needs 56 grams. How much is this? About 7 ounces of meat for the average woman for the entire day and 10 ounces for the average man. When more protein is taken into the body than is required, the protein will be converted to excess fat in storage. Protein is essential for rebuilding cells. This is the food that builds the body to keep the body healthy. It also provides a prolonged energy and keeps the body in good repair.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Economic progress and individual prosperity depend upon many things — incentives, competition, capital investment and an ability by governments to conquer inflation and restrain excessive regulation. Another condition sometimes overlooked is the growth of international trade, which, historically has resulted from cooperative initiatives of Western nations, led by the United States.

Jimmy Carter has spoken often of his successes in the area of international relations. For example, in his State of the Union speech in 1979, he observed: "We are building the foundation for truly global cooperation, not only with Western and industrialized nations but with the developing countries as well. Our ties with Japan and our Eruopean allies are stronger than ever, and so are our friendly relations with the people of Latin America, Africa, and the Western Pacific and Asia."

During the last two years, I have travelled more than 60,000 miles, been on all the continents except Antarctica, and visited with business people, politicians and heads of state. Looking back, I must respectfully disagree with Mr. Carter's statement. In fact, I could not disagree more, nor have I found a single individual who agrees with it. Unfortunately, quite the opposite is true — our relations with at least some of our allies have seldom been worse.

If we had deliberately set out to botch up our relations with our allies, we could not have done a better job of it. Starting with the infamous human rights crusade, we attempted, in quite boorish fashion, to impose our ideas on other nations. More often than not, we heaped most of the abuse on smaller countries which had traditionally been our friends.

This was followed by a naive attempt to change the rest of the world by nullifying the transfer of nuclear technology, even if that meant violating treaties we had already signed. Coupled with the embarrassments caused by Andy Young, almost on a weekly basis, and those resulting from the ineptitude of certain unqualified ambassadors, appointed despite Mr. Carter's promise to select only qualified professionals, the United States has increasingly been treated with ridicule rather than respect.

A strong military is the foundation for a secure West. But through such unilateral actions as cancelling the B-1 bomber and the neutron weapon, delaying the M-X missile and Trident submarine programs, and neglecting to modernize our conventional forces, Mr. Carter has sacrificed much of what our allies once considered a military machine second to none.

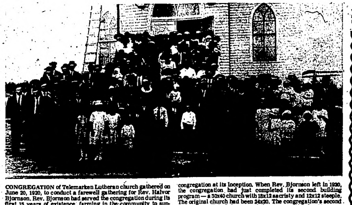
Those perceptions have changed — dramatically. Already by December, 1978, former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillian was observing: "Things are as bad for the West as they could possibly be, and they are getting worse. The Europeans have to deal with the weakest American Administration in my lifetime."

More recently, Senator Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), returned from a European trip and revealed: "Talk to some West Germans off the record and ask them what they think of the U.S. ability to fight a war. It's very, very low."

So, after three years of systematically reneging on our responsibilities, and severely testing our relations with the rest of the world, it should not be surprising that many countries no longer follow our lead. Some of our allies laughed at our grain embargo of the Soviet Union and bought from us so they could sell to the Soviets at higher prices. Others ignored our pleadings to stay away from the Moscow Olympics or to break economic relations with Iran after that country seized the American hostages. I can sympathize that many Americans feel betrayed by these actions, but the essential point in the United States no longer commands the respect it once did.

No, I for one remain unconvinced about the strength of our relations with our allies. I hope they get better, just as I hope our economy gets better and our defense gets stronger. I'd say we could use a lot of improvement in all three.

Thirty-six states have school eye safety laws requiring eye protection in labs and workshops.



CONGREGATION of Telemarken Lutheran church gathered on June 20, 1920, to conduct a farewell gathering for Rev. Halvor Bjornson. Rev. Bjornson had served the congregation during its first 15 years of existence, farming in the community to supplement his salary which had been set at a minimum of $2 per member per year. There were approximately 50 families in the congregation at its inception. When Rev. Bjornson left in 1920, the congregation had just completed its second building program — a 30x40 church with 18x12 sacristy and 12x12 steeple. The original church had been 24x20. The congregation's second pastor, Rev. E.O. Sabo, served the congregation for 30 years, from 1920 to 1950.

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear D.C.:

Many young people, like your daughter, are carefree and ignorant of the long-term changes brought about by regular, deep tanning. So, with each passing year, their skin becomes more leather-like. Brownish, flat "sun spots" may appear, in time. And their skin loses its normal elasticity, becoming wrinkled as the cells begin to break down or function improperly.

These events set the stage for premalignant and malignant skin changes. In fact, sun is the leading cause of skin cancer.

If the threat of cancer seems too far off for your daughter to take seriously, try appealing to her vanity. Physicians are all too familiar with women patients who wonder what to do about premature "aging changes" on sun-exposed areas of the body, particularly the face.

Ironically, in their quest for beauty under the summer sun, these women eventually defeat their purpose. They begin to look old and wrinkled before their time.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What is the pituitary gland? Can you get cancer of this gland? Can it be removed or treated some other way? I thought you couldn't live without your pituitary gland.

W.R.

Dear W.R.:

The pituitary gland is a small gland about the size of a pea located at the base of the brain just above the back of the nose. It secretes several hormones and influences many parts of the body. It affects body growth, metabolism, reproduction and other functions.

Pituitary tumors account for about 10 per cent of tumors that start in the head. Some pituitary tumors are benign (not cancerous). Most malignant tumors of the pituitary gland occur in adults over 30 years of age. Other cancers of the brain sometimes involve the pituitary gland as well.

Both radiation therapy and-or surgery can be used to treat pituitary tumors. Removal of the entire pituitary gland and destruction of normal pituitary tissue with radiation may make the patient sterile, and dependent on thyroid and adrenal hormone pills to function normally. Some very small tumors can be selectively removed, leaving the rest of the pituitary intact.

The outlook for patients with this disease is quite variable because it depends on how large the tumor has become before it's discovered. Also, some tumors respond better to treatment than others.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My sister had a mastectomy last year. She seems to have to go to the doctor for check-ups a lot more than she did before her surgery. Is that the normal procedure, or does it mean the doctor thinks her cancer is likely to come back?

Worried Sister

Dear Worried Sister:

A woman who has a breast removed (mastectomy) due to cancer should expect to have frequent and thorough medical examinations. The exact nature of these check-ups may vary from physician to physician. However, the following schedule is frequently recommended for women whose cancer was confined to the breast and who have minimal risk of the disease spreading or recurring. Checkups are generally set up for every three months during the first two years, every six months for the next three years, and yearly thereafter.

At each visit the physician examines the site of the patient's operation, the remaining breast, the lymph nodes above and below the collar bone and in the armpits, the lungs, liver and abdomen. Once a year a series of laboratory tests usually are done which include blood tests and a blood count, chest and skeletal x-rays, a Pap smear, mammography — of the remaining breast and a pelvic and rectal examination.

Doctors may alter this follow-up schedule for women whose disease has spread beyond the original site by the time surgery was performed or who for some other reason are at higher risk for the disease recurring.

Your sister's frequent checkups do not necessarily mean that her doctor thinks her cancer may recur. However, if it does, the doctor is likely to find and treat it early.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Exactly what is a biopsy? How is it done: How does it help diagnose cancer?

Jim

Dear Jim:

Biopsy means removing a small amount of tissue from some part of the body and examining it with a microscope. If cancer is suspected, a biopsy is usually the best way to determine whether a tumor is cancerous or not.

This can be done in several different ways. The most common method of biopsy is to make an incision over the abnormal tissue and remove part or all of it. Another technique uses a special hollow needle to remove a thin core of tissue from an internal organ.

Doctors sometimes also use a hollow lighted instrument which can be inserted into a part of the body such as the bronchial tubes of the rectum. Through this "scope" the doctor can see the inside of the organ and, if necessary, take a sample of tissue.

A pathologist, a doctor who specializes in the study of normal and diseased tissue, is asked to examine the biopsy. He or she can identify wheather or not the tissue is cancerous, and if it is, can determine the type of cancer and how severe it is. This information is necessary for a doctor to decide what treatment is best for the patient.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I am ten years old. My class is studying diseases that children get. My project is about cancer. I need to know — what is cancer? Do children get cancer? How do they get it? What kinds do they get? Do they get over it?

Steven S.

Dear Steven:

First of all, very few children ever get cancer. But because it is a very bad disease, more children from 3 to 14 years old die of cancer than any other disease.

Cancer is not a disease like chicken pox or mumps that children catch from each other. Cancer is really many different diseases. Scientists know what causes some kinds of cancer, and they are working to find the causes of others.

When a person has cancer, some of the tiniest parts of his body, called cells, grow wrong. They get too big, they multiply too fast, they move around in the body to places they don't belong, and they attack and kill normal cells.

Children most often have cancers of the blood, bone, brain, and kidneys. The most common kind of cancer that children have is cancer of the blood, which is called leukemia.

Doctors use many different weapons to fight all kinds of cancer. Sometimes a doctor will use surgery to take out the cancer. Sometimes he or she will use chemotherapy, which is special drugs that travel through the blood inside the body to find and kill cancer cells. Doctors also use radiation therapy to fight cancer. Radiation is invisible beams that pass through the body and kill cancer cells.

Because of all of these ways of treating cancer, doctors can now make most children who have cancer feel better. Soon they hope to be able to cure all people who get cancer.

The best time to fight cancer is right after it starts when it's still small and weak. That is why it is important that children have regular check-ups. They should tell their doctor right away if they have sores that don't heal promptly, if they get dizzy or don't see things right sometimes, or if they are weak and tired a lot.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Does circumcision halp prevent cancer? We have a 6-week-old baby boy and are wondering whether we should have had him circumcised.

Mr. and Mrs. S.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. S:

Although there have been various reports of an increased risk of cancer of the penis or prostate in uncircumcised men and a higher rate of cervical cancer in their wives, there seems to be no reliable data that bears this out.

There are no studies that support a link between lack of circumcision and cancer of the prostate.

Cancer of the penis is very rare among men who practice good hygiene, whether they've been circumcised or not. In fact, the number of babies who suffer complications from circumcision (2 per 1,000) is larger than the number of men who develop cancer of the penis.

Based on current information, cancer prevention need not be a concern for parents in considering the pros and cons of circumcision.

THE KING'S MEN musical team will be appearing in sacred concert at the Emmanuel Lutheran church in Plummer at 8 p.m. Sunday. Team consists of a men's trio and quartet with lead guitar and bass guitar accompaniment. Public is cordially invited.

School Bus Safety Week October 5-11

"Obey The Law, Protect Our Children" is the theme of Minnesota School Bus Safety Week October 5-11, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Safety of children riding school buses is the responsibility of every Minnesota driver. They should know and obey school bus laws, Sopsic said.

In 1979 there were 866 school bus-involved accidents, compared to 654 the year before. Six fatalities were reported in 184 personal injury accidents.

Most pupils riding school buses are not injured or killed while riding the bus; they are struck by motorists who fail to stop for flashing red lights. A relatively new Minnesota law permits school bus drivers to report any driver who passes them while they are stopped with safety devices turned on.

"Drivers should not risk the penalty of a traffic fine, or worse, be the cause of an innocent child's injury or death," Sopsic said. "The department urges all Minnesotans to watch for school buses and obey their signals to protect our most precious cargo, our children."

In conjunction with School Bus Safety Week, the DPS information office has produced a series of public service announcements for television and radio which will be aired during the next several weeks on Twin Cities and other stations. They remind citizens that there are more than 9,000 buses traveling more than 110 million miles and transporting 600,000 Minnesota school children each year.

Outstanding Tree Farmer Is Honored

Oscar Flyckt of Duluth, has been chosen as Minnesota's Outstanding Tree Farmer for 1980. Mr. Flyckt, retired from the hardware business, maintains an exemplary 46 acre farm seven miles from Duluth which includes provision for wildlife, soil, and water resources in addition to forestry.

Ormond Cooper, State Chairman of the Minnesota tree farm committee, in commenting on the award, said that many more private landowners should be following the fine example of Flyckt and the other 1500 certified Tree Farmers in Minnesota.

Mr. Flyckt acquired his property in 1945 and immediately began a tree planting program which continues to average about 2,000 trees planted per year. Christmas trees are the primary crop. White Spruce, Norway Spruce, Scotch Pine, and Norway Pine have all been planted and tended for future Yule tidings. In addition, cedar posts and sawlogs have been selectively harvested from the farm. Firewood is harvested every year which keeps the forest healthy and prepares areas for new planting.

Wildlife receives great consideration on Oscar's tree farm. A pond was created from a lowland area which attracts many forms of native outdoor residents. Stocked trout also flourish in the pond. Clover seeded on exposed roadbeds provides food for grouse.

Tree farmer Flyckt will receive awards of a carved walnut plaque supplied by the American forest institute, a copy of "Woodlands for Profit and Pleasure", a subscription to the "American Forests" magazine, and a gift certificate from TSI forestry supplies company in recognition of his outstanding accomplishments. In addition, Mr. Flyckt will receive a new McCulloch chainsaw. McCulloch Corporation has supplied this substantial prize as one of the Tree Farmers awards for several years.

Two additional regional tree farmers were recognized for their accomplishments in managing their woodlands. Ivan F. Martin of Tree Farm Region I and Thomas Gosse of Tree Farm Region IV.

Martin of Cass Lake has a tree farm in Beltrami county which was certified in 1960. He has a management program of tree planting and timber harvesting each year which produces an annual crop of forest products and also provides better wildlife and game habitat, and recreation for his family and friends.

Gosse of Wabasha has a tree farm located in Wabasha county which was certified in 1974. He has a very unique tree farm which is characterized by black walnut plantations. He has been planting, cultivating, thinning and pruning his plantation since 1972 and has become an expert in growing and cultivating black walnut trees. Result of Tom's effort is a unique and exceptional Tree Farm.

National Tree Farm program is sponsored by the American forest institute. Its purpose is to promote and encourage proper forest resource management by small woodland owners and to publicly recognize their achievements. In Minnesota the Minnesota Forest Industries Information committee is the sponsoring organization. The program is carried out in a cooperative effort including private industry, public Forestry agencies and other individuals interested in better resource management.

There are presently nearly 1,500 certified tree farms in Minnesota involving some 840,000 acres of forest land. Proper management, including growing and utilizing of the forest resource on small privately owned forest land is very important. With approximately two-thirds of the nation's forest land owned by small private owners, the need for optimum management and utilization of this resource becomes obvious. As a renewable resource and one capable of supplying a wide variety of our every day needs, it will become even more important in the future.

Those interested in the Tree Farm program should contact their local private or public forester, extension, or Soil Conservation office or write to: Ormond Cooper, State Tree Farm Chairman, Boise Cascade Corporation, P.O. Box 1713, International Falls, Minnesota 56649.

FOOD NOTES FROM HERSHEY

JUNK FOOD? NONSENSE! JUNK DIETS? SOME SENSE!

JUNK
DIET

"The term 'junk food' should be discarded from the English language," says Dr. Helen A. Guthrie, head of the nutrition program at Penn State University.

"Some foods are of limited nutritional value, but there is no such thing as a totally worthless food. The term 'junk food' suggests that a food is lacking in either nutrients or energy. Neither is true," she explains in her study, " 'Junk Foods' - A Scientific Evaluation," published in the Winter 1980 issue of The Professional Nutritionist.

"One of the major functions of nutrients is to provide energy. All foods—including sodas and candies—contain either carbohydrate, lipid, or protein, which also supply energy. So it follows that all foods have some redeeming merit nutritionally, not to mention socially and psychologically."

Whether a food is nutritious or "junk," Dr. Guthrie emphasizes, depends not on its isolated nutritional merits but on how it is used in the context of a person's total diet. Accordingly, almost any food could be considered as "junk" depending on its use.

"If a diet has provided all nutrients except vitamin C," she argues, "a food such as milk, which contributes many other nutrients but no vitamin C, might legitimately be classified as 'junk' within the context of that diet."

"Similarly, orange juice, which has abundant vitamin C but no calcium, will do little to meet the needs of a person whose diet is adequate in vitamin C but lacking in calcium."

Dr. Guthrie does not dispute that diets approaching any kind of nutritional standard must include a major proportion of foods that have one or more nutrients. But she says that such diets need not necessarily exclude foods that do not meet this nutritional criterion.

"Foods of limited nutritional value may be included primarily as a source of energy or for many of the other reasons for which people choose foods—palatability, economics, sociability and status," she says.

"Many foods are classified as 'junk' because they contain elements that are considered to be detrimental to some people under some circumstances, but the effects vary so much with individuals that generalizations are impossible.

"If the term 'junk' is to remain," Dr. Guthrie concludes, "it should be used to describe diets, and not foods."

Family History Workshop At MSU October 4

Moorhead State University will host its fifth annual family history workshop in a full-day program Saturday, October 4 in Comstock Memorial Union. It's open to anyone with a beginning to advanced interest in tracing family roots.

Two visiting genealogists will be featured during the 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. program: Norman Wright, a history professor at Brigham Young University; and Donald Hegg, a Bloomington high school teacher with 20 years of experience in Scandinavian genealogy.

To register, contact the university's continuing education division at 236-2181. Cost is $10,, which includes lunch if registrations are in by September 29.

Wright, from Provo, Utah, is an accredited genealogist in all regions of the United States. He's written five books on family history, including "Family History Research" that was published this year. Wright will deliver the workshop's main speech at 12:50 p.m. on "Solving the Unsolvable."

Hegg, besides teaching, is a volunteer librarian in the Minneapolis Genealogical Library and lectures regularly in the Twin Cities on family history topics. He's a specialist in Scandinavian genealogy.

Workshop will include a number of small group sessions for beginners along with advanced sessions for more experienced genealogists. They'll focus on topics ranging from basic research to sifting through land and probate court records.

Also, specialists in several areas of genealogy will host information booths around the student union, available that afternoon to answer questions on a variety of family history subjects.

Moorhead State's family history workshop is one of a number of programs sponsored by the Heritage education commission and the university's division of continuing education to promote interest in the history of the region. The 13-member commission, appointed by MSU President Dr. Roland Dille three years ago, works at preserving and restoring the cultural heritage of the Red River Valley.

Middle River Pageant Staged September 27

Middle River community club will present the 1980 Miss Middle River pageant this Saturday evening.

The event, staged as a forerunner to the Middle River Goose Festival of October 3-5, will be conducted in the Middle River school auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

Ten girls will compete in categories of swimsuit, evening gown, talent and personal interview for the title of Miss Middle River.

Liberal Pay Is Killing Worker Benefit System

Back in the early 1970's the most a worker injured on the job in Washington, D.C., could receive in workers' compensation was $70 a week. But in 1972 Congress decided to improve matters. It raised benefits, according to the U.S. chamber of commerce.

Benefits went up and up and up; up to $426 a week, tax free, and so did worker claims. During construction of Washington's multibillion-dollar subway system, for example, workers filed claims at a rate of $1.7 million per mile of construction. Today, the system has 6,000 employees running it — and 3,000 pending claims for injuries on the job, the U.S. chamber says.

Out of desperation officials considered offering free TV sets and other prizes — topped by a drawing for a new car — to discourage workers from filing spurious claims.

Meanwhile, of course, employers' insurance costs to pay for the benefits also went up and up and up, rising six times faster than wages. Average rate increases totaled 503 per cent!

From 1970 through 1976, the District of Columbia lost 108 firms and approximately 15,000 jobs, with a yearly $180 million payroll. One major reason, of course, was the higher compensation insurance costs paid by employers. A construction company that faced a $228,000 insurance premium to cover its workers in Washington, for example, would pay only $192,000 in neighboring Virginia or Maryland. Countless similar discrepancies abounded.

The business community, and finally the city council, rebelled. Over vehement opposition of organized labor, the council recently invoked its home rule authority to make sweeping changes, beginning with the exorbitant benefits. Under the new legislation, the weekly maximum benefit will be rolled back to $396 for persons injuried after the law takes effect. But even the version of the bill passed by the council falls short of the reforms urged by the Washington business community.

Despite the reservations of employers, the council's rejection of the current program may have far-reaching repercussions on Capitol hill, where organized labor is making another of its perennial attempts to have Congress do for the 50 states what Congress did in 1972 for the District of Columbia. Legislation is being pushed to federalize the state workers' compensation systems.

The law that led to the skyrocketing benefits and claims in Washington long had been cited by labor spokesmen as a "model" plan for the 50 states, which currently have their own systems.

Obviously, the states do not need the kind of problems that a federal system created for Washington. Compensation claims across the country doubled in the 1970's, and the U.S. chamber of commerce's yearly survey of employee benefits shows that the largest single jump in such benefits occurred in workers' compensation. From 1976 through 1978 these benefits rose by 333 per cent, compared with a rise of 209 per cent for social security benefits.

Commenting on one aspect of the problem, Dr. Richard L. Lesher, president of the U.S. chamber, recently observed on a national television program, "It's Your Business":

"Our Analysis shows that the higher the benefits the longer the duration off the job. There is a direct correlation there . . . I think we have to put the word 'work' back into the system and remember that it's workers' compensation. It's not a welfare system."

Congress should not forget that fact.

Living Coral Reef At Smithsonian

by Thomas Harney
Smithsonian News Service

Gone from the reef are the brilliantly colored parrotfish, having discreetly disappeared into the now-vacant coral holes. They will spend the night there, encased in a diaphanous veil of their own secretion. Gone too are the feisty damselfish and a throng of other elegant reef fish. On the surface of the reef, groups of black and white striped grunts stream across into the adjacent lagoon.

This rare scene, normally viewed by only a relative handful of scientists who have braved the ocean's blue abyss to study coral reefs, will soon be seen by thousands of people daily when the world's first living coral reef exhibit opens to the public on Oct. 15 at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C.

More than three tons of coral rubble and at least 200 species of plants and animals were transported from the Caribbean to construct the reef, which is kept alive in a 3,000-gallon system by a battery of high intensity lights and a machine that generates waves.

The reef is no ordinary marine aquarium, but a revolutionary development, realized after years of laboratory experimentation and field research on coral reefs by the Smithsonian's Dr. Walter H. Adey.

These investigations and the exhibit itself shed a new perspective on one of the most complex biological systems in nature, an exciting underwater realm which scientists are just beginning to understand. Coral reefs are important ecological systems, not only because they are protectors and builders of land in the tropics, but also because they support an abundance of fish and animals, a major source of food in the tropics.

The key to building the reef was Adey's discovery that it is the fuzzy blue-green, green, brown and red algae that grow on the reef's shallow bottom, in combination with waves and currents that wash over a reef, which produce a mature reef's tremendous biological productivity. The algae, he found, are a major factor in determining the chemistry of the reef.

This so-called "algal lawn" captures the sun's radiant energy and nutrient waste and converts them through photosynthesis into cell growth and oxygen. Thus, the algae provide food for many of the reef's fish and other animals and prevent them from polluting the system.

To make the reef system function, Adey modified many standard aquarium management techniques and devised new ways to mirror the environment of a balanced, natural coral reef. The exhibit reef itself is a 6-foot-high, 12-foot-long and 4-foot-wide structure of limestone. On the "seaward" side, the reef slopes off sharply; the "landward" side has a more gradual slope.

Reef has a protected "lagoon," a separate 500-gallon tank connected to the main tank by large pipes. Valves are opened at night, permitting fish to swim through the pipes and feed on tiny crustaceans that live in the lagoon's sea grass. In addition, there are a number of small, separate tanks connected to the main tank. These "refugia" provide "areas of diversity," Adey says, which help support the large number of reef flora and fauna.

As a substitute for tropical sunlight, the energy input that makes a reef and its lagoon function, Adey hung a rack of ten 400-watt and four 1,000-watt metal halide lamps over the main tanks.

The lamps turn on in timed sequence, first generating the faint glow of sunrise and then, when all of the lights are on, the bright glare of a tropical midday sun. After a normal cycle of daylight, the lamps go off sequentially, bringing dusk and then sunset. The shift from day to night provides an opportunity to witness one of nature's small dramas as daytime animals on the reef disappear into hiding places in the rock and the reef is taken over by a different set of animals.

Adey simulated the motion of the waves and currents that wash over a reef, an action that is crucial for the circulation of oxygen and other nutrients, by building an automatic wave generator. Essentially, this consists of two large buckets which alternately dump water into the tank, creating a current that surges down into the depths of the tank and then upward over the reef's crest. At intervals, both buckets empty simultaneously, simulating the waves of different force and frequency that constantly roll over a natural reef.

Other features automatically control water level, salinity, oxygen, acidity and nutrient levels to make certain that they correspond as closely as possible to those of a reef in the ocean.

When it is "night" on the reef, water from the tank system is pumped to nearby trays containing algae illuminated by high intesity lamps. Algae remove ammonia and carbon dioxide as well as nutrients from the system's water, control the system's acidity and add beneficial oxygen. These "algal scrubbers" are the equivalent of a constant flow of fresh ocean water at night.

Evolution of the museum coral reef came about by accident, Adey says, because he wanted to culture live algae for experiments in his laboratory.

"I wanted to grow them under the same conditions as they had in nature," he recalls. "I knew that, in addition to the algae, other organisms are nearly as important as temperature and light, so I tried to collect small blocks of reef with as many reef animals as possible.

"I brought them back and placed them in a small aquarium on my window, and for a long time, I thought the natural sunlight coming through the window would be all I needed. But I soon found out that when we had a sunny week, my animals did well, but when we had a cloudy week, everything died.

"I first experimented with fluroescent, quartz and mercury vapor lamps. Finally, the metal halide lamps gave me what I needed — sufficient light energy to simulate the sun in a small area and yet a color spectrum close to natural sunlight so that the algae could gather the same light energy they use in the wild."

Similarly, simulating the action of the waves was a process of trial and error. "It took me time to discover that the violent wave surge was critical," he says, "because it keeps the sediments off the surfaces of the plants and animals and prevents the formation of a partially 'stagnant' water layer on the surface."

Adey tested his theories in a 350-gallon tank and then in a 1,800-gallon tank. The 3,000-gallon exhibit tank was made possible largely by a grant from the National science foundation. A laboratory has been built adjacent to the tank so that Adey and other Museum scientists can continue to study the dynamics of the system.

Many of the fish and the invertebrate animals in the reef exhibit have been more or less successfully exhibited before in aquariums, but until now it was not possible to keep corals alive and so many of their relatives.

"We're hopeful that systems just like this one can be built in museums and aquariums across the country," Adey says. Indeed, he believes that any marine system can be duplicated to provide a way to teach people about the dynamic interactions in ecological systems.

In fact, he and a crew of students currently are at work in the Museum's basement on a cold water system — a model of the rocky Maine coast bottom replete with tides, seasonal temperature changes, kelp, rockweed and, of course, the northern lobster.

Hints For Homeowners

Home Improvement, Safety And Economy

Keynote For Safety: New Locks For Old Homes

When you buy and move into an older home, there are two good reasons why you should install new locks on the doors. The first is, you don't know who, or how many people, have keys to the doors of that "new" old home of yours. The second—old locks are probably not as burglar-proof as newer locks on the market.

A new lock in an old "New" home can save you money by discouraging would-be burglars. The right tools make doing the job yourself easier.

Most homeowners get all keyed up when faced with the task of replacing locks. They think special skills are needed to do the job and often put it off or don't do it at all.

Lock manufacturers usually provide detailed instructions on how to install their locks. Most even include an easy-to-use pattern for accurately positioning the through-door hole.

Using the right tools can make the job a snap. For example, a Nicholson hole-saw from Cooper the Toolmaker is considered perfect for this type of job. The holesaw fits into a standard drill for making a new hole, or a half-round Nicholson file can be used to enlarge an existing hole.

Here are two tips that can help make your job easier and more professional:

Position lock hole about three feet from the floor.

Cut hole carefully so it is square to the surface for smooth locking.

Your hardware store can help you select the locks best suited to your purposes, and may have a few more helpful hints on installation.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Importance of Guidelines For Youthful Athletes emphasized

Physicians who care for children and young adults have come to realize that competitive sports are now played universally in all parts of the United States. They generally agree that guidelines for safe participation are essential.

In the following interview, Dr. James Priest, a specialist in athletic medicine and chairman of the Minnesota Medical Association's (MMA's) Resource Group on the Medical Aspects of Sports answered, the following questions about competitive preadolescent sports:

Q. Do you have any particular comment about competitive sports?

A. Yes, there should be guidelines for these young athletes which provide for good clean participation with a minimum of danger to the young individual.

Q. Why is it more advisable to have supervision in preadolescent sports in the schools than unsupervised sandlot activity?

A. If the young athletes are supervised well there is a less likelihood that an accident will occur. But if the coach is overly concerned about winning or if the "little league parent" gets carried away with the prospect of victory the possibility that the youthful athlete will sustain an injury becomes very good.

Q. Can you give us an example?

A. Pitching injuries are rather common. The elbow and shoulder are common sites of these injuries which can occur because the child was subjected to too much pitching during a week or a month.

Q. How serious are these injuries?

A. Some of these injries can be rather permanent. However, in most cases they can be avoided. In fact some observers feel that sandlot sports might even be safer when played at a leisurely pace than those activities subjected to a great deal of outside pressure to win provided by coaches or over enthusiastic parents.

Q. Does this mean that the child who is subjected to over enthusiastic parents or a hard driving coach may in fact be driving himself to attempt to do things that he might not otherwise do?

A. Generally, when a child is left alone to play you do not see the types of injuries that are seen when there is a great deal of push from the parents or coach.

Q. Does this mean that enthusiasm is not important?

A. On the contrary, enthusiasm is vital. However, it should be tempered, keeping in mind the dangers of the overuse of the young athlete.

Q. How important is a good conditioning program for the preadolescent athlete?

A. There seems to be a growing awareness of the need for a good conditioning program for the young athlete, beginning in kindergarten and continuing through high school. Physicians who support the need for these long range conditioning programs feel that heart disease, obesity and other diseases commonly associated with sedentary living could be cut down with a proper conditioning program started early in life and practiced on a regular basis.

Q. What kinds of physical activity would you suggest during the various stages of development?

A. Running is one of the best forms of exercise. It is inexpensive and it can be done almost anywhere. Swimming is good. Tennis can be a good form of exercise provided it is done strenuously, not merely standing in a stationary position playing doubles. Racquetball is one of the new, rather popular sports which is excellent for conditioning.

Q. How important is the regularity of participation in conditioning programs?

A. It should be regular. If it isn't regular there is a danger of losing the cardiopulmonary or heart and lung conditioning rather rapidly.

Are you an enlightened patient?

There are a number of important benefits to be derived from being a patient in the "know" advises the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA).

The patient who communicates and cooperates with his doctor is in a position to receive better health care and derive greater benefits for the health care dollar.

An important first step in achieving these goals involves learning how to work with your doctor. This begins with the selection of a physician before some illness or emergency arises. Plan to meet your physician personally. Schedule a consultation with him. Have your medical history updated and on file in his office. Schedule periodic physical examinations. This advance preparation will help you to know whom to call in a medical emergency. It will also place your physician in a better position to give you the best possible care.

Whenever possible, schedule medical appointments at a time convenient to both you and your physician. This will ordinarily allow you and your physician to approach any medical problems more adequately prepared.

Although some doctors still make house calls, there is generally a real advantage to going to the doctor's office. A correct diagnosis is dependent upon the findings of a proper examination which, in turn, is ordinarily dependent upon the readily available diagnostic tools in the doctor's office.

When it becomes necessary to call a doctor, remember that "who", "where", and "what" are important. Tell the doctor, his nurse, or his answering service who you are, Give your address and telephone number. Be prepared to give a brief description about symptoms or complaints of yourself or the patient involved. Be prepared to tell the doctor, about pain, unconsciousness, bleeding, or breathing problems. Other symptoms which should be noted include temperature, diarrhea, confusion, swelling, lumps, weakness, vomitting, or rash. If you can't reach the doctor immediately and he is to return your phone call, keep your phone line clear. A busy phone line can sometimes delay medical attention in an urgent situation.

A large portion of the NWAC nonconference success has come against Mid-State Conference teams. In Northwest vs. Mid-State match-ups, the NWAC has won eight of the nine decisions.

Bemidji, which will open its Northwest Athletic Conference schedule Friday at Fergus Falls, is 3-1 overall, 3-0 against Mid-State teams. The Lumberjacks have beaten Crosby-Ironton 21-0, Detroit Lakes 19-12 and Park Rapids 20-2 of the Mid-State Conference.

Thief River Falls' 3-1 nonconference record includes wins over Mid-State Conference foes Detroit Lakes 32-21 and Staples 29-7.

Crookston has beaten Park Rapids 28-0 and Fergus Falls shut out Detroit Lakes 14-0 in its opener, and hasn't scored since.

Only Mid-State win over the Northwest Athletic Conference this fall was Staples' 14-7 conquest of East Grand Forks two weeks ago.

The 1980 results continue the Northwest Athletic Conference domination over Mid-State Conference teams over the past three years that has seen the NWAC beat the Mid-State 27 times in 30 meetings. The Northwest Athletic Conference was 9-1 against the Mid-State in 1978 (when Detroit Lakes beat East Grand Forks 6-0) and went 10-1 a year ago (when Detroit Lakes beat Thief River Falls 13), including Crookston's 24-12 win over Park Rapids in post-season Class A state playoff action.

This year the Mid-State Conference champion will receive a first round bye while winners in the Northwest Athletic Conference and the Sea Range Conference meet in a Class A preliminary state playoff qualifying game for the right to challenge the Mid-State representative in the Class A quarterfinals. The Sea Range Conference includes Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, Eveleth, Greenway-Coleraine, Hermantown, International Falls, Proctor, Silver Bay, Two Harbors and Virginia.

Miscellaneous

+ Buzz Christensen, who guided Grand Rapids to the 1980 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament championship, has returned to Bemidji State University to serve as an assistant hockey coach under Bob Peters, a position he held previously. Christensen served as Grand Rapids head coach last winter while Jim Nelson took a one-year leave of absence to become an assistant coach at the University of North Dakota. Nelson decided to return to Grand Rapids this year.

+ Crookston fans got a rare glimpse of their No. 6 rated Class A high school football team Friday when the Pirates, who have played 10 of their last 12 games on the road, shut out Fergus Falls 21-0 in their 1980 home opener. And Crookston assistant coach Jim Myrold told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "We only took one wrong turn getting to the field!"

+ That big game in the Northern Lakes Conference will be played Friday when unbeatens Grand Rapids and Hibbing tangle at Legion Field in Grand Rapids. The Indians, who beat Thief River Falls 30-6 a week earlier, handled Duluth Morgan Park 34-6 Friday without the services of star performer Jim Malwitz, who rushed for 525 yards in the Indians' first three games, including 142 yards against the Prowlers. "Bewildered Hibbing scouts didn't see star tailback Jim Malwitz run a single play," reported the Grand Rapids Herald-Review. Instead, Rick Hoard led the Indians by rushing for 106 yards.

+ North Dakota State University football coach Don Morton, assessing a 28-7 Bison loss on regional television to Nebraska-Omaha Saturday, said, "I would not blame Nebraska-Omaha if they sent us a bill right now and charged all 42 of our players admission because all we did was stand around and watch the football game."

HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITIES week has been proclaimed by Governor Al Quie for the week of September 28 through October 4, when Minnesota and all other states in the nation will be celebrating the first national high school activities week, a week in which member schools of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will be involved in projects to recognize student programs in schools. Pictured at the signing of the proclamation ceremony September 10 at the Minnesota state capitol were, left to right front row, Governor Al Quie and Lieutenant Governor Lou Wangberg; back row left to right, Murray Freng, MSHSL executive director; Dorothy McIntyre, MSHSL assistant to the director; David Frye, Minnesota association of secondary school principals past president; and Norman Maguire, Minnesota association of school administrators executive secretary. Lincoln high school will observe national high school activities week with a busy sports schedule during the September 28-October 4 time span, reported Thief River Falls athletic director Russ Smith.

Lincoln Will Participate In National H.S. Activities Week

For the first time in the nation's 204-year history, a week in the calendar has been set aside to spotlight the activities in which high school students become involved with and participate in. The Minnesota State High School League and its 516-member schools will take part in "national high school activities week", scheduled for the week of September 28 to October 4.

Governor Al Quie on September 10 proclaimed the week as high school activities week in Minnesota.

During the 1979-80 school year, more than 388,000 junior and senior high school students participated in Minnesota secondary school activity programs. These programs can serve as a forum for developing community pride and spirit and serve an important role in developing Minnesota's future citizens and leaders.

Member schools of the MSHSL have been urged by the board of directors of the League to plan programs within schools which will stimulate students' interest in athletic, speech, music, debate and other school activities programs. The league office has sent materials for the first celebration to principals of each high school in the state.

Purpose of national high school activities week, which the national federation of state high school associations established by unanimous vote July 7, 1979, should be to reach the American public with the facts relating to the educational values of activities for our nations' students.

Studies reveal that students who participate in activities — less frequently drop out of school, earn higher grades in school, and are more likely to be successful in later life.

School activities can serve as the glue which holds communities together and the forum for developing community pride and spirit. Communities which have been forced to eliminate school activities have documented adverse effects to their business and real estate interests.

A recent study revealed that more than one half of the 11th and 12th grade students in most high schools are involved in at least one extracurricular activity program. Fifty-six per cent of the 11th grade students and 55 per cent of the 12th grade students are the mean. Obviously, "the other half of education" plays a significant part in the total educational development of students.

National federation of state high school association membership consists of a high school association in each state, representing more than 20,300 schools and 10,000,000 students their programs serve.

Lincoln high school has a busy schedule of events for national high school activities week, announced Thief River Falls athletic director Russ Smith, who is asking the community to make special efforts to support the faculty and students who are involved in school activities.

The following Lincoln activities will be held the week of September 28-October 4:

Monday, Sept. 29 — volleyball vs. Bemidji; Tuesday, Sept. 30 — girls swimming at Moorhead; girls tennis vs. Roseau; cross country at East Grand Forks; Thursday, Oct. 2 — swimming vs. Fargo South; Thief River Falls cross country invitational; sophomore football at Grand Forks Red River; freshman football vs. Valley junior high; Friday, Oct. 3 — football at Bemidji; Saturday, Oct. 4 — swimming at Fergus Falls invitational.

The Lincoln activities program involves a small per cent of the school budget, reports Smith, who calls it "a tremendous bargain; a great investment." He adds that even more important are the educational experiences which the programs provide. "School activities are really laboratory courses in physical and emotional development," he stressed.

Thief River Falls mayor Bob Carlson has also gotten involved in the national high school activities week observance by proclaiming the week of September 29 to October 4 to be formally recognized by the city of Thief River Falls as high school activities week, and that the community make a special effort to support the faculty and students who are involved in school activities at Lincoln high school.

Sports Boosters club of Thief River Falls is also actively supporting national high school activities week, putting special emphasis on attending the Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji volleyball match Monday, Sept. 29. The club is asking its members to meet in the Lincoln cafeteria between 7-7:15 that night, and they'll attend the volleyball match in the Lincoln gym as a group.

Prowlers, Spuds Meet At MSU Saturday . . .

Moorhead Is Next Test For Thief River Falls

Those orange and black colors Thief River Falls faced two weeks ago in a 30-6 loss to highly regarded Grand Rapids will reappear Saturday when the Prowlers tackle Moorhead in a 7:30 p.m. game at Alex Nemzek Field on the campus of Moorhead State University.

The Spuds, warned Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz, will present the Prowlers with the same type of challenge they faced in playing the Indians. "I'm sure they're going to be similar to Grand Rapids in that they'll be a solid, well-coached football team. I just hope the score isn't a carbon-copy," said Schmitz as he prepared the Prowlers for their second Class AA opponent of the season.

Moorhead, unlike Grand Rapids' 4-0 record, is 2-2 for the year. But those two losses were by a combined total of six points. The Spuds opened the season by losing to Fargo South 14-13. They beat Fargo North 21-6, lost to Superior, Wis. 12-7 and last week knocked off St. Paul Harding 13-7.

Offensively, 5-11, 185-pound senior Bill Fay, the Spuds' tailback in their most often used I-formation, scored both touchdowns against Harding while rushing for 102 yards. That more than doubled his rushing output from three previous games. His three-yard touchdown run capped an 86-yard second quarter drive for the Spuds and his four-yard touchdown completed a tie-breaking 80-yard march with 7:15 remaining in the game.

Kurt Larson, a 5-10, 185-pound senior, lined up as the Spuds' other back, adding 85 yards on 25 carries.

Reid Christopherson, a converted wide receiver, started his first game at quarterback against Harding in place of Phil Ostlie, who broke his collarbone against Superior the week before. Christopherson, a 6-0, 165-pound senior, put the ball in the air just six times against the Knights.

Moorhead will be trying to extend its domination over Thief River Falls that has seen the Spuds out-score the Prowlers 101-42 since the current series resumed in 1976. Final scores in three of those four meetings were remarkably similar as Moorhead won 46-6 in 1976, 40-14 in 1978 and 41-14 last fall. The Prowlers came within 14-8 in 1977.

"We'll have to eliminate our mistakes," cautioned Schmitz. "We feel if we can eliminate mistakes we can play with them. If we make mistakes we'll be in trouble."

The Spuds will be the final nonconference foe of the 1980 season for the 3-1 Prowlers, who will finish with four Northwest Athletic Conference games, beginning Oct. 3 at Bemidji. Rest of the Prowlers' NWAC slate features games Oct. 10 vs. Fergus Falls; Oct. 17 vs. East Grand Forks; and Oct. 24 at Crookston.

Northland To Play Vermilion Saturday

On the road for the first time this season Saturday, the Northland community college football team will have a number of goals to shoot for when the Northmen meet Vermilion in a 1:30 p.m. Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division game at Ely.

The Northmen, for example, have never beaten Vermilion, and in fact have never even scored a point against the Ironmen. In four previous meetings Vermilion shut out Northland 48-0 in 1976, 28-0 in 1977, 26-0 in 1978 and 10-0 in 1979. The margin, it could be said, is narrowing.

In addition, Northland finds itself halfway through the Northern Division in its quest to record a victory over each of the other eight schools. With its 21-12 win over Mesabi Saturday, the Northmen now have beaten Fergus Falls, Crookston, Hibbing and Mesabi at least once during their four-plus years of intercollegiate football. They have yet to defeat Vermilion, Itasca, Brainerd and Golden Valley Lutheran.

"I think we'll be two evenly matched teams," said Northland coach John Helley about Saturday's Northland-Vermilion match-up. Vermilion was a 21-12 loser to Itasca last week when the Ironmen ran into fumble problems and also had three punts blocked.

Helley expects coach-turned-player Howard Belto and Jeff Westberg to share the quarterbacking duties for the Northmen this week. Belto, a sophomore from Hallock, will run Northland's wishbone, while Westberg, a freshman from Warren, will direct the I-formation. Jeff Steuck (Fargo Oak Grove) who shared the quarterback spot with Westberg in the season opener, will probably be sidelined for the second straight week with a sore arm.

Bemidji Wins Four Races At Bagley Invitational

Staples was a winner in the girls varsity race, but Bemidji won the boys varsity, boys junior varsity, boys junior high and girls junior high events.

Brian Kraft of Bemidji was the individual winner in the boys varsity race with a 15:06 effort over the three-mile course that helped the Lumberjacks finish with a low 36-point total, followed by Staples 69, Thief River Falls 75, Bagley 81, East Grand Forks 114, Park Rapids 179 and Crookston 184.

Thief River Falls had a solid placing with its top three runners as Bruce Johnson ran a 15:57 third place; Lon Aune 16:06 sixth place; and Steve Kruta, 16:18 ninth place.

"Our top three just ran a super race," praised Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer. "They've been running so consistent, so good, all year. If we could just get our other two guys to move up we'd be in business."

Matt Grabanski and Tim Bergland rounded out Thief River Falls' five-man team-scoring places, with Grabanski finishing 24th in 16:56 and Bergland 33rd in 17:21.

Jane Giza of Staples was the individual winner in the girls varsity race with a 12:30 two-mile run as the Cardinals took the team title with 37 points, followed by Bagley 68, East Grand Forks 75, and Park Rapids 94. Thief River Falls and Bemidji fielded incomplete teams.

Thief River Falls will be competing Thursday at Grafton at 4 p.m.

Bemidji Wins NWAC Title

Bemidji edged Crookston 14-13 in the final point standings to emerge with the team title Tuesday in the first Northwest Athletic Conference girls high school tennis tournament.

It required two sites and nearly 12 hours of tennis to complete the five-team event when rain forced play from Crookston's outdoor courts to East Grand Forks' limited indoor court space. Matches were also trimmed in some cases from 10 to seven-game pro sets.

Bemidji won it with 14 points, followed by Crookston 13, East Grand Forks 8, Fergus Falls 8 and Thief River Falls 7.

Individual winners were Shannon McKenzie, Fergus Falls, No. 1 singles; Heather Turner, Bemidji, No. 2 singles; Wendy Enright, Bemidji, No. 3 singles; Nancy Swanson, Michelle Olson, Thief River Falls, No. 1 doubles; and Sharon Jones, Chris Kelly, Bemidji, No. 2 doubles.

"It was a good tournament," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, "it was just too bad it had to rain on us."

Despite a last place finish, Olson was satisfied with the Prowlers' play. "Our kids did well. "Four first doubles team did very well, they dominated things."

REUNITED AFTER PLAYING singles in recent matches, Thief River Falls' top doubles team of Michelle Olson (left) and Nancy Swanson were 6-0, 6-3 winners Monday as the Prowlers edged Mahnomen 3-2 in a chilly girls high school tennis match played on the Northland community college courts. Moorhead and East Grand Forks will visit Thief River Falls Friday for a triangular match starting at 2 p.m.

Goodridge Wins 20-14 Overtime Game Tuesday

Goodridge, after nearly upsetting undefeated Oklee Friday before losing 34-28 in overtime, faced the same situation again Tuesday in a rescheduled North Tri County Conference high school football game, but this time the Huskies pulled it out, surprising previously unbeaten Mentor 20-14 in overtime.

Rory Haugen's one-yard fourth down touchdown plunge in overtime gave the Huskies their first win after three season-opening losses.

Goodridge coach Rick Nelson was naturally happy with the outcome. "Offensively we moved the ball well," he said. "We could have scored some more points, but we made a few mistakes. We were really pleased with the way our defense played in the second half."

Carroll Bishop's two-yard touchdown plunge and a conversion by Haugen supplied Goodridge with an early 8-0 lead.

Haugen scored on a four-yard run on the first play of the fourth quarter to tie it.

Mentor won the flip to start overtime and surprisingly elected to go on offense first. The Trojans gained just two yards on their first snap from the Goodridge 10-yard line, threw two incomplete passes and finally gave up the ball when defensive end Randy Henrickson sacked Fladhammer on a fourth down pass attempt.

An incompletion started the Huskies' overtime offensive series from the Mentor 10. But Bishop broke through to the three; Haugen moved the ball inside the one; and finally Haugen made it into the end zone on fourth down.

"All of our running plays in overtime went over Mark Grabowska," explained Nelson who said Grabowska, a 6-2, 185-pound senior is the Huskies' top lineman.

Bishop led the Goodridge ground game with 90 yards on 20 carries. Quarterback Mike Drangstveit was 6-for-16 passing, good for 122 yards, with Haugen turning two simple swing passes into 78 yards worth of receptions.

Grabowska was also the Goodridge leader on defense with six tackles and 15 assisted tackles from his linebacker position. Nelson also praised the work of four players who rotated at the defensive tackles: seniors Scott Stenvik and Gary Miller, junior Gunder Paulson and sophomore Kurt Sigerud.

The game was rescheduled from an original August 29 opener because of heavy rains that day.

Last week's results found Oklee outlasting Goodridge 34-28 in overtime, Middle River pounded Plummer 60-0, Mentor topped Grygla 38-12, McIntosh-Winger defeated Erskine 56-20 and Gonvick stopped Clearbrook 30-6.

Prowlers Lose 2-1 Match To Crookston Tuesday

Crookston gained a measure of revenge Tuesday when the Pirates, after losing to Thief River Falls in the finals of the Roseau invitational tournament Saturday, defeated the Prowlers 18-2, 16-18, 18-6 in a volleyball match played in the Lincoln high school gym.

"I was disappointed in the whole team play," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "It was a terrible night."

The Prowlers, now 2-6 for the year, served a season-low 50 per cent in the first game, putting just five of 10 serves into play. The figures rose to 75 and 88 per cent in the second and third game, respectively, but the rest of the Prowlers' play didn't improve much, said Stauss.

Thief River Falls played without the services of starter LeAnn Paetznick, who suffered an ankle injury in practice Monday.

An 18-16, 8-18, 18-10 winner over Crookston, the Lincoln junior varsity evened its season record at 4-4 for the year.

Crookston handed the Thief River Falls C team its seventh straight loss, 18-8, 18-10.

Next action for the Prowlers will come Monday when Bemidji visits Thief River Falls for a 7:30 p.m. match. But first the Prowlers will be putting on a special volleyball introduction program for fans Thursday, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

"We will be reviewing changes in the sport of power volleyball," explained Stauss, who said that a film, "The Winning Point," will be shown; team members will go through the mechanics of what is legal and illegal in volleyball while demonstrating actual game situations depicting offensive and defensive specialties; and questions will be answered on the role of officials in the sport of volleyball."

"Everyone is welcome," pointed out Stauss.

Boat Safety Meeting Set October 1-2

Prowlers Tip Indians 3-2 In Tennis

Mahnomen won at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, but Thief River Falls took the rest of the matches Monday as the Prowlers defeated the Indians 3-2 in girls high school tennis action on the chilly Thief River Falls courts.

The victory evened the Prowlers' 1980 dual meet season record at 4-4. A 7-1 win over Mahnomen also enabled the Thief River Falls junior varsity to reach .500 with a 3-3 dual meet record.

Thief River Falls will entertain Moorhead and East Grand Forks Friday in a triangular event that starts at 2 p.m.

1980 Hunting, Fishing Day Is Saturday

For the fourth consecutive year, President Carter has issued a resounding statement of support for national hunting and fishing day and praised sportsmen for their "historic and continuing contributions" to conservation.

"Hunting and fishing are an integral part of the American heritage," said President Carter in his statement for national hunting and fishing day, 1980. "These sports are important," the president added, "not just for the recreation they provide, but for the motivation they generate for the conservation of our wildlife and natural resources."

Describing the vital role sportsmen have played in the conservation of the nation's wildlife and natural resources, President Carter said, "Dating back to the turn of the century, America's sportsmen have been in the forefront of the conservation movement. Hunters and fishermen were instrumental in the creation of state fish and game departments throughout the country. Conservation-minded sportsmen urged license fees to support these agencies and their conservation programs, and they proposed special excise taxes to pay for land acquisitions, wildlife research and management.

"To date," said the president, "sportsmen have provided more than $5 billion for conservation programs which benefit non-game as well as game species."

The president also pointed out that, as a result of sportsmen-financed habitat restoration programs, there are "more deer, elk, antelope and wild turkey in this country than there were in 1900."

An avid hunter and fisherman himself, Carter summed up the purpose of national hunting and fishing day by saying, "In recognition of the historic and continuing contributions of America's sportsmen, it is fitting to designate Saturday, September 27, 1980, as national hunting and fishing day. On this occasion, sportsmen throughout the country will conduct activities to further conservation efforts."

Friday, Sept. 26 — Marshall County Central at Argyle; Greenbush at Hallock; Stephen at Tri-County.

Marshall County Central will put its three-game winning streak on the line Friday when the Nordics visit Argyle for a key Top of the State Conference nine-man high school football game.

The Nordics, beaten 14-0 by Hallock in a nonconference season-opener, have since rattled off one-sided wins over Greenbush 28-0, Stephen 32-12 and Tri-County 34-6 last Saturday.

Argyle, meanwhile, lost a 13-0 decision to Hallock in a match-up of unbeaten Top of the State contenders Friday. Marshall County Central catches Hallock for the second time this fall next week when the Bears visit Newfolden for the Nordics' homecoming game Saturday, Oct. 4. That one will count in the Top of the State standings.

While the Nordics and Eagles are slugging it out Friday, Greenbush visits Hallock and Stephen plays Tri-County at Karlstad. Greenbush broke into the win column last week by out-scoring Stephen 28-24.

Crookston JV 26-0 Winner Over Lincoln

It was the final junior varsity game of the season for Thief River Falls, 1-2 after beating Grand Forks Central 26-0 but losing to Moorhead 12-6 in overtime and Crookston.

Rest of the games on Thief River Falls' combination sophomore-junior varsity schedule will be sophomore games, beginning with a Thursday, Oct. 2, contest at Grand Forks Red River at 4 p.m. The Lincoln sophomores are 0-2 for the year.

Elementary Fun Run Is Slated Fri. Afternoon

An elementary school cross country fun run has been planned for Friday, beginning at 3:45 p.m. behind the Franklin middle school. The event is open to all boys and girls in grades 3-6.

Purpose of the fun run, explained Lincoln high school cross country coach Lynn Dyer, race director, is to give the elementary students some exposure to cross country running. Team points will be kept to determine a building champion in each grade for both boys and girls.

Boys and girls in grades 3 and 4 will run a course covering three-fourths of a mile. Boys and girls in grades 5-6 will run a one-mile race.

Order of the meet will be as follows:

Grade 3 boys, 3:45 p.m.; grade 3 girls 4; grade 4 boys, 4:15; grade 4 girls, 4:30; grade 5 boys, 4:45; grade 5 girls, 5; grade 6 boys, 5:20; grade 6 girls, 5:45.

Ribbons will be awarded to all participants. Top five runners from each grade — both boys and girls — will score the team points for their building (in cross country the team that has the lowest score wins the meet).

Instructions will be given to participants before each race begins. Members of the Thief River Falls cross country team will be helping the elementary runners around the course during each race.

Mixed Doubles Softball Is Set For RLF

A mixed doubles slow pitch softball tournament will be played in Red Lake Falls Sunday.

NWAC Football Schedule Stretched Out Over 4 Days

Northwest Conference

	conf w	conf l	all w	all l
Crookston	1	0	4	0
Thief River Falls	0	0	3	1
Bemidji	0	0	3	1
East Grand Forks	0	0	3	1
Fergus Falls	0	1	1	3

Schedule

Thursday, Sept. 25 — East Grand Forks at Breckenridge.
Friday, Sept. 26 — Bemidji at Fergus Falls.
Saturday, Sept. 27 — Thief River Falls at Moorhead.
Tuesday, Sept. 30 — Crookston at Breckenridge.

It won't be your regular Friday night football in the Northwest Athletic Conference this week. That's because of an unusual bit of scheduling that will find the five NWAC members playing on four different days during the fifth week of the 1980 high school football season.

Things start with a Thursday East Grand Forks trip to Breckenridge. Bemidji will be at Fergus Falls for a more conventional Friday night conference game, but Thief River Falls will wait until Saturday before tackling Moorhead at Moorhead State University and Crookston will be idle until Tuesday when the unbeaten Pirates go to Breckenridge.

The 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference season began last Friday when Crookston overwhelmed Fergus Falls 21-0. In nonconference games it was a clean NWAC sweep over Mid-State Conference opposition as East Grand Forks took Detroit Lakes 20-7, Bemidji handled Park Rapids 20-2 and Thief River Falls knocked off Staples 29-7.

+ Steve Johnson of Crookston scored twice against Fergus Falls Friday to become the early NWAC scoring leader with 12 points. He's also the overall scoring leader with 52 points in four games. Scott Wiebolt of Thief River Falls ranks No. 2 with 356 points and Pat Erhart of Bemidji is No. 3 with 30 points.

+ Johnson's 108 yards against the Otters also puts him atop the NWAC rushing charts. He also holds that position with 527 yards in all games. Wiebolt had 394 yards and an NWAC-leaving 10.6-yard average per carry. Brent Weiss of Crookston ranks third with 334 yards, just ahead of Erhart, who has 326.

+ Jeff Strandell of East Grand Forks leads the overall conference charts in passing yardage, hitting 18 of 42 attempts for 391 yards. Daryl Strunk of Bemidji is 18-for-33 for 236 yards.

+ Paul Bothun of East Grand Forks and Troy Hendricks of Bemidji have both caught eight passes in four games, but Bothun has a 146-92 edge in yardage.

+ Dean Dokkin of Thief River Falls continues to lead the NWAC in punting, averaging 37.2 yards on 15 punts, including a league-best 62 yarder against Staples last week.

+ Mike Williams of East Grand Forks has returned six punts for 100 yards and a 16.7-yard average, while Dan Smstad of Fergus Falls has returned six kickoffs for 95 yards and a 15.8-yard average.

+ In the individual total offensive charts, which includes rushing, passing, receiving and return yardage, Strandell is the leader with 570 yards, followed by Johnson with 558 and Wiebolt with 492.

+ Crookston is the NWAC team defensive leader, giving up just 167 yards per game. East Grand Forks' defense gives up 176 yards per game; Bemidji 187.5; Fergus Falls 230.3; and Thief River Falls 281.5.

+ Crookston is also tops offensively, averaging 300.3 yards per game, followed by Bemidji 283.3; East Grand Forks 262.8; Thief River Falls 256.3; and Fergus Falls 167.8.

Sound levels for snowmobiles have been reduced 94 per cent in recent years.

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

September 24, 1980
The Commissioner of Education's Review and Comment on the Proposed
New Senior High School of Independent School District 564
Thief River Falls

The Proposal

Independent School District No. 564, Thief River Falls, proposes the construction of a 1,200 student senior high building to replace the existing Lincoln Senior High School. The new building includes a 900 seat auditorium and will house the Northwest Vocational Center School. The building design includes an auto body shop, auto mechanics shop, and an administrative area for the Center School.

The cost of the new high school is estimated to be about $14,000,000. An estimated $1,000,000 is being proposed for rehabilitation projects in other buildings in the district. These projects and the new high school are to be financed entirely through the sale of bonds pending voter approval in a referendum planned for October.

Population and Geographic Area to be Served

The population of Thief River Falls and Pennington county has increased steadily in the last decade. The 1980 census estimates show a 12 per cent population increase for Pennington county.

The Thief River Falls school district serves Numedal, Norden, North, Silverton, Bray, Sanders, Rocksbury, Smiley, Kratka, Polk Centre, Black River, River Falls, and Wyandotte townships in Pennington county. It also serves a small section of New Solum, Excel, Agder and Grand Plains townships in Marshall county and River township in Red Lake county. The school district covers approximately 440 square miles.

School districts surrounding ISD No. 564 and their distances from Thief River Falls include: Oklee (ISD No. 627) - 30 miles; Plummer (ISD No. 628) - 17 miles; Red Lake Falls (ISD No. 630) - 17 miles; Crookston (ISD No. 593) - 45 miles; Warren (ISD No. 446) - 30 miles; Newfolden (ISD No. 441) - 19 miles; Middle River (ISD No. 440) - 18 miles; and Goodridge (ISD No. 561) - 19 miles.

Student Enrollment and Projections

Independent School District No. 564 has five elementary schools (K-5), one middle school (6-8), and one high school (9-12) serving a total school population of 2,831 as of September, 1980. Enrollment for the 1980-81 school year indicates there are about 1,230 students at the elementary level and about 1,400 students at the secondary level. Current enrollment in the K-6 nonpublic school within the district is about 155 students.

In addition, the Northwest Vocational Center operates within the district with the cooperation of five other school districts besides Thief River Falls. There are 510 students using those facilities, 70 per cent of whom are from the Thief River Falls school district.

Actual enrollment figures for the five year period 1973-74 to 1977-78 show a six per cent decrease in students, primarily at the elementary (K-6) level. Starting with the 1980-81 school year, the school district projects an increase of students in grades K-6 along with a decrease of students in grades 9-12 for the next three years. The student population is expected to decline until the 1983-84 school year at which point the school district expects the school population to begin increasing.

The Minnesota Department of Education enrollment projections through 1985 are lower than those of the district, particularly at the secondary level. This difference can be accounted for largely in that the SDE projects a 22.5 per cent dropout rate from 9th grade to 12th grade as compared to the school district's 20 per cent estimate.

A Statement of Need

The existing senior high school complex consists of five units:

1. The original building constructed in 1910;
2. a 1918 addition;
3. a 1938 auditorium, gymnasium and classroom addition;
4. a 1956 vocational shop and cafeteria wing, and
5. a 1972 addition used for vocational courses.

The need to construct new high school facilities has been well documented. In a letter from the State Fire Marshall's office (March, 1980) the Thief River Falls school district was ordered to vacate the 1910 section of the high school building by the end of the 1979-80 school year. In part, the letter stated: "The Code Advisory Panel must go on record as not approving further usage of the 1910 structure beyond the current school year without major renovation which would require strict adherance to the requirements of the State Building Code." The 1910 section of the high school has been vacated as of the beginning of the 1980-81 school year. Three academic classes are being housed in the center school facilities.

In a review of structural conditions conducted by an engineering company (April, 1979) and in reference to the 1918 section of Lincoln Senior High, it was stated: "It is our recommendation that this building be vacated immediately and be removed as soon as it is practicable."

In addition to the inadequacy of the 1918 section of the senior high building, it was found that the attic space of the 1921 section of Knox Elementary School to be in such condition that it was the structural engineer's recommendation to "... permanently vacate this section of the complex." The cost of rebuilding the roof system, the age of the section, and the building's susceptibility to rapid spread of fire were reasons given for this recommendation.

A citizen's committee, appointed by the school district in October, 1979, determined:

1. Structural and fire safety were of concern.
2. Handicap needs were not addressed.
3. Energy conservation is virtually non-existent.
4. Instructional programs and spaces bore little relationship to each other.

Alternatives Considered Using Other Existing Institution's Facilities

The Thief River Falls school district currently cooperates with several schools and agencies to provide specific educational programs and services. This includes cooperation with: the school districts of Plummer, Middle River, Strandquist, Goodridge, and Newfolden for educational programs provided by the Northwest Vocational Center; the Newfolden Interdistrict Council for Special Education and the Northwest Minnesota Education Cooperative Services Unit (ECSU) for special education; the Northland Community College for academic classes; and the Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute for vocational courses.

Prior to submission of this proposal, members of a citizens committee were selected by the school board and asked to review five physical needs alternatives for the purpose of making a recommendation to the school board for possible action. Only one of the five alternatives considered changing the current K-5, 6-8, 9-12 organization to a K-6, 7-9, 10-12 organization. This option (alternative three) involved an addition to Washington Elementary School, the remodeling of the other elementary schools and the middle school, and the remodeling of the existing 1938 and 1956 sections of the high school.

The other two alternatives not recommended to the board were:

—Alternative 2: Remodel the elementary schools, build an addition to the middle school and remodel the existing high school in order to remove the 1910 and 1919 sections of Lincoln High.

—Alternative 4: Place elementary students in the three newest facilities and remodel the 1956 and 1938 sections of the current high school for middle school use. Build a new senior high.

The two alternatives recommended to the board were:

—Alternative 1: Remodel the elementary schools and middle school and build an addition on to the high school in order to remove the 1910 and 1918 section.

—Alternative 5: Remodel the existing elementary schools and the middle school. Build a new senior high.

Alternative 5, accepted by the board, was modified to include an auto body shop, an auto mechanics area, an administrative area for the Center School, and an auditorium.

The district provided documentation from Northland Community College stating that they could provide no space for high school use.

The Review and Comment Statement

Based upon a thorough review of materials sent to the State Department of Education (SDE) by the Thief River Falls school's superintendent's office, and SDE financial and enrollment data, the following educational, economic and facilities considerations are offered.

Educational Considerations

One of the key factors to providing a stimulating learning environment for students is the physical facility available for the instructional programs. Based upon the analysis of the school district it would appear that educational programs have had to operate in less than adequate facilities during the past several years.

The proposed construction of the new high school appears to be aimed at eliminating the continued use of substandard facilities at the secondary level.

Based upon recent discussion of the Northwest Vocational Center School governing board, they were unanimous in declaring their intent to rent space from ISD No. 564 in the new high school building. The Center school board cited several advantages of sharing the new high school facilities and equipment.

Continued use of the Knox Elementary building, deemed inadequate by the engineering company that conducted a facilities survey, may not be appropriate. Careful documentation of proposed repairs to other buildings should be made to ensure educational opportunities for all students have been maximized.

Economic Considerations

District general fund expenditures are used to support the over-all operation of the district, including personnel costs, operation of facilities, and supplies. The June 30, 1979 general fund balance was about $870,000. As of June 30, 1980 that same fund balance was in excess of $1,000,000.

There will be no change in personnel upon completion of the high school construction. Based on current estimated energy costs, without regard to inflationary increases, the operating cost of the new high school as it relates to heating and electricity, is estimated to decrease 44 per cent. It is estimated there will be a transportation savings of $4,000 per year because students will no longer need to be transported to other classroom facilities.

The capital outlay fund is used for equipment purchases and facility improvement. The June 30, 1979 capital outlay fund balance was about $29,000. As of June 30, 1980 the balance showed a deficit of about $115,000. The 1980 Legislature enacted a law, Chapter 609, Article VI, Section 1, Sub. 6, which amended M.S. of 1978, Section 121.912 and effectively prohibits "... a deficit in a non-operating fund for a period past the end of the current fiscal year." Facility improvement costs were a major item for the capital outlay fund for Thief River Falls during that year. Therefore, no capital outlay funds are available for use in these proposed projects.

The district's maximum bonded indebtedness is in excess of $30,000,000. The existing bonded debt of the district as of June 30, 1980 was $870,000.

Facilities Considerations

It is apparent that major and costly renovations would be necessary to continue using the 1910 and 1918 sections of the existing high school. Such renovations would not make the complex into an effective and efficient plant, but simply, improve safety conditions. The proposed construction of a new high school will improve both the effectiveness and efficiency of facilities for secondary educational programs. The renovation work in the other district facilities is primarily remedial in nature.

The proposal includes unspecified improvements in general to other district buildings to make them safer, more functional and efficient.

The preliminary site development plans for the high school indicate:

1) The concentration of Community College, Area Vocational Technical Institute and High School along Highway 1;

2) The concentration of surface drainage to a holding pond next to Highway 1 and close to AVTI parking. The drainage bisects the site.

3) The location of the high school appears to limit expansion and future flexibility of use for both the AVTI and high school.

4) The orientation of the high school parking and other components appear not to consider the conditions of sun, wind, rain, snow and views. Pedestrian and vehicular safety should also be examined.

5) A very large parking lot at a time when personal transportation for everyone is being questioned.

The very preliminary high school building plans submitted for review make an evaluation of the efficiency and effectiveness of the proposal very difficult. When the planning process has progressed to the design development stage, it will then be possible to establish, with reasonable accuracy, the operational costs of the new facility.

Since no plans or specifications describing the work included in other district buildings was submitted, specific comments are difficult to make.

Given that programming for the high school includes facilities for the Northwest Vocational Center (NWVC), it is recommended that the boards of education of the cooperative districts affected be involved in the evaluation of architectural alternatives presented as well as the staff of NWVC. The preliminary plan shows redundant student entries that appear to be costly architectonic expressions of separation that may not be either necessary or desirable from an energy efficiency standpoint.

Interior arrangements of spaces shown on the high school preliminary plans appear quite inflexible, and may force future school boards to make expensive changes to the building to accommodate changes in the instruction programs.

The review and comment does not replace the normal planning process of the SDE Facilities Planning Section. This Section requires fully developed preliminary plans along with consultation with the district and architect in order to expedite the required approval of construction plans and specifications. The plans and specifications will be reviewed and approved based on M.S. 121.15. (See Guide for Educational Planning of School Buildings and Sites in Minnesota.)

The Review and Comment Summary

1) The need for both new and renovated educational facilities was well documented.

2) The proposed building construction promises elimination of the use of substandard elementary and secondary school facilities.

3) The school district is in sound financial condition.

4) Planning documents should include more detailed information regarding proposed improvements to all district buildings. Those identified as being hazardous for occupants must be considered the first priority for improvement.

The Educational and Economic Advisability of the Proposed Construction

Based upon the Department's analysis of the district's documentation and the above review and comment, the Commissioner of Education judges the proposed construction to be educationally and economically advisable if current life-safety hazards are remedied and the Vocational Center programming is made compatible with the regular high school program.

CPLT Sessions Offered In St. Hilaire Sept. 30

Children and parents learning together (CPLT), and early childhood and family education program, is offering sessions for children aged two and one-half up to kindergarten and their parents in St. Hilaire starting September 30.

Parents and children will participate in a variety of games and activities intended to develop a positive self image, sound social behavior and recreational interest. These sessions will meet for one hour, once a week from September 30 through December 16 in the kindergarten room in the St. Hilaire elementary school.

To register, or for more information, call 681-5670 or come to room 104 at Mark Twain elementary school, Thief River Falls, Monday through Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CPLT is one of 36 early childhood and family education programs located throughout Minnesota and funded by the state legislature. Programs are coordinated by the Minnesota council on quality education. The program receives additional funds from the division of vocational-technical education and donations. Invited to participate in any program activities are expectant parents or parents of a child aged birth to kindergarten enrollment, and living within the Thief River Falls school district attendance area. Services are offered at no or minimal cost, the fees waived for those unable to pay.

Rest Area Fuel Use Halved By Solar System

A building heated by a solar system used only half as much fuel oil as a nearly identical conventionally heated building at the Straight river rest areas, according to the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Buildings are located adjacent to the north and southbound lanes of Interstate 35, six miles south of Owatonna. Rest areas were opened in May 1979. Overall design of the buildings is virtually identical; both contain 1,600 square feet of floor space.

Building on the southbound side of the freeway is heated by a conventional forced-air heating system. Building on the northbound side is heated by solar roof panels which heat the air. Heated air is in turn circulated by an air convection system. Part of the heated air is passed through a rock box in the building's basement. Rocks are warmed by the heated air and continue to heat the air circulated through them during hours of darkness. A back-up oil furnace supplies additional heat when needed.

Monitoring by Mn-DOT from December through April shows that the solar-heated unit used 820 gallons of fuel oil, less than half the 1,660 gallons used by the conventionally heated building.

Donald J. Larson, Owatonna area maintenance engineer with Mn-DOT's Rochester district, said the dollar amount of the fuel savings is about $850.

Larson notes, however, that overall visitor use of the southbound rest area building was much higher, possibly affecting overall fuel consumption. He said 119,324 visitors used the southbound building compared with 56,345 who sued the northbound building. Heat loss due to door openings is a factor in energy consumption, he said, but an exact determination of heat loss from visitor use cannot be determined.

Solar-heated building constructed by Mn-DOT at the Straight river rest area is one of several rest area buildings which incorporate solar heat, earth sheltering and-or extensive use of insulation to promote energy conservation.

A LONG WAY

They've come a long way. They were married in this same church fifty years ago, when she was just twenty and he was twenty-two. Youth seemed eternal. Life promised a succession of sunny days.

But it wasn't to go on that way forever. Their first child died at birth. Then financial troubles, a business failure, the loss of a home when they couldn't meet the mortgage payments. Sometimes it seemed as if the clouds outweighed the sunshine.

But there were good times, too. Times of joy and laughter, success, wonderful children, wonderful grandchildren. Through it all, their faith and love for each other never faltered.

Throughout our own life, can we all say as much?

Expansion Of Farm Programs Called For

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers testified at the senate agriculture committee field hearings in St. Paul August 28, calling for an expansion of the farm programs to be included in the 1981 farm bill.

"We are, at times, born between the need for government programs in periods of economic emergencies induced by both inflation and government intervention on one hand, and a desire to be free of government regulations and intervention on the other," wheat grower spokesman Don Loeslie of Warren stated.

"Any option we may have had, however, in choosing between these extreme alternatives," Loeslie added, "have been effectively closed with the institution of the embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union." He said, "because of government involvement in the system, and more so now with the prospect of continued use of our American farmers' production as an international political weapon, and because of inflation, it is necessary to request a protective system to shield wheat farmers and others from rapidly rising costs and low prices in the agricultural sector."

According to Loeslie, the price support loan rate for wheat should cover the variable costs for production and therefore should be raised to about $3.50 per bushel. "This will ensure that sufficient capital is available to the farmer so that he can continue producing a crop that generates such a great amount of dollars into the entire economic system in the United States," he said.

Wheat Growers also felt that the target price for the 1980 crop at $3.63 per bushel is not adequate when total cost of production by the USDA's own calculations is $5 per bushel. Loeslie emphasized, "the needs of farmers, like any other business, is clear. He needs to cover his cost of production and be allowed a reasonable profit to be active in the market place." Growers called for a target price that is nearer to the cost of production and one that is indexed to reflect increases in production costs.

On a reserves program, Loeslie reported that the farmer-held reserve did provide market strength during a surplus situation but it also effectively serves as a ceiling, placing price depressing pressure on the market when the trigger prices are reached. Wheat Growers were supportive of the principle of a reserve program but only on the condition that it continue to be held by farmers. They indicated, however, that the reserve must have an adequately high release and call price in order for the stocks not to be released on the market at levels so far below the farmer's costs. They stressed too that the storage payments should not be discontinued when prices reach the release level but be continued until the higher call price is reached.

Loeslie stated, "farmers who participate in the reserve program must maintain proper storage to maintain these reserves. These obligations do not cease when the release price level is reached."

Loeslie also told the Senate Ag Committee that the current disaster program covering only a handful of crops, is not adequate for multi-crop areas such as Minnesota. Wheat Growers urged that the disaster program should be extended to cover other grains and crops to protect investments of all farmers. "Moreover," Loeslie stated, "programs should be instituted to cover not only acts of God, but also acts of man-port strikes and embargos to name two." He said that farmers must be compensated when denied access to markets.

"It is generally understood that farmers should not profit from farm programs, but should be assured of adequate survival during the valleys of an ever fluctuating price scale," Loeslie stated. "To make a viable agriculture," he said, "we need an expanded market for our products." He indicated that wheat producers need open and free access to world markets and foreign interest need access to the U.S. He also called for additional marketing tools, including increased P.L. 480 allocations, and expanded and more competitive export financing programs.

Wheat Grower spokesman also emphasized that the primary purpose of the farm program should be to maintain a productive and viable agriculture at the producer level. He called on Congress, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to solicit the views of and to give primary consideration to the inputs from the farm and commodity organizations in the formulation of the 1981 farm bill.

Racquet Sports Cause Of Many Eye Injuries

As the nation's boom in racquet sports participation grows, so does the threat of eye damage among players. Tennis, squash and racquetball enthusiasts suffered over 4,200 eye injuries last year — almost 20 per cent more than the previous year — according to the national society to prevent blindness.

"Unguarded eyes are open to injury and possible vision impairment from flying racquets, elbows and balls that can travel 100 miles per hour. Give your eyes a sporting chance," urged Virginia S. Boyce, executive director of the society. "Protect them while you play. Nine out of 10 eye injuries can be prevented by protective eyewear."

Eye protection is available for everyone — for those who don't normally wear glasses, as well as for those who wear prescription glasses or contact lenses.

Sports eye protectors and industrial-quality safety classes can be obtained from many eye doctors and opticians as well as sporting goods stores.

Players of all ages suffer eye damage from racquet sports; they are the leading cause of sports-related eye injuries among adults. Tennis, squash and racquetball are responsible for nearly one-fourth of the ocular injuries incurred in sports by those age 25 and over, the society reports.

"Selecting the type of eye protector depends on individual needs and tastes," Mrs. Boyce said, "but the potential for eye injury and the need for safety eyewear should be realized by everyone — those who've taken up racquet sports for casual fun and fitness as well as players in organized competition."

For more information about eye safety in sports write: National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

The national society, established in 1908, is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in preventing blindness through community service programs, public and professional education and research.

Problems With Home Repairs Discussed Here

Time was when homeowners did most repairs and improvements around the house themselves. Lots of do-it-yourselfers still exist, but many have turned to outside contractors, especially for bigger jobs.

Increase in demand for professional home repair and improvement work has brought a corresponding increase in the number of complaints received for this type of work by the Minnesota office of consumer services (OCS) in St. Paul and Duluth. On a percentage basis, complaints about home repairs and remodeling rank second among the some 3,000 complaints processed annually by OCS.

If you've experienced a problem with home improvement; or any other business you've transacted as a consumer, you may discuss it with a "Circuit Rider" from OCS when she is in Thief River Falls August 21. Zora Radosevich will be at the vocational rehabilitation office, LaBree av. S. and Zeh street from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. to talk with you about home improvement problems or any other consumer-oriented question or difficulty you may have. If you can't visit personally with Radosevich, you may call her at 681-7598.

Meanwhile, here are some tips from OCS director Kris Sanda on how to handle home repairs and improvements — what to do and what not to do.

Never deal with people who work door to door. Be suspicious of traveling repair crews or anyone offering something for nothing; beware of salespeople who say repairs to your home are "urgently needed." Seek the advice of an expert whose reputation is known to you; prepare a list of needed jobs and the materials necessary to complete them, then compare costs from one contractor to another as they submit bids; get written estimates from at least three contractors, making sure you check the contractor's reputation with friends and relatives who may have used a certain contractor, with the Better Business Bureau, and with OCS.

Also, be sure to get a written contract, but avoid signing a preprinted form contract offered by the contractor. Write up your own contract, with complete specifications and materials to be used; the more specific the better. You may want to have an attorney check the contract before you sign it.

Be sure the contractor has building permits, where necessary, before beginning work and that he is covered by property liability insurance and workers' compensation.

Don't pay until the work is done to your satisfaction. The contract should contain a schedule of payments stipulating that the last 10 to 20 per cent of the cost be withheld until 30 days after completion of the work. Never advance money to a contractor for purchase of supplies.

Never sign a completion certificate until after all work called for in the contract is done to your satisfaction.

A good contractor will back up his work in writing by giving you a warranty.

Evaluation Guide Aids 'U'M Students

When students enroll for classes, especially at large universities, they may not know exactly what to expect.

This fall, for the first time, students at the University of Minnesota have a detailed course evaluation guide to help them decide which classes to take: the student course information project (SCIP) just published its first issue.

The guide includes instructors' descriptions and students' opinions of 756 courses and sections of courses offered during the past year by 69 departments in 12 university units.

Students have never before had the chance to get such detailed course information, said Nancy Peterson, coordinator of communications for the center for educational development. "From reading only the course bulletin, students don't know if a course has a lot of reading, if there is discussion, lab or straight lecture, or if the course involves problem solving or rote learning," Peterson said.

This information, provided by the instructor along with student opinion on the instructor's teaching performance, course overall, amount learned, effort required, instructor's clarity and organization and ability to generate interest in the subject are included in the guide.

SCIP is a joint effort of student government and the offices of the vice presidents for academic affairs and student affairs. SCIP is the only guide produced through cooperation with students and faculty, said Kenneth Doyle, manager of the project and a research associate at measurement services at the University. The content of the questionnaires was approved by student and faculty representatives after a technical staff made recommendations, Doyle said.

Student and faculty cooperation makes the guide more useful to the students and elicits more cooperation from the faculty, Doyle said. About 75 per cent of the faculty members contacted have participated.

The guide includes course evaluations that are considered most useful, Doyle added. "We have found that the greatest need is in freshman and sophomore-level courses in departments with many electives," Doyle said. Professional schools such as law and medicine have low participation because students have little choice in course selection, but they have been responsive to future use of the guide for elective courses.

Next year the guide will be expanded to include 1,500 to 2,000 courses, mostly lower level courses. The program will also be extended to the university's other campuses, each of which will determine how large its own guide needs to be. "The guide is especially valuable to students in the Twin Cities campus because of the larger commuter population. There is not much of a grapevine in such a large school," Doyle said.

"We want to use SCIP as an advising tool, not just as an evaluation," Doyle said.

"We hope the guide will have a positive effect on student perception of the quality of advising, which depends on the amount of information available," said Darwin Hendel, a measurement services research associate. "Course enrollment patterns will be examined this year to determine the ideal time to give the information to students so they can benefit from it most."

This year, an abbreviated newsprint version of the guide is available to students at participating department and college advising offices, at student unions and at registration centers. A more detailed version can be consulted at participating college advising offices, at library reference and reserve desks and at student union information centers.

Technology In Our Lives

FOR HEARING AND SPEECH IMPAIRED

New electronic devices offer easy telephone communications for speech- and hearing-impaired.

Encouraging news can now be extended to the approximately 14 million hearing and speech impaired persons in the United States.

With the development of the TDD, or Telecommunications Device for the Deaf, those with hearing and speech impairments can now easily communicate over the telephone with police, hospitals and any other home or business having such a telephone company-provided instrument.

The TDDs generally include a keyboard and a character display or printer. The devices connect to the telephone by simply placing the telephone receiver on the TDD terminal or by direct modular connection between the telephone and the terminal. Most TDDs are designed for easy portability, with weights under 10 pounds, and operate from batteries or AC current. Some offer features such as operation with tape recorders, automatic dialing or character memories.

One such unit, the VuPhone from Plantronics/Santa Cruz, can store up to 700 characters in its memory, so that messages can be prepared in advance of transmission or be saved for later review. Developed following extensive research with the deaf community, the VuPhone is equipped for operation with both a tape recorder and printer. Powered by battery or AC current, the six-pound unit incorporates a full-size keyboard, an easy-to-read green display and a self-test program. Special keys are provided for simplifying command functions and sending commonly-used abbreviations.

The innovative TDDs answer a long-standing need so important that at least one state, California, has already passed legislation requiring telephone companies to provide TDDs at no additional cost to their hearing and speech impaired subscribers. Similar legislation pending in other states suggests that in the near future those with hearing and speech impairments will have the effective, and often vital, telephone communications now available to virtually every other American.

Water Can Be Heated With Solar Energy

"If you're thinking of spending $2,000 to $3,000 to remodel your kitchen this year, forget it," suggests the Minnesota energy agency.

"Spend that money instead on a solar domestic hot water system, and use the money you save from federal and state tax credits, and from reduced energy costs, to pay for the kitchen later on."

Availability of sunlight in Minnesota means that more than half of the energy we use to heat our hot water could be supplied by the sun. Solar hot water heaters are actually pre-heaters which raise the incoming water temperatures on a cold winter day from 45 degrees to perhaps 90 degrees before it reaches the conventional water tank. The conventional heater then boosts the water temperature only 15 to 20 degrees for home use. Without the solar system, the water would need to be heated 60 to 70 degrees by the conventional system.

During a typical summer day, the abundance of sunshine enables the solar heater to raise incoming water from 50 degrees to 130 degrees or higher, so no back up system is needed at all. The solar index then would reach 100 (the solar index indicates the per cent of hot water heating supplied by the sun on a particular day if you had a solar hot water heater).

Solar hot water systems generally cost between $2,000 and $3,500, but remember, after they are installed, much of your hot water needs will be free from then on. And state and federal tax credits pay for over half of that initial outlay (federal tax credit is 40 per cent of first $10,000 spent and state credit is 20 per cent of first $10,000 spent).

In the near future, solar water heating will probably become a matter of necessity, rather than economic preference. Natural gas, which heats much of Minnesota's hot water and is the cheapest conventional source of energy, is in short supply already. Curtailments of natural gas have grown progressively since the early 1970s, and all indicators suggest that the domestic natural gas supply will continue to deteriorate.

Depending on the size of your family, heating water for showers, washing clothes and dishes, it's estimated that you use 15 to 20 gallons of hot water per day per household member. Most solar domestic hot water systems are built to include 15 to 20 square feet of collector per person, or two to three panels for a family of four. Solar water heaters vary in size, cost and manufacturer, so watch out for guarantees, warranties, and find out if the installer has a good business reputation.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stromberg of Newfolden and Mabel Stromberg were Sunday afternoon visitors of Sally Weiler. In the evening Ida Bruce, Patti Nelson and Irene Larson visited Sally.

Dr. and Mrs. Larry Larbiecki of Baudette visited briefly Thursday at the Douglas Thun home.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Jacobson and Julia Kittelson visited at the Carl Troska home in Stephen. Later Wayne and Carl took Julia to Grand Forks where she boarded the train to return to her home at Seattle after visiting here for about ten days.

Senior Citizens

Twenty-seven registered in our record book on Thursday, Sept. 18. It was Ruth Harper's birthday and she served a very delicious lunch. We sang the happy birthday song to Ruth before singing the table grace.

It was so nice to have Oscar and Inga Johnson with us once again and Marie Berggren brought Bertha Holmstrom, who brought us a sofa pillow top she had worked on. Thanks, Bertha. Ella Thun also came from Karlstad, since she could ride with Grace Boen, who brought Lydia Underberg and also drove by to pick up Ruth Anderson. The Golden Clover 4-H club also came with Lila Grandstrand and Yvonne Boen as leaders, Nancy and Corey Boen and Lori Koland sang and Nancy played the guitar for us. They also brought nut cup favors to have with our lunch. Thanks for the favors and music. We did appreciate your kindness and your visit. Come again sometime.

Janice Nelson gave our center some more good rummage. There are some good small girls coats in case you are interested, so come look them over.

Five dollars was given to the center for the use of the room for a rummage sale last Saturday by Janice Nelson, Ardys and Irene Larson.

We sent Martin Eskildsen a get well card recently and the other day a thank you came from Arizona. They also sent us $2 to purchase raffle tickets.

Seven door prizes were given away on Thursday. Mildred received Ida's, Sophie received her own, Anna Rud and Elsie received the two prizes Mildred donated, Lila and Nancy received Mabel Borsvold's prizes and Oscar Johnson received the one given by Anna Rud.

Next Thursday is our fun day. We need some prizes if we are to play bingo.

Elmer Kline, Roy Jensen and Wayne Moore, all of Embarrass were weekend house guests at the Laurel Kline home. Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Tony Kazmierczak and family visited at Klines and Thursday evening Syl and Clara Kasprowicz visited there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Olson of St. Paul visited with Art Andersons and their guest Julia Kittelson on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Wesley Rud, Mabel Stromberg, Margaret Ellefson and her daughter Barbara and her two girls have visited Anna Rud this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Paulson of Stephen and Jon Gordhammer of Argyle were Saturday forenoon visitors of Sara Wikstrom. Helen, Wendy and Gerry Stennes visited Sara Saturday afternoon.

Ricky Baehr came from Roseau Friday to bring her grandmother, Mrs. Ray Henrickson back home with her to spend the weekend at Roseau with the Richard Baehr family. Sunday afternoon the Baehrs and Gladys visited with Ray at the KMNC and later after taking Gladys back to her home the Baehr family were Sunday supper guests at Gladys Henricksons.

Variations On Fluffy Pie

Time at a premium? Let this great pie recipe work wonders for a meal on those days when time is short and you need something special. Fluffy Pudding Pie is an ideal basic recipe, because it offers a variety of fruit and pudding flavor combinations. With minimum time, prepared whipped topping mix combines with vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling, and all is whipped until it's light and fluffy. Spooned into a cooled pie shell and chilled for about 4 hours, this super pie is ready to serve with a garnish of fresh nectarines and mint leaves or your favorite fruit. Clip the recipe now. Just by changing the flavors of instant pudding and pie filling and seasonal fruits, you can create completely different pies for many meals to come. Keep a package of whipped topping mix on the shelf, because it's the key to this fluffy, creamy ever-so-light pie.

Fluffy Pudding Pie

2 envelopes Dream Whip whipped topping mix
2-3/4 cups cold milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 packages (4-serving size) Jell-O instant pudding and pie filling, any flavor
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Prepare whipped topping mix with 1 cup of the milk and the vanilla as directed on package, using large mixer bowl. Add remaining 1-3/4 cups milk and the pie filling mix. Blend; then beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 4 hours. Garnish with sliced nectarines and mint sprigs, if desired.

On Raising Chickens

Following article, which anyone who has tried his hand at poultry raising should empathize with, is from the McClusky (ND) Gazette:—

A lot of farmers don't raise chickens any more. Usually, the reasons given for or against chickens is economic. Deep down under these reasons, however, lies the truth.

When you first start to raise chickens you start with chicks, unless you inherit or have other bad luck. Chicks are really cute, soft and fluffy. They run in quick little spurts in no particular direction and peep a lot. This 'cuteness' lasts an average of two weeks. They then become gangly, funny-feathered, squawking chowhounds.

You will spend a great deal of time with your first chicks. It takes time to learn how warm is warm enough to clean out caked feeders and put arsenic in their water. Aha! You thought I was poisoning the little chickens, huh? No, they just need this peculiar stuff in their diet to survive, better and bigger. Note: This only works on chickens and turkeys and will lay out a goose or duck forever, pronto!

Chickens start life as pullets and cockerels and end up at maturity as hens and roosters. More than one or two roosters per 50 hens will only put loud noises in your yard and a lot of feathers around. It is best to butcher all surplus cockerels as soon as they reach frying weight, three or four pounds, and save yourself much trouble. Now comes the good part.

Butchering your own chickens is one of the 'down under' reasons I mentioned before. Some people adjust well to chopping off head, wet feathers, horrible smells and cold-water induced rheumatism. Some don't. After a day of beheading, defeathering, degutting and depinfeathering twenty or so chickens, I, for one, am willing to eat bean burritos at the Mexican restaurant the farthest from the chicken house. If you wrap and freeze the chickens for a week or two before eating, it will help. Some, not much.

Occasionally, you will get a rooster that at maturity, possesses killer instincts. He will jump, talons out and sharp, on the family cat, your right or left leg, or both, and especially on small children. Our youngest girl was jumped upon while swinging one morning, the rooster raking her back raw. She was sensible enough to lie down and cover her face and when I rounded the corner in answer to her screams, the rooster was jumping up and down beside her trying to find the best place to attack. The squawk that blew forth from him when the broom caught him broadside was very satisfying. He made a delicious stew and for once chicken beat bean burritos all to heck.

Pullets starting laying eggs shortly before the coldest spell of winter, which then cuts egg production to next to nothing. If you have a warm place for them, they will do better, but on non-commercial chicken farms, hen-home is an old granary. Whether they lay eggs or not, they must eat. This is where economics get to be a big factor in continuing to raise chickens.

After you have eaten the surplus, lost a few to assorted causes, thrown in your labor for free and nobody but you lays an egg for two weeks, you consider how much you are willing to pay for eggs, less the cost of stewing hens. If grain is cheap or screenings easily obtained, you'll probably do okay, at least break even. If not, and one of the 'other' reasons weighs heavy with you, you will probably yell "too much for too little" and tell the chickens to go fly. Figuratively, of course.

Remember all those cartoons about the farmer chasing fox, weasel, or skunks out of his hen house? Don't believe it. Unless you sleep in the next room you'll never hear the weasel, most fox don't come to barnyards unless they are really depserate, and, if a skunk gets into the chicken house you'll be lucky to get the chickens to go back in there.

Weasels are also crafty. If you have a chicken house and a seperate shed for ducks and geese, as we had, put the dog in the chicken house overnight to get the weasel. He won't, and the weasel will go down to the duck dwelling and kill two of the fattest ducks for spite. This is quite frustrating but I knew you wouldn't believe me until you tried it.

If you are good at trapping, you may get the weasel that way. You can also raise the roosts and make sure there is no close ledge alongside the roosts. Leaving a light on all night won't scare the weasel away, but it will enable the chickens to see well enough to try to fly higher to safety.

Plugging any visible holes with wire and tin will help as well as putting a nicotine sulphate and water solution at all entrances. The solution won't kill the weasel but he'll think you are trying to poison and will fool you by avoiding the tainted chicken house.

If nothing works, and you are taking nightly losses on your chickens, this is a really swell time to yell 'economics' and sell your chickens to a weasel-less person. Wish him luck and cash the check quickly.

Strangely Familiar . . . .

When announcement was made several weeks ago that Textron corporation plans the sale of Polaris to Bombardier, Inc., speculation on the future of the Roseau industry ran rampant. Tendency was to become apprehensive.

An article in the Roseau Times-Region shortly thereafter covered a special meeting for Roseau officials, press and radio called by Textron. A statement from Polaris president Hall Wendel was read by Dana Dudley, vice president of manufacturing.

"If consumated," the statement said, "this change of ownership will have a minimum economic impact on the Roseau area. Because of Bombardier's commitment to the snowmobile and recreation vehicle markets and their interest in expanded marketing and manufacturing efforts in the United States, a positive impact on the area's economy in the future is anticipated."

Further, the statement indicated "The Polaris name and image, as well as the current sales, marketing and distribution network, will be maintained. The Roseau engineering and manufacturing operations will continue substantially the same as at present and the Minneapolis office will be maintained with most of the sales, marketing and administrative functions that now support Polaris."

Over coffee one morning we mentioned the proposed sale to an Arctic Enterprises employee, indicating content of the statement read to the Roseau officials and media.

He smiled. "That sounds like the same letter Arctic sent to Scorpion," he said.

Are the themes strangely familiar?

SILVERTON . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Jonnson took Mona Larson, Joy Lindbeck and Doris Rothschadl to Moorhead on Thursday. Mona visited with her father Haakon Larson and the others visited friends and relatives and also spent some time shopping.

While there Mr. and Mrs. Johnson visited Oscar's brother Arthur M. Johnson who is hospitalized at St. Johns. They all returned home Saturday evening. On their way home they called on Jean Wright, a resident of the Johnson Riverside boarding home who is a patient at Riverview hospital in Crookston. Kermit Boyd also a resident at the home had eye surgery on Wednesday at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

DID YOU KNOW...
THAT THERE ARE THREE DIFFERENT FLAVORS OF BANANAS? THEIR TASTE DEPENDS ON THEIR RIPENESS AND HOW THEY'RE PREPARED.
WHEN BANANAS ARE GREEN, THEY ARE ACTUALLY CONSIDERED VEGETABLES. IN COOKING THEY TASTE LIKE COOKED POTATOES AND CAN BE SUBSTITUTED FOR POTATOES IN SOME RECIPES. SIMPLY PEEL THEM WITH A KNIFE AND SLICE THEM FOR USE IN SAVORY SOUPS, STEWS, AND OTHER VEGETABLE AND MAIN DISHES.
BANANAS ARE SWEETEST WHEN BROWN "SUGAR FLAKES" APPEAR, MAKING THEM PERFECT FOR SNACKING OR FOR USE IN BREADS, PUDDINGS, CAKES AND SHAKES. THEIR SOFT TEXTURE MAKES THEM EASY TO MASH AND BLEND INTO BATTERS. AND WHEN MASHED, THEY ARE AN EXCELLENT CHOICE AS ONE OF BABY'S FIRST SOLID FOODS.
OF COURSE, THE MOST POPULAR BANANAS ARE FULL-YELLOW. THEY ARE IDEAL NOT ONLY FOR PEELING AND EATING, BUT FOR BAKING, SAUTEING, AND FREEZING. TO FREEZE BANANAS JUST MASH THEM WITH A LITTLE LEMON JUICE AND FREEZE IN AN AIR TIGHT CONTAINER. DEFROSTED, THEY'RE GREAT FOR A VARIETY OF BAKING RECIPES.
WHATEVER YOUR PURPOSE OR PREFERENCE, YOU'LL DISCOVER THAT ALL BANANAS ARE FLAVORFUL ADDITIONS TO ANY MEAL.

First Aid At Accident Scene Reduces Injury

Knowing what to do at the scene of a motor vehicle accident is an important asset for any motorist, says the Automotive Information council (AIC).

Proper first aid can reduce the effects of injuries or even keep the seriously injured alive. AIC has compiled the following list of tips for aiding auto accident victims:

Avoid causing another accident by parking beyond the accident site with your car's flashers on. Don't park across the road. Reduce the chance of fire by turning off the ignition on any damaged vehicle.

Don't move anyone unless there is immediate danger to the person involved, such as fire. Keep in mind that people involved in auto accidents could have neck or spine injuries and moving them could cause paralysis or even a fatality.

If the victim is not breathing, start mouth-to-mouth resuscitation immediately or find someone who can. Serious brain damage can occur after only two or three minutes without oxygen and death can occur in four to six monutes if help is not provided.

Stop any bleeding by applying direct pressure. A person can bleed to death in just a short period of time. Press directly against the wound with the cleanest cloth or pad available. You can use your hand if no cloth is available.

If you are busy giving first aid, send someone else to call for help. The caller should tell the location of the accident, what kind of help is needed and the number of persons involved. Persons giving this information should always stay on the line a moment to confirm any information.

While waiting for help, protect the victim from shock by keeping the person lying down and making him or her as comfortable as possible.

An inexpensive first-aid kit carried in the glove box or trunk could help save a life. To learn more about first-aid training, AIC suggests contacting your local American Red Cross, Heart association, emergency medical service or fire department.

Effects Of Chemicals On Health Studied

by Alice Tibbetts
'U' M News Service

Imagine you have just started a job in a new building. Within a few days, you experience shortness of breath and burning eyes, and your throat feels irritated. Your first reaction may be that you are coming down with something. Actually, you may be experiencing a toxic reaction to a number of chemicals present in the building.

People are exposed to a variety of chemicals every day at work and at home. Study of the health effects of this exposure is just beginning, but Minnesota is ahead of the rest of the country — it has the only state-supported environmental pathology laboratory.

Supported by state and federal grants, the Environmental Pathology laboratory is a joint effort of the University of Minnesota department of laboratory medicine and pathology and the Minnesota department of laboratory medicine and pathology and the Minnesota Department of Health and studies the effects on human health of exposure to environmental and occupational chemicals.

Lab director Dr. Vincent Garry and his two staff members, Richard Nelson and John Wienecke, investigate suspect chemicals in cases where a number of people have reported toxic reactions. Such reactions may range from respiratory ailments to skin sores, Garry said.

A wide variety of chemicals can cause toxic reactions, including bug sprays, formaldehyde gas, herbicides, and some sealants used in laying new tile and carpeting or in other renovation, Garry said. Some chemicals are so widely used that it is nearly impossible to avoid them, Garry added. Currently, the lab is investigating several common chemicals that have caused serious health problems.

Urea formaldehyde resin is one example. A binder used mostly in mobile homes in particle board, a low-cost replacement for wood, it is also used in urea formaldehyde foam insulation, adhesives, shampoos, carpeting and drapes. When temperatures are high, urea formaldehyde gas is emitted in large amounts and may be trapped in homes that are particularly airtight and well insulated.

The gas frequently causes eye, nose and throat irritation in adults, and diarrhea, headaches and more serious respiratory problems in children, Garry said. The lab is measuring damage to the body's chromosomes and possible damage to the immune system caused by formaldehyde.

Garry is studying several other chemicals, including ethylene oxide, a common sterilant used on hospital equipment and medical devices such as the intrauterine device (IUS), and as a fumigant for fruits and vegetables.

The public's exposure to ethylene oxide is quite widespread, Garry said. "We are studying the possibility of permanent chromosomal damage and a link between exposure to the chemical and development of cancers and birth defects," Garry said.

To measure a chemical's toxicity, the lab used a series of tests. One examines the chemical's killing power, a second looks at DNA damage, and a third examines the ability of a chemical to transform normal cells into cancer cells. "We are seeing some very gross changes in cell structure with exposure to certain chemicals," Nelson said. "We can tell when a chemical is a carcinogen because cell growth goes from orderly to random."

It is possible that some people are more susceptible to carcinogens than others, Garry said. By comparing how a cancer patient's and a healthy person's blood cells react to chemical exposure, Garry hopes to determine how people differ in sensitivity to cancer-causing chemicals and how environmental factors change a person's susceptibility to cell mutation. "Some people's cells have the ability to undergo damage and to repair themselves easily but other people's cells do not. We hope to find out why," Garry said.

The most important source of information on toxic chemicals is the general public, Garry said. "We want to look at the human situation and work backwards instead of relying completely on laboratory tests," Garry said. People who think they are experiencing a toxic reaction to a chemical can write the lab, he said.

Hints For Homeowners

How much time do you lose running up and down stairs, in and out of the house to answer telephones that always seem to stop ringing ten seconds before you get to the phone?

This can be not only time-consuming and irritating, it also can create special problems if you miss that special, important phone call.

Now there is a practical answer to this problem.

It's a cordless extension phone that permits you to make/receive calls anywhere in your house or on your lot.

Another feature: A "CALL" buzzer at the main phone lets you call the party with the cordless extension handset; pre-arranged "codes" enable you to communicate "Dinner's ready"; "come quickly", etc.

It even serves as a security device when you're away from home. You leave the cordless phone with a next-door neighbor. If would-be intruders call your home to see if you're home, your neighbor answers your phone on the cordless extension—frustrating the intruders or burglars.

This new cordless phone is available at retail, department and consumer electronics specialty stores. And yes—it also has several commercial applications—in restaurants and clubs; in warehouses, etc. Handicapped or disabled people also find the COBRAPHONE extremely helpful to them.

Happiness Is The Times

Home Energy Tips

There's no place like home to save energy. But do you know where to look in your home to save it?

In just one hour, kitchen, bath and other ventilating fans can blow away a houseful of warmed or cooled air. To save energy, use these fans sparingly—turn them off as soon as they have done their job.

An open damper in a 48-in. sq. fireplace can let up to eight percent of your heat escape out the chimney. When your heating system is working, a considerable amount of heated air flows from the rest of the house into the fireplace and up the chimney. If you close all doors and warm air ducts entering the room with the fireplace, the amount of heated air wasted will be reduced.

Inadequate insulation is the single greatest cause of energy waste in most homes in the United States. Over one-fourth of the energy used each year to heat and cool residential and commercial buildings is wasted because of unwanted heat gains and losses through windows. That is about five percent of the total U.S. energy consumption and is equivalent to 1.7 million barrels of oil a day.

If you turn your thermostat down 10 degrees at night, you can achieve a 10-25 percent savings on your heating bills while you sleep. For every degree you lower your thermostat in the winter and raise it in the summer you can save about two percent in heating and cooling costs.

If every household in the U.S. lowered its average heating temperature six degrees over a 24-hour period, we would save more than 570,000 barrels of oil each day. A Department of Energy study shows that a six-degree reduction by every household in 1975 would have saved enough fuel to provide heat for an additional 10 million houses during the winter.

You will also save money in the long run if you replace your old heating system with one which is more fuel-efficient. With the high price of oil these days, cost-conscious consumers are investing in new multi-fuel heating systems. One such system, the Hoval Variolyt boiler, is designed to burn any kind of liquid, gas or solid fuel. According to Repco Products Corporation, which markets the product, it is 88 percent fuel-efficient and cuts heating costs by using fuel sources other than oil.

STRANDQUIST

There will be an organizational meeting of the Northern Lites homemakers Thursday, Sept. 25 at 8 p.m., at the Tim Renstrom home. Anyone interested please feel welcome. Many useful and interesting programs have been planned for the coming year.

Amy Wollin and Harry Brekke of Karlstad and Mildred Nelson were visitors and noon luncheon guests of Irene Larson Tuesday.

Winners of the $5 certificates at the Saturday, Sept. 20 drawing were Dianne Kleinwachter and Mildred Nelson and John Lofstrom received the $10 certificate. Next Saturday we will be drawing for three $5 certificates and this will be the last drawing for the season.

Sunday Dolly and Donna Larson of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Harriet Peterson of Valley City, N.D., were visitors at the Roger Larson home.

Mrs. Eva Bernard and Dale of Karlstad, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hagen of Grygla visited Sunday afternoon at the Paul Anderson home. Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson and family visited in Karlstad with the John Wetterlunds.

Weekend visitors at Morris Lindstroms were Diane Lindstrom of East Grand Forks, Chris and Nathan Lindstrom of Grand Forks, Ted, Lori and Jaimee Johnson of Moorhead. Roy Halvorson of Trail was a Sunday dinner guest and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brandt of Thief River Falls visited at Lindstroms Sunday evening.

FOOD PRICE TRENDS

Food prices are expected to rise as we move into 1981 because of reduced food supply, according to government spokesmen.

Three factors influence food prices: handling costs, the relation of supply to demand and consumer buying habits.

Handling costs—transportation, processing, storing and retailing—are rising despite massive cost-fighting programs in the supermarket industry. These costs are directly linked to the general inflation rate.

During the first half of the year, the supply of food has been relatively plentiful, according to Food Marketing Institute. The Consumer Price Index reports grocery prices rose only 6.8 percent from July '79 to July '80 while prices on all items rose by 13.2 percent.

Drought, extensive grain trading with other countries, crop failures, fluctuations in the supply of meat and the high interest rates of last spring may have the effect of reducing the food supply in the future, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The third factor that affects the cost of food is consumer buying habits. If demand remains the same during a period of lower supply, prices will rise rapidly. If, however, consumers shift to less expensive items as other prices rise, overall price increases could be slowed down.

It is likely that consumers will change buying habits if prices rise dramatically. The Consumer Price Index is based on a fixed selection of food items and does not register changes in consumer buying habits. Therefore, the Consumer Price Index will be exaggerating the severity of the situation.

The Million Dollar Answer

When illness strikes, the economic impact on a family can be a catastrophic surprise, especially to those covered by a basic health insurance policy.

Basic coverage can take care of most ordinary bills. When you suffer a long illness, however, that coverage hardly scratches the surface of the high cost of being sick.

In addition, most basic plans pay only for services rendered in a hospital, such as daily room benefits and auxiliary expenses. Nothing is done about out of hospital costs during illness and recuperation.

For these additional medical expenses, supplemental coverage is important. One insurance company has come out with a plan that provides up to $1 million coverage, if necessary.

Mutual of Omaha's Catastrophic Health Care Plan guarantees coverage of that amount over and above basic hospital coverage, whether the patient's hospitalized, recuperating at home or in a convalescent facility. It pays for treatment by a physician or surgeon, X-ray and laboratory examinations and prescription drugs.

People aren't the only ones who need health check-ups. Insurance policies do, too. Health care, like food, rent and other necessities of life, gets costlier each year. What was considered adequate coverage ten years ago may not be adequate today.

An insurance company may be able to provide the answers you need to determine whether your care is up to today's costs, and whether it has kept pace with your changing needs.

Gully

Mrs. Peter Rutkowski
Gully, 268-2845

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rutkowski and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coan visited Sunday afternoon with Frank Krbechek.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Haugen of Burnsville are the parents of a baby born September 2. He weighed 6 lbs., 7 oz., and was 19 inches long. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Orville Haugen. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Appel of St. Hilaire.

Joan and Lisa Moe returned home last Thursday after a week and a half vacation. They flew out of Grand Forks Saturday, Sept. 5 to Chicago, when they were met by Joan's father who accompanied them to Winton-Salem, N.C. While there Lisa met her great-grandparents and a great aunt. After five days, they returned to Chicago to stay with Joan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brock. Lisa met her other great-grandmother and lots of other relatives. On Sunday, Sept. 14, Joan's home congregation celebrated its 45th anniversary with special service Sunday, Sept. 21, catered dinner and a program.

Mr. and Mrs. Wendt Senger spent Thursday to Tuesday visiting at the Fred Bertsch's at Morris, the Duane Senger family at Olivia and the Paul Bosch's at Sebeka.

Mrs. Les Torgerson, Sanna and Luke of Thief River Falls were Friday overnight guests at the Arnold Brovold home. They came for the Lund ALCW bazaar.

Gully American Legion auxiliary 603 met last Tuesday, Sept. 16, at the hall. Esther Rutkowski installed the new officers. Shirley Brovold is the new president, Esther Rutkowski vice president, Cathy Senger secretary, treasurer Bernie Solberg, and historian Sophie Nelson. Kathy Erlandson gave a very good report on the week she spent at Girls State in St. Paul in June. Grace Brekke and Stelle Hangaard served lunch.

Vivian and Halvor Rikje and Atwood Brenna spent Monday to Thursday vacationing with Hazel and Olaf Rikji at Tomahawk, Wis.

Mrs. Esther Elleson of Sarasota, Fla., has been visiting at the Joe Brekke and Ray Brekke homes and with other relatives in the area. She spent Tuesday evening to Thursday visiting Emma Erickson.

Cora Anderson and Delano Anderson of Brainerd visited Saturday afternoon with Cora Hanson. Other coffee guests were Lilly Ness, Millie Brovold, Genevieve Carlson, Ann Nyland and Gerhart Groven.

Rev. and Mrs. Dale Moe and Lisa spent Sunday evening and all day Monday visiting Pastor and Mrs. Dave Fretham in Hannaford, N.D.

Sunday evening visitors at Emma Erickson's were Mr. and Mrs. Bloyd Taige of Erskine and Esther Thorsten.

4-H Members Take Part In State Events

Pennington county 4-H'ers are concluding an active year by participating in a variety of state 4-H events, reports county extension agent Deborah A. Matero.

Returning home from the state 4-H horse show last week was Mark Thune from Happy Acres 4-H club. Mark placed third overall in halter showmanship with his Appaloosa. Other events that Mark entered were western horsemanship, English equitation, western pleasure, English pleasure, reining and egg and spoon.

Joni Mosbeck represented Pennington county at the community pride conference at Silver Lake camp, September 16-18. Joni was selected from the Black River 4-H club which won the county community pride contest. While at the conference Joni learned about landscaping for energy, plants for energy, and plans for the community pride project 1981.

In addition to the state horse show and community pride conference, a number of Pennington county 4-H'ers participated in state fair events. Exhibitors from the county were: Danny Iverson, Happy Acres, vegetable gardening; Charley Simenson, Smiley, aerospace; Stephanie Dagen, City View, home environment; Mike Torgerson, Silverton, shop; Tom Scholin, Black River, conservation; Lynn Mosbeck, Black River, child care; Joni Mosbeck, Black River, food science; Jackie Thune, Happy Acres, needlework; Gretchen McEwen, Happy Acres, clothing; Kelly Koropatnicki, Kratka, food preservation; Robert Ayers, City View, indoor gardening; and Daryl Rupprecht, Silverton, potatoes.

Judging teams at the state fair included dairy team members Dale Rupprecht, Silverton; Scott Muzzy, Steiner; and Dale Lundeen, Deer Park. General livestock team members include Cindi Solem, City View; Doug Courneya, Steiner; Daryl Rupprecht, Silverton; and Kirk Hamre, City View. The judging teams are coached by Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent. The meats judging team, coached by 4-H leader Mrs. Lucille Sylvester, included Black River 4-H members Roy Dobias, Wanda Sylvester, Wendle Dobias and Tina Kruse.

Demonstrators at the state fair included Cindi Solem, City View, who presented a two hour youth-in-action cake decorating demonstration in the agriculture - horticulture building.

Team demonstrations from the Silverton 4-H club were given by Kristi Rupprecht and Cindy Russell on "Pasta Pleases" and Debbie and Lisa Torgerson on babysitting.

CADET Paul W. Rondorf, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rondorf Jr., Thief River Falls, recently completed training in fundamental military skills at the army ROTC basic camp at Fort Knox, Ky. Basic camp is designed to give junior college graduates and college sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. It also qualifies high school graduates for the ROTC program at any one of the nation's six military junior colleges. During the encampment, cadets received training in basic rifle marksmanship, military drill and ceremonies, communications and individual and small unit tactics. Rondorf is a student at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

About 150 construction workers will get on-the-job training under a $1 million Labor Department of contract supporting the building and renovation of rural housing at 11 selected sites in Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia and Tennessee.

Boardings On Republic Here Continue Drop

For the eighth month this year, boardings of Republic airlines flights at the Thief River Falls regional airport declined from year ago figures, according to unofficial statistics provided by Republic personnel at the local office.

August boarding total of 807 was 250 below the 1,057 total boarding in August of 1979. For the year through August boardings of 7,501 were 1,588 below the 9,089 recorded for the same period in 1979.

Month by month, figures include the following with 1979 and 1980 statistics listed respectively: January, 1,171 and 1,048; February, 1,081 and 964; March, 1,151 and 1,100; April, 1,164 and 909; May, 1,149 and 952; June, 1,194 and 853; July, 1,122 and 868; and August, 1,057 and 807.

When Republic Airlines acquires Hughes Airwest October 1, it will become the nation's fifth largest domestic airline in passengers carried, operate the seventh largest commercial jet fleet in the world and become a billion dollar company. The company expects to carry 18 million passengers in 1980 and 20 million in 1981. With the addition of Airwest the firm will serve 207 cities — more than any other airline in the country.

Hydroplaning Possible On Wet Roadways

Hydroplaning may have happened to you, or at least you are aware that it could happen. Most people know that hitting the brakes on wet pavement can instantly turn their car into a giant water ski and that the balder the tire, the better it skis. But you may not know that you can lose control of your car just cruising down a straight stretch of road, warns The Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

When it first starts to rain, drops of water combine with dirt, dust, oil and grease from the road surface to form a gooey paste that is slicker than an ice skating rink. A little dew from a damp night air is all that's needed to take away your traction.

As your car moves along the wet roadway, water penetrates between the tires and the pavement. The pressure increases with increased vehicle speed and supports more and more of the tire. At a critical speed, the tire is completely supported by the water and is actually floating. This is when you lose control.

Hydroplaning occurs when the tire inflation pressure, speed of your car, water depth on the road and the condition of your tire tread combine in such a manner that your tires lose contact with the road.

How can you avoid the dangerous and hair-raising experience of hydroplaning into a wild skid? First of all, drive on tires that have deep, wide grooves to allow water to escape so it doesn't build up in front of the tires. Radial or belted bias-ply tires are good. Tire tread becomes very important when you're driving on a wet roadway. Bald tires will actually stop shorter than well-tread tires on a dry pavement. But on wet roadways, you definitely need a tire with good tread.

Increased tire pressure for wet road driving can also help avoid going into a skid. Just don't increase the pressure over the recommended maximum marked on the tire's sidewall, cautions Minnesota AAA.

Be alert to loose steering. If your steering wheel begins to feel mushy, your tires are starting to hydroplane. Gradually remove your foot from the accelerator, but stay away from the brakes — braking will only make things worse.

Try to follow in the tracks of the car ahead of you. Be extra cautious if you're driving in a crosswind. But reducing speed is most important. Increase the distance between your car and those ahead of you to give yourself more time and distance for stopping. Being aware of what could happen might help you to slow down a bit, too.

Recent findings show that non-smokers who work in a smoky environment have about the same risk of breathing impairment as smokers who inhale between one and ten cigarettes a day.

CAMBRIDGE
INSULATED SELF-STORING DOOR
$89.97
SAVE $19.98
A long-lasting energy saver – Maintenance free, durable aluminum with a permanent white baked enamel finish. Excellent insulating qualities. Completely weatherstripped. 32" or 36" widths x 6'9".
- Pre-hung
- Easy to install
- Self-storing storm window
- Qualifies for tax credit
- Hardware included
INSULATING BENEFITS:
The space between your storm door and your prime door plays an important part in insulating your home. Because the temperature of the "dead-air" between your two doors becomes the mean temperature between the inside and outside of your home. This dead air acts as an insulator and minimizes the heat loss through your entrance area.
WHIRLYBIRD® TURBINE VENT $26.99 Reg. $31.58 WITH BASE
No operation costs – Winter moisture collects in your attic causing expenses damaging condensation problems. The Whirlybird® replaces moist attic air with drier outside air. Aluminum construction
FIRST GRADE STUDS $1.39 EACH
Top quality – Stringent requirements for straightness, strength and stiffness permits these studs to be used for all stud uses. Including load bearing walls. Cash and carry only. 2" x 4" - 92-5/8".
PLASTERBOARD $3.79 4' x 8' - 1/2"
Easy to use – Inexpensive and quick to install. Takes any finish smoothly on interior walls or ceilings. Structurally strong and fire resistant because of solid gypsum base and special fibrous paper.

Lincoln Students Comment On Proposed Bond Issue

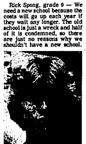
(Editor's Note: Student senate at Lincoln high school asked a number of students the questions, "What's your opinion on the school bond issue?" Response from some of the students is as follows:

Dawn Engelstad

Dawn Engelstad, grade 9 — I think it will be a good idea to get a new school; even though the taxes would go up, it would be worth it. The school is so crowded in the halls the crowd just carries you down the hall. It's hard to study with three other classes going on in the same room.

Rick Spong

Rick Spong, grade 9 — We need a new school because the costs will go up each year if they wait any longer. The old school is just a wreck and half of it is condemned, so there are just no reasons why we shouldn't have a new school.



Mitch Semanko

Mitch Semanko, grade 9 — We are really in need of a new high school. There are about only three halls in the school for 1,200 kids to pass through between classes. We get five minutes between classes and in that time you could probably make it half way through the school and if you have to come from the service center you barely make it. If there ever was a fire, half of the people probably wouldn't make it out.

One of the best class rooms in the school is the band room in the basement. A handicapped student could never make it down there.

Most people think that a new school would cost too much, but costs of materials and things to build it will never go down. Material costs would be much cheaper now than in two or three years or more.

Not only students, but teachers and others complain about conditions. It would be a lot easier to educate in a school, not an old bus garage. Energy costs would be cut also.

Mark Isaacson

Mark Isaacson, grade 12 — The present school doesn't provide an adequate environment for teaching or learning in today's advanced technological society.

Betty Meyer, grade 10 — The halls are really crowded and this has caused people to be late. The reason is because most of the school is condemned. Because of the lack of room all the classrooms are crowded.

Kim McFarland

Kim McFarland, grade 12 — There definitely has to be a new school building. Conditions are too over-crowded in too small an area. In rooms 132A, B and C there are no dividers which makes it difficult to learn when all the classes meet at the same time; this is not an ideal situation for a learning experience. My attention is always drawn to distractions in the other class rather than my teacher.

It now takes me five minutes to go from the chorus room to my locker when last year it took me about a minute and a half. I have five minutes to each my lunch because of long lines. The hallway is like a traffic jam in downtown Minneapolis.

Barb Laidley, grade 10 — The school is too small for the number of kids in it. It's so cold walking over to the Arctic building everyday, especially in the winter. The halls are very crowded. Everyone gets pushed and shoved everywhere. In my English class we have the production room practically in the same room, so all hour you hear typing, phones and copying machines. I think we need a new school badly.

EDITH Tested During Fire Emphasis Week

Exit Drill In The Home (EDITH) program in Minnesota will be tested at 7 p.m. Wednesday, October 8, in many state communities during the 1980 observance of fire prevention week October 5-11. "Partners in Fire Prevention" is the theme, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

State fire marshal Wes Werner said a review of home fire safety rules can lessen the chance of tragedy, particularly during winter months when woodburning stoves and other heating devices are used. State has been stressing proper installation and maintenance of these units.

EDITH revolves around preparation. Here are some suggested things to do: Sit down with your family and make a step-by-step plan for emergency fire escape; choose a place outdoors for everyone to meet for roll call, locate a "call box" or neighbor's telephone for notifying fire departments; once you have evacuated, do not re-enter building; practice the escape; make sure children can operate the windows, descend a ladder, or lower themselves to the ground; have children practice saying the fire department number, the family name, street address and town. Post the first department number on or near your phone and check the location and periodically test smoke detectors.

The 91 fire deaths in Minnesota during 1979 included 46 in one and two-family homes, 17 in mobile homes and 10 in apartments. Of the 75 deaths through mid-August this year, 15 were caused in part by woodburning stoves.

"The most effective fire prevention measure is a smoke detector," Werner said. "This early warning can give the extra time needed to escape, and save our most precious resource — human life," Werner added.

Lincoln Tours Set This Week

Arrangements have been made by the local citizens committee supporting the $15 million bond issue for new high school construction in Thief River Falls for tours by the public of the present high school facilities.

Tours will be held every day this week, Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Groups or individuals will be taken on tour of the building beginning each half hour. Persons interested in touring the building are asked to stop at the principal's office near the main entry at the corner of First street and Knight avenue.

Principal Frank Hamerlinck notes that those who wish to see the portion of the school which has been closed due to fire marshal's order must do so during daylight hours because electricity to that portion of the building has been disconnected.

A model of the proposed new school will be on display in the Lincoln building. Public vote on the $15 million bond issue proposed to build a new high school and remodel elementary facilities is scheduled for Tuesday, October 14.

Brochures providing information on need, site, building plan, projected costs and effect on taxes has been mailed to residents of the district by the citizens committee.

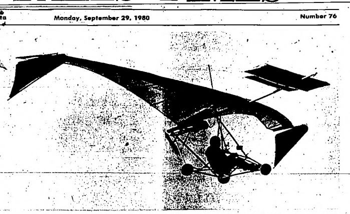
Majority Of Traffic Deaths Occur Weekends

Weekend traffic crashes take an alarmingly high percentage of the total killed on Minnesota roads, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

And it isn't just the holiday weekends that are deadly. It is every weekend in late summer and early fall.

September 6-7 is a vivid example. Eleven fatalities were reported, equal to the number during Labor Day weekend which had 78 hours compared to 54 on a normal weekend including Friday night hours.

For the past three years August has been the worst month in Minnesota for traffic deaths.



OFF HE GOES, into the wild blue yonder, flying an aerodynamic marvel of nylon, aluminum and cables driven by a porpeller powered by two 10-horsepower motors. Stewart Holmes admits flying the "Eagle" is a little bit scary, but insists it is entirely safe. For an investment of $3,695 — and a few extra bucks for a crash helmet — anyone can be king of the air.

Stewart Holmes Flies Kite Or Glider...Or Something

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Stewart Holmes' wife tells him to go fly a kite, he is usually delighted. It's another opportunity for him to go aloft in his aluminum and nylon contraption which can best be described as a motorized hang glider.

"It still gets a little scary," Holmes said after landing his flying machine during a recent photo session. "That's probably partly why I like it. If I'm nervous and a little scared I think I have more respect for conditions and take fewer chances. It's perfectly safe, of course, but it makes you think."

At age 23, Holmes has been working for the Soo Line railroad for three years as brakeman, conductor and switch- foreman. He has always wanted to fly but felt he couldn't afford it. Now, with a ship that retails at $3,695 ready to go and a five-gallon can of regular gas mixed with oil, he can cruise around the sky and soar with the birds all afternoon.

"Hey, it's really great!" he said. "Like last Sunday I was catching thermals east of the airport and I had shut off the engines. I was just soaring along and right next to me was this hawk riding the thermals, too. He was maybe 40 feet away. He'd look over at me and I'd keep watching him.

"Then he caught a thermal and shot up ahead of me. I went up too, and pretty soon I was right behind him, probably at about 1,000 feet. We must have sailed along for about 10 minutes before he caught another thermal and shot up out of sight. Some people may think it sounds crazy but I thought it was really fun."

Holmes' craft has a 36-foot wingspan, is 12 feet long, weighs 150 pounds and can fold down small enough to be carry-on baggage on an airline. It is powered by two 2-cycle engines of 10-horsepower each — similar to what a person finds in a go-cart or snowmobile. The pilot is strapped into a low-slung seat and steers the craft with handlebars and adjusting body position. The ship will climb at 400 feet a minute on a good day and has a glide ratio of 10 feet forward to one-foot drop.

"Crusing speed is about 35 miles per hour," Holmes explained. "It can't go over 50 miles an hour because of the way it's designed. Landing speed is about 25 miles an hour. I usually land in an alfalfa field by my house because its softer."

Because the unit can be launched and landed by foot power rather than motor, it is not classified as an aircraft by the Federal Aeronautics administration and therefore does not need to be licensed. Operators must adhere to FAA regulations around airports, for instance, and Holmes thinks it would be a good idea for people who fly the craft to have aviation ground school training, even if it isn't required.

Holmes often lands his craft without power, so having engine failure isn't a major concern to him. He always tries to maintain a good height when flying over wooded areas, for instance, so that he can have time to glide to a landing area if he does have trouble. The day of the airport open house earlier this summer, when he had his ship on display, he did have trouble.

Career Fair October 2 At Northland CC

Northland community college will again be hosting a post high school planning program for 40 area high schools with about 1,200 students planning to attend on October 2 from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the Northland gymnasium.

The program is for high school seniors who haven't yet considered plans following graduation from high school. This career fair will offer the opportunity for students to consider post high school plans by having a chance to talk to as many as 64 representatives of post secondary schools — vocational, college and trade — as well as representatives of the military services.

Area high school counselors have been sent the necessary information about the career fair at Northland as well as financial assistance available to attend a post secondary institution. Students at the 40 high schools who have been invited to attend this post secondary high school program may obtain additional information by visiting with their high school counselor.

Surprise! NCC Enrollment Up

Enrollment figures released by Northland community college recently indicate a surprising enrollment increase after an early prediction seemed to indicate a slight decline. The increase kept intact Northland's growth pattern which shows an increase every year for the past six years.

Statistics by Dennis Bendickson, registrar at Northland, show a full and part-time headcount of 581 students for this fall's enrollment as compared to 536 one year ago. These figures include a record enrollment of 98 students at the Grand Forks air force base.

This fall quarter headcount is responsible for establishing a record 418 full-time equivalency (F.T.E.) enrollment as well — surpassing last years F.T.E. enrollment of 415. Full-time equivalency is determined by dividing the total number of student credit hours for the quarter by 15 credits.

The record 581 enrollment includes 289 full and part-time on campus freshmen, 137 full and part-time on campus sophomores, 98 special students who are taking classes but not pursuing a specific curriculum and 98 enrollees at the Grand Forks air force base.

"The six year growth pattern is significant and shows area support and confidence in Northland as a viable post-secondary institution" said President Alex Easton on reviewing the fall quarter statistics.

Dale Rupprecht Selected For Dairy Honors

Dale Rupprecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht of Thief River Falls, will soon be on his way to the 26th national 4-H dairy conference to be held September 30 through October 3 at the world dairy exposition in Madison, Wisc.

Dale was nominated for the dairy achievement award from Pennington county and won his trip by being selected from over 100 other 4-H dairy project youth throughout the state. Dale is presently building his own dairy herd. He now has six Ayrshire cattle of his own and hopes to have considerably more by the time he graduates from high school.

Dale's trip is being sponsored by the Minnesota Ayshire breeders association.

'25 Years of Caring' Is Oakland Park Home Theme

"25 Years of Caring" (1955-1980) was the theme adopted for the 25th anniversary celebration of Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls last week. And approximately 200 visitors expressed that theme when they attended the open house activities conducted Sunday at the home. Speakers discussing the history of the home Sunday during the open house celebration included: Barb Geer; Joyce Fox, chairman, Pennington county welfare board (the home's executive board); Rev. J. M. Hovland; Bea Erickson, president of the home's resident's council; Otto Stenberg, family member and county commissioner for 10 years; Doris Peterson, employee for 17 years; Glenn Tasa, Pennington county commissioner for 32 years and a member of the home's executive board since January of 1969; Alice Wold, R.N., and first director of nursing in 1955; Mary Numedahl, current director of

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Bruce Mattsons To Live In Thief River Falls

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mattson are at home in this city at Northwestern trailer court following an exchange of marriage vows at a mid-afternoon ceremony at St. Bernard's Catholic church.

The bride, the former Michelle Gerardy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gerardy of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mattson, also of this city.

Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Mrs. William Halbasch, a friend of the bride. She presented a prelude of nuptial selections prior to the ceremony and played Lohengrin's "Bridal March" as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. During the ceremony, Solvig Swenson, a friend of the bride, sang, "My World," "Wedding Song," "God, A Woman, and A Man," "Lord's Prayer," and "Ave Maria."

Forming the background for the wedding party were two sprays of greenery, and an arrangement of carnations and daisies, backed by candelabra entertwined with daisies, carnations, greenery and ribbon streamers. Assorted greenery covered the base of the candelabra.

The bride was attired in a white wedding gown featuring a fitted bodice with Queen Anne neckline and a cut-out back. Chantilly lace embroidered with pearls enhanced the bodice and formed the deep cuffs on her bishop sleeves. The skirt was fashioned with a chiffon pleated front, bordered by the same Chantilly lace that edged the hemline and attached cathedral length train. Corresponding lace edged her fingertip veil and blusher held by a lace and pearl headpiece. She carried a hand bouquet of stephanotis, roses and babies' breath.

Teresa Morrison was the bride's personal attendant.

Renae Hoard attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kristi Gerardy, a sister of the bride, and Pam Prichard and Kelsy Richards, friends of the bride. They wore peach colored empire fashioned gowns featuring full pleated skirts and matching capes. In their hair, they wore clusters of daisies. They carried bouquets of roses, daisies and stephanotis.

Serving as flower girl was Shelly Timm, a friend of the couple. She wore a peach colored gown with short puffed sleeves and a floor-length skirt. The rings were carried by Chad Timm, also a friend of the couple. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a summer brown tuxedo with a rose boutonniere, matching the boutonniere worn by the groom.

The groom was attired in an all-white tuxedo. His best man was a friend, Mitch Hoard, a brother-in-law of the bride. Groomsmen were Brian and Bruce Gerardy, brothers of the bride, and Ray Swick, a friend of the couple. Serving as ushers were Mark Mattson, brother of the groom; Jim Pierce, uncle of the bride; Mike Philipp, friend of the couple; and Tim Morrison, a cousin of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gerardy selected a floor-length gown of mint green with a white-shadow, floral print. The groom's mother wore a powder blue empire styled gown with a matching jacket which tied in the front. Their matching corsages were of roses and daisies.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Pete Gerardy, Mrs. Florence Pierce, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Violet Stoskopf, grandmother of the groom.

A wedding dinner at St. Bernard's church parlors followed the ceremony. Serving as hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Gerardy and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mattson. Nancy Gerardy presided at the guest book as Jodi Vigstol and Barbi Gerardy ladled the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake with flowing water fountain, was cut and served by Mrs. Marge Keeney and Mrs. Catherine Simon. The cake, separated by pillars, was decorated with peach flowers and lace, and was topped by an ornament featuring wedding rings and white flowers. Doves and bells graced the second layer.

Serving as waitresses were Cheryl, Sue and Mary Amundson, Coleen Cullen and Kristi LaCoursiere. Scott Oen and Charles Gerardy were at the gift table.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and both are employed in this city. The bride is employed at Northern State Bank and the groom at the Thief River Falls Times. Photo, LeMar Photography, Crookston.

Local WCTU Hears National Convention Report

Report of the National Women's Christian Temperance union 106th annual convention was given at the September meeting of the local Woman's Christian Temperance union held at the Riverside Terrace.

The meeting began with Olga Larson giving the devotional "Treasures of Knowledge," based on II Cor. 4:3-6. She stated that one of the greatest treasures one can obtain is the treasure of knowledge, with the Bible as the best source of that knowledge. However God commissions everyone to share that knowledge with his fellow men. She read Prov. 3:13; John 11:35, Matt. 9:35 and Matt. 11:28, and concluded by stating that God is not indifferent to the sorrows, sufferings and struggles of His People; and that where there was bereavement, Jesus wept; where there was suffering, He healed; and where there was weariness from excessive trials, He gave rest. His same love and compassion is still evident today.

The comprehensive report of the national convention was read by several of the women at the meeting. It was noted that the event was held August 28-September 1, at the Broadview motor hotel in Wichita, Kans. The theme was "Abundant Treasures," with the theme verse, " . . . We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of power may be of God, and not of us." II Cor. 4:7.

Resolutions adopted at the convention were that greater emphasis be given to the National Narcotic educations classes, that a greater effort be made to send more teachers to these sessions; and that the harmful effects of alcoholic beverages, other drugs and tobacco is published in church school materials;

That a speedy agreement is reached on the wording of the label to be used on beverage alcohol containers by the special Congressional Committee on the Brown Bill HR4441; that health hazard warning labels are placed on alcoholic beverages and on advertising of such products; and that everyone works for the passage of Brown Bill (HR167) making the advertising of alcoholic beverage costs a non-deductible expense;

That the Thurmond Bill S. 249, and the Hammerschmidt Bill HR 1382, are passed prohibiting the broadcasting of television programs portraying nudity, obscenity and explicit sexual activity;

That the Bennett Bill HR 136, will be passed amending the Federal Aviation act of 1958 to require regulations prohibiting air carriers from dispensing alcoholic beverages and tobacco without charge to passengers aboard aircraft carriers;

That in awareness of the national concern for ecology, that a significant deposit be required on all beverage alcohol containers in order to facilitate collection and recycling;

That a request be made to the World Health organization that in its promotional program, they will promote abstinence and acknowledge that beverage alcohol is the world's most dangerous and insidious drug, seriously affecting the whole family;

That the sale of alcoholic beverages in United States is barred to anyone under 21 years of age;

That due to the rise of venereal diseases that the belief in an equally high standard of purity for man, as well as women, be affirmed and that education is essential to eliminate the disease;

That since the family has suffered because of the lowering of standards for the family, the Christian family should be emphasized as meaning a man and woman, with or without children, who are legally married;

And that parents be commended who have formed "Parents Who Care" groups by being supportive of their children and setting guide lines to create a healthy atmosphere for young people regarding use of alcohol, drugs and general social behavior.

Speaking to the group were Mrs. Fred Tooze, former national WCTU president; Mrs. Millicent Harry of Australia, the WCTU International president; Michael Vitucci m, editor of the "Union Signal" and "Young Crusader"; Mrs. Herman Stanley, National WCTU president, who gave the keynote address, "America's Treasure Trove," and a number of other dignitaries from both the national and state unions. All stressed the forgoing of material possessions in favor of the everlasting treasures that lead to eternal life.

Hostesses at the local meeting were Mrs. Valborg Hanson and Mrs. Olga Engelstad. During the lunch hour, birthday cards were signed for Agnes Longren, Helga Dyrud and Sylvia Martinson.

First Session Of Preretirement Program Set

First session of the preretirement planning program SMART (Senior Member and Retirement Trainee program) will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at St. John Lutheran church in this city.

The program is geared for people 50-65 years of age who are thinking and planning for retirement. Meetings will be held weekly with topics dealing with attitudes, finances, legal arrangements, housing, health and leisure activities.

The sessions are open to all men and women of the community regardless of church affiliations. There are no charges. Paul and Mary Warble of Bemidji are in charge. Although the program is being sponsored by the Aid Association for Lutherans, there will be no solicitations, either at the sessions or in the future.

Co. Homemakers Leaders To Study Egg Cookery

Egg Cookery will be studied by Pennington County Homemakers at their leader training sesson on Wednesday, October 1, at 1:30 in the Courthouse meeting room. Linda Syverson, a home economist with the Minnesota EGG COUNCIL will conduct the training which includes a slide show on egg basics; a demonstration on the various ways eggs can be used in meal preparation; and a "hands-on" experience for homemakers who will prepare omelets during the lesson. There will be a 50 cent fee for each participant to cover the cost of the ingredients.

Anyone interested in joining a homemaker club should contact Deborah Matero at the Pennington County Extension office, 681-2116.

Zucchini Pickles

- 1 gallon zucchini, peeled, seeded and cut into half-inch pieces
- 1 small bottle calcium hydroxide USP (Available in drug stores)
- 1 gallon water

Dissolve calcium hydroxide in water, add zucchini and let stand 24 hours. Drain, rinse well and drain on paper towels.

- 10 cups sugar
- 8 cups vinegar
- 2 tablespoons pickling spices tied in a bag
- 1 small bottle red or green food coloring

Method: Combine sugar, vinegar, pickling spices and heat. Remove from heat, add food coloring and zucchini, and let stand 24 hours. Remove zucchini, heat brine, add zucchini and simmer 35 minutes. Pack into jars and seal.

Mrs. Tangquist stated that "these pickles taste like watermelon pickles, only better." The Tangquists are celebrating their first wedding anniversary today (Monday). They have eight children. (Four each from previous marriages that ended with the death of their spouses.) Mrs. Tangquist is employed as a part-time receptionist at Northwestern hospital and her husband is employed in the meat department at Dwight's Hartz Market. They attend services at the Viking Covenant church.

Recorder Music Lessons Offered At Northland

Northland community college will again be offering a community service non-credit class in the playing of the Renaissance recorder. Anthony Ricci, who started the classes last year, will instruct again this year.

The recorder is an ancient musical instrument that resembles a flute with finger holes. It has had a revival throughout the United States with Northland college participating in that reawakening. At the present time, Northland is the only college in the area sponsoring and instructing students in the ancient art of recorder music and in students performing as a group.

Because of the growing interest in playing this ancient musical instrument, Ricci will be offering two classes — a beginning class and an advanced class. Both classes will be offered on Tuesday, October 7, with the beginning class meeting from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and the advanced class meeting from 8 to 9 p.m. Both classes will meet once a week for eight weeks in the Northland theatre with a $12 fee for the course.

The beginning class members will learn the basics of playing the instrument, how to read the music and how to play in a group. The advanced recorder group is for persons who have had the beginning course and are interested in advanced playing techniques. This group will also be performing at local area concerts and events.

Northland college is in a position to furnish, at no cost, recorder instruments for those who wish to try playing before purshasing their own instrument.

Ricci is a graduate of St. Olaf college where he received his B.A. degree in music and is a former music instructor in the Thief River Falls and Newfolden public schools. He is presently teaching guitar at NCC and doing piano tuning and repair in the area.

G. Waterworth Commended In Merit Program

Dave Kragness, principal of Marshall county central high school, announced recently that Gail Waterworth is being commended for her outstanding performance in the 26 annual (1981) National Merit scholarship program. Letters of commendation from the school and corporation which conducts the competition will be presented to her.

More than 1 million students entered the 1981 program by taking the PSAT-NMSQT in 1979. About 33,000 of these students throughout the United States receive a commendation for outstanding test performance. Commended students rank below the level required for semifinalists — the only participants who will continue in the 1981 competition for merit scholarships. Nonetheless, commended students have shown exceptional academic promise by scoring among the top five per cent of participants.

Falls Meals Schedule Change Noted In TRF

Falls Delivered Meals Inc. will not be able to deliver meals to shut-ins in need of a balanced meal, according to the previously planned schedule.

This should not interfere with those seniors who are receiving meals now from the Seniors' Meal Site, according to J. M. Hovland, president of the organization.

Falls delivered meals still has obstacles to overcome, he said, and will begin delivery in the near future — not October 1 as previously indicated.

"At the present time we cannot give an exact date; we wish we could," he stated.

Applications are still being taken for the program, however, and interested persons are urged to apply for an application to Falls Delivered Meals Inc., P.O. Box 295, Thief River Falls.

Purpose of Falls Delivered Meals Inc. is to deliver a hot, balanced meal at noon and at cost to those unable to prepare or obtain their own meals. Falls delivered meals is a non-profit corporation that is not government—funded. Each person who cannot afford to pay the full cost of the meal will be consulted as to what he or she can afford. "Then we shall look for some sort of outside financial help to help pay for the full cost of the meal for that person," Hovland said.

Assemblies Of God Church To Host Evangelist

Evangelist Ken Krivehlavek of Springfield, Mo., is scheduled to minister at a 'Bible Deliverance' campaign to be held at the Assemblies of God church in Thief River Falls October 5-10 (except Monday evening), 7 p.m. nightly.

Host pastor, Rev. J.L. Hagemeister, states that evangelist Krivehlavek "will emphasize the Biblical promises of healing and strength for the human spirit, mind and body" and that prayer will be offered for the sick in each service.

Rev. Krivehlavek is a 1962 graduate of Central Bible college, Springfield, Mo., and has served pastorates in Missouri, Nebraska and Idaho. Since 1967, he has been engaged in evangelistic ministry. He is married, has two children and is the author of three books.

Rev. Hagemeister invites the public to attend, and to request the prayers of the evangelist and the congregation on behalf of any need.

Senior Citizen Dance Is Set

Senior Citizen dance is scheduled at the City Auditorium in this city on Wednesday, October 1. All senior citizens are welcome. Dancing will begin at 7:30 p.m., with music provided by The Fugitives.

"FASHIONS WITH A CALL TO FALL" is the theme for the Northwestern hospital auxiliary style show to be held Tuesday, October 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Thief River golf club. Proceeds from the show, for which a charge of $3.50 will be made, will go to the auxiliary's local "Help the Heart" project. Modeling fashions above are Konnie Kompelien for the Klothes Kloset, Diane Matson for Mr. Duane's and Peggy Loberg for Elaine's. Eight Thief River Falls stores offering clothing for adults, children and teens will have fashions modeled at the show. Entertainment and the serving of coffee and home-made apple strudel will also be featured. Tickets are available at Ekeren Drug, Larson Music company and the gift shop in the north lobby of Northwestern hospital.

10-Ton Routes Are Added In Southern Minn.

Emergency routes have been designated on Minnesota's statewide system of roads and streets authorized to carry 10-ton single-axle loadings and 80,000 pounds total gross weight in Wheaton and Welcome, between New Ulm and Winthrop and between Rochester and Lake City, the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Commissioner Richard P. Braun said the weight limits on the routes were authorized to carry 10-ton loads because they connect with or feed designated 10-ton routes.

Added to the 10-ton system are country state-aid highway 10 from 12th street to the US 75 junction in Wheaton, TH 263 from Martin county road 26 to the I-90 junction in Welcome, TH 15 from New Ulm to Winthrop, and US 63 from US 14 in Rochester to US 61 in Lake City.

Monthly transportation permits will be required to haul 80,000 pounds on the emergency routes. The permits cost $5 and are good for the month in which they are issued. Permits can be issued only to properly registered vehicles licensed to carry up to 80,000 pounds.

Monthly permits are available from Mn-DOT offices in Crookston, Bemidji, Virginia, Duluth, Detroit Lakes, Morris, Brainerd, St. Cloud, Willmar, Marshall, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Windom, Mankato, Owatonna and Rochester.

Wickman Will Be Speaker At Roseau Church

Rev. Marden B. Wickman, Deerwood, is scheduled to speak in a series of services October 5-12 at Bethel Mission Covenant church, rural Roseau. Services will be held nightly, excepting Monday and Saturday, at 8 p.m. Sunday services are at 9:45 a.m. and the series will close with the morning service October 12.

Mrs. Wickman, who travels with her husband to some of the appointments, is expected to join him at Roseau following a series of services in which they are to appear at Winnipeg. The services are open to the public.

AMC District III Hosts Meet Here October 9

Association of Minnesota Counties (AMC) District III will conduct a meeting October 9 at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Agenda will include coffee and rolls at 9:30 a.m., and a program with the AMC staff at 10 a.m. which will include a review report of the AMC committee on the future, an update on the projected state deficit, and a review and discussion of the Legislative program.

A buffet luncheon will begin at 11:30 p.m., which will be followed at 12:30 by a continuation of the morning program. Other district business including budget and salaries for 1981 and an update on AMC worker's compensation plan will begin at 1:30 p.m.

For more information, interested persons may write Kenneth Price, director, Marshall county commissioner, in Stephen, MN 56757, or call him at (218) 478-2453.

Fran Stromberg Appointed To MNPIN Board

Fran Stromberg, R.N. of Thief River Falls, was recently appointed to the board of directors of Minnesota Politically Involved Nurses (MNPIN), the political action arm of the Minnesota Nurses association.

MNPIN is a voluntary, non-profit, unincorporated group of registered nurses who recognize the need for nurses to become involved in partisan politics, Mrs. Stromberg said.

Long active in state and district DFL campaigns, Mrs. Stromberg has been selected as a "Jubilee Nurse" in honor of the Minnesota Nurses association's 75th anniversary. She was also 1979 "Nurse of the Year" of the district one Nurse association which includes the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake, Pennington, Polk, Norman and Mahnomen.

Goodridge FFA To Hold Grain Drive Oct. 4-12

Goodridge chapter of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) will hold a grain drive for Camp Courage October 4-12.

Leland Hayes, Goodridge high school vocational FFA advisor who announced the project, said members of the FFA would stop at farms in the area, pick up grain that farmers would like to contribute, and then sell it to a local elevator.

Grain drives help sponsor Minnesota's rural youth with physical handicaps at Camp Courage, a residential camp 50 miles northwest of Minneapolis, near Maple Lake. This year, more than 1,000 children and adults with physical handicaps participated in camp programs.

Since 1952, the FFA has donated approximately $800,000 from grain drives to support speech therapy programs, amateur radio training, and horticulture programs at Camp Courage, leadership camp for hearing-impaired children at Courage North, near Lake George, and travel camps. Hayes said 23 of his FFA chapter members will take part in the project.

St. Olaf Rep At Northland

John Olsen, admissions counselor at St. Olaf college in Northfield, will visit with high school juniors and seniors at the post high school planning program to be held at Northland community college in Thief River Falls on Thursday, October 2. He expects to be there from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

St. Olaf is a four-year liberal arts college affiliated with the American Lutheran church and has an enrollment of 2,908 students.

The first organization of black workers was the American League of Colored Laborers, founded in 1850 in New York City, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

New MN. Home Energy Law Effective Oct. 1

Buyers and sellers of Minnesota residential property (houses, rental and mobile homes) built prior to January of 1976 will be affected by the new Minnesota home energy law which becomes effective October 1.

Basically the law requires owner-sellers to present a home energy evaluation (energy audit) to a buyer when a purchase agreement or other sale contract is signed. Buyers may choose to waive their right to the audit, and a waiver form is provided on the audit form. Failure to secure either an audit from a certified evaluator, or the buyer's waiver to the right of energy audit, could result in a cloud on an owner's title.

An independent auditor, certified by the state, will evaluate each residential property for energy efficiency based on the following conservation standards: caulking and weatherstripping; insulation of attics, walls, rim joists, foundation walls, crawl spaces and floors; positive shutoffs of wood stoves and fireplaces; and storm doors and storm windows.

The evaluator will recommend which of these conservation measures should be performed to save energy, based on costs, first year energy savings and investment payback in years. None of the measures are mandate fix-up items for the owner-seller. Do-it-yourselfers will note that costs of improvements will include figures for materials only and for materials plus labor.

Armed with this information, buyers will be able to comparison shop for the most efficient property, much like miles-per-gallon figures help consumers shop for the most efficient automobile. Using the audit information, buyers can also decide which conservation methods would be most cost effective for future energy improvements. The bottom line for buyers is the audit's potential to help them substantially reduce monthly fuel outlays.

Sellers can use the audit as an important selling tool. If they've performed any conservation improvements on their property, the audit will attest to it with hard figures.

Sellers can also see which energy improvements will make the property most attractive for the lowest pre-sale investment. And real estate surveys show that energy efficient homes sell faster and bring a better price.

Evaluators will probably come from the ranks of engineers, building inspectors and non-profit weatherization auditors. Cost of the audit to the seller is expected to be less than $100.

Included on the audit form is a conflict of interest clause that would prohibit an agent who has an interest in the property from performing an audit on that property.

When sellers need to hire a home energy evaluator, they should contact their real estate agent, local building inspector or the Minnesota Energy Agency Information Center, 980 American Center Bldg., 150 E. Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55101. Outside the metro area, call toll free 1-800-652-9747.

LHS Students Comment On Bond Proposal

Lynette Huot

Lynette Huot, grade 10 — I think it's stupid to have 35 kids in one classroom because the teachers don't have enough time for each student. It's also really hard when you have to have two different classes in one classroom at the same time, and the teachers are always trying to out-talk each other so that the students can hear.

During the winter months, all the people in phy ed can't go outside. Since they have condemned the small gym, there isn't enough room for everyone to be in the gym at the same time, so they are busing us to other locations. Instead of spending money on the busing, they should be putting it toward a new high school.

Jody Vacura

Jody Vacura, grade 10 — I think that Lincoln high school is in very bad condition and there is no way for it to be improved. A lot of classes are being held in make-shift classrooms that hold many disadvantages. In order for the students to get the full amount of their education, I think that a new school should be built.

Tom Kenville

Tom Kenville, grade 10 — I feel sorry for the classes coming over from Franklin. This school is really a disaster compared to that one. And it's really "nice" in the classrooms when you can listen to three teachers talking at once.

PCA Rep At Ag Conference

Roger Philipp, loan officer for Production Credit association, Thief River Falls, attended an ag lenders conference sponsored by Harvestore systems recently in Chicago. Philipp, along with 900 other ag lenders and industry people, heard speakers and toured the company's plant at Dekalb, Ill.

Prepare Car Now For Cold Weather Ahead

While Indian summer's high temperatures may not make you think of winterizing your car, it's not too early to begin, says the Automotive Information council (AIC).

Avoiding cold-weather no-starts is reason enough to check over your car for items that need repair or maintenance.

AIC has compiled the following checklist to aid you in preparing your car for winter:

—Check the condition of the cooling system and flush and refill the radiator with antifreeze if necessary. Replace hoses that are cracked or spongy.

—Make sure the battery is fully charged. In zero-degree weather or below, a battery provides only half of its summer cranking speed. Check the condition of the cables and connections and look for corrosion.

—If engine performance has been dropping, it may be time for a tune-up. Consult your owner's manual for the proper service interval. If your car takes a bit of coaxing to start now, you may have real headaches once the weather becomes colder.

—Look at the exhaust system for extra rust and pinholes. Exhaust fumes escaping into a car with the windows rolled up and the vents closed can be very dangerous and even lethal.

—Check the tires for tread depth and uneven wear patterns. If you plan on changing to snow tires, get them out and check them over for wear. Check your steering and brakes, too. You'll need tires, brakes and a steering system in good condition to stop without skidding on slick surfaces.

—Make sure the lights, windshield wipers and windshield washer system all work. You may not think about them until you need them and they can't do any good if they don't work.

—Then give the car a good waxing to protect the finish until spring.

Take care of your car and it will take care of you, says AIC.

R. Kostrzewski Services Held At Florian

Mrs. Rose Kostrzewski, 90, of the Florian community, died Monday evening, September 22, at the Riverview hospital in Crookston. For the past two years, she had been a resident of the Riverview Nursing center at Crookston.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Kostrzewski were held Thursday at 10 a.m., at the Assumption Catholic church in Florian. Rev. Frank Kulhawik offered the Mass. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Kostrzewski, the former Rose Frances Kulpinski, was born June 27, 1890 in Poland to Mr. and Mrs. Kulpinski, now deceased. At the age of 11 years, she came to the United States, living first in North Dakota and later on a farm in Alma township, Marshall county, near Argyle. There she attended school and grew to womanhood.

On Nov. 24, 1913, she was married at Florian to Martin Kostrzewski. The couple farmed in Nelson Park township, Marshall county, near Florian and later in the Donaldson and Argyle communities. Later they returned to Nelson Park township. Following the death of her husband in August of 1962, Mrs. Kostrzewski continued to make her home in Nelson Park township for 10 years. She then lived for six years with her daughter at Argyle before becoming a resident of the Riverview Nursing center at Crookston.

She was a member of the Assumption Catholic church of Florian and the Rosary Society. She was also a Gold Star Mother and a member of the Strandquist American Legion auxiliary.

Surviving are six sons: Steve and Stanley Kostrzewski, Argyle; Edward, Edmund and Peter, all of Strandquist, and Raymond of Stephen; two daughters: Mrs. Clifford (Gertrude) Jorgenson and Mrs. George (Cecelia) Landreville, both of Argyle; 43 grandchildren, 57 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by one son and several brothers and sisters.

Arthur Nelson, Brother Of TRF Women, Dies

Arthur N. Nelson, 74, of Bottineau, N.D., brother of Mrs. Charles Booren and Mrs. Clara Bloomquist of Thief River Falls, died Friday, September 12, at a hospital in Minot, N.D.

Mass of the Christian Burial for Arthur Nelson was offered on September 16 at 10 a.m., at St. Mark's Catholic church in Bottineau. Co-celebrants were Rev. Len Burckhard and Rev. Raymond Matulenas. Bill Nero, Jr., was the soloist and Mrs. Elaine Freeman, the organist. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Pallbearers were grandsons: Blaine, Kim, Randy, Jody and Jon Gretchell and Tim Counts.

Arthur Nelson, a son of the late Andrew and Karen Nelson, was born at Holt on Oct. 26, 1905. As a young boy, he moved with his family to Argyle where he was married on Oct. 11, 1933 to Alice Kurz. After his marriage, he was associated with the Hedquist grocery store at Argyle until 1939, when they moved to Antler, N.D., to operate a grocery store. In 1950 he moved to Souris, N.D., where he operated a tavern until his retirement in 1967. The following year, he moved to Bottineau, where he had since resided.

He was a member of St. Mark's Catholic church in Bottineau. During his younger days, he was active in semi-pro baseball in both Minnesota and North Dakota, and later coached the American Legion teams at Antler. He had also served on the Antler City council.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters: Mrs. Jerome (Arliss) Gretchell, Sidney, Mont.; Mrs. Lawrence (Ellen) Counts, Souris, N.D.; and Mrs. Ron (Dianna) Murphy, Williston, N.D.; 20 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are two brothers: Norman Nelson, Long Beach, Calif., and Harold, Glenwood; and three sisters: Mrs. Abe (Agnes) Johnson, Laguna Beach, Calif. and Mrs. Clara Bloomquist and Mrs. Charles (Mildred) Booren, both of Thief River Falls.

He was preceded in death by one daughter, three brothers and two sisters.

Louise Marie Berthiaume Of RLF, Dies

Louise Marie Berthiaume, 87, Red Lake Falls died Thursday, September 25 at Villa St. Vincent Rest Home, Crookston, where she had lived since 1973.

Mass of the resurrection for Louise Berthiaume was held Saturday, Septmeber 27, at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Red Lake Falls. Concelebrants were Monsignor Victor Cardin, Reverend Jerome Fellon and Reverend Keough Patnode. Special music was provided by the St. Joseph adult choir and Mrs. Sylvia Steinert, organist.

George St. Louis, Leo Musil, Al Buse, Leo Bendel, Lloyd Phillion and Roy Wilcox served as pallbearers.

Interment was in St. Joseph's Catholic cemetery, Red Lake Falls, with the Petterson Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Louise Berthiaume was born September 19, 1893 at West Superior, Wis., to Louise and Martha (Bottineau) Berthiaume. She was the last surviving grandchild of Pierre Bottineau, pioneer settler and founder of Red Lake Falls. She was employed by LaBissoniere department store and Harper's Variety store in Red Lake Falls before her retirement.

She was preceded in death by her parents in 1939 and two sisters, Blanche in 1950 and Catherine in 1965.

D. Skibicki's Infant Son, Trenton, Dies

Trenton Skibicki, one-month-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Skibicki of Goodridge, died Thursday at his home.

Funeral services for Trenton Skibicki were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Belmont Funeral home with Rev. Duaine Espeseth of the Faith Lutheran Brethren church officiating. Mrs. Lester Brekke was the organist and Donald Wahlbeck, the soloist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

Trenton Skibicki was born in Thief River Falls on Aug. 17, of this year to Duane and Rebecca Skibicki.

Surviving are his parents, his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Skibicki, Thief River Falls; his maternal grandparents, Mrs. Jerry Wahlbeck, St. Hilaire and Darrell Johnson, Chicago, Ill.; and his maternal great-grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Braaten, Manvel, N.D., and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Johnson, Thief River Falls.

He was preceded in death by his paternal great-grandparents.

Julia Hveem Services Held At Ekelund

Mrs. Julia Hveem, 95, a former resident of the Goodridge community, died Wednesday at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia Hveem were held Saturday at 1:00 p.m., at the Ekelund Lutheran church with Rev. Gene Broughton officiating. Mrs. Dick Marquis was the organist and Anna Kriel and Vernon Iverson sang two selections. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Harold Anderson, Chester Solberg, Bennie Johnson, Clayton Johnsrud, Dick Marquis, and Leonard Johnson.

Mrs. Hveem, the former Julia Rose, was born April 26, 1885 in Toten, Norway to Peter and Johanna Rose. As a young girl, she immigrated to the United States.

In 1911, she was married at Wolf Point, Mont., to Nels Hveem. The couple lived in Montana until 1937, when they moved to Star township, in Goodridge. After the death of her husband in 1940, Mrs. Hveem continued to live in Goodridge until several years ago when she became a resident of Oakland Park nursing home.

She is survived by three sons: Hans Hveem, Osage, Iowa; and Norman and Howard, both of Wolf Point; two daughters: Mrs. Leslie (Ruth) Kronmiller, Billings, Mont., and Mrs. Harry (Edythe) Solberg, Goodridge; nine grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by one sister and a brother.

Warroad Fun In Son Rally Set October 24-25

Mrs. Virginia Anderson will be a workshop leader at the "Fun in the Son" rally being conducted in Warroad October 24 and 25.

Anderson, who grew up in a farming community in southwestern Minnesota, graduated from the University of Minnesota and attended Northwestern Bible college and Moody Bible Institute.

After teaching girls' physical education in Minnesota high schools for 12 years, she joined the faculty of Oak Hills Bible Institute where she has taught for 20 years.

Anderson will be leading the workshop entitled, "Is Anybody Out There?" She will also discuss the prayer of confession using Psalm 51 as a base.

Gary Gilbertson from Bemidji will conduct another of the workshops at the rally entitled, "How Do I Know It's Right?"

Gilbertson is presently a counselor of special behavior problems at Bagley high school.

His workshop will cover the following areas: What the different interests are between boys and girls concerning sex as shown in their speech, body language, and the way they dress; love, what does God have in mind concerning my relationships to others and what my body is ready for compared to what my being is ready for; and how to go about dating in a Christian atmosphere by dating other Christians, looking deeper than their looks, planning dates, and not compromising standards.

The four different workshops scheduled the afternoon of the 25th, will each have three one-hour presentations from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.; from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.; and from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Support Given On Funds For Solar Energy

One of the reasons Congressman Arlan Stangeland supports the energy and water appropriations conference report for fiscal year 1981 is that it "supplies funds for solar energy application and technology programs."

"It's extremely important that the U.S. expand and study methods for providing alternative sources of energy, such as solar energy. Over the years we've become too dependent on the use of crude oil. A reminder of this dependence and its dangers is being felt around the world and here at home as the war between the oil producing nations of Iran and Iraq threatens to close the oil spigot," Stangeland said.

The conference report provides $557.2 million for solar energy applications and technology programs. The solar applications account contains funds for solar systems development, demonstration and marketing while the solar technology account includes projects to generate electricity from solar energy, including wind and ocean power, and the production of fuels from biomass.

The conference report also includes funds for geothermal energy development, for hydropower projects, nuclear fission programs concerter reactors, commercial nuclear waste management, and breeder reactors. In addition, $258.6 million is included for nuclear fusion, and $108.5 million is included for electric energy and storage systems.

"We must forge ahead with legislation such as this if we are to obtain energy self-sufficiency in the near future, create jobs and keep American industry strong and competitive. There is so much we don't know about these alternatives and hopefully, with expanded programs for research and development, we will soon reach the point that energy will not become a matter of national security," concluded Stangeland.

MSU Enrollment Up 10 Per Cent Over Last Year

Opening fall enrollment at Moorhead state university jumped nearly 10 per cent over last fall's total, setting another record enrollment for the university.

MSU registrar Don Engberg said that by the end of the quarter, when all registrations are tallied, over 7,400 full and part-time students are expected to be taking classes at the university.

Preliminary totals after the 10th day of classes show 6,052 day students attending Moorhead state, about 9.8 per cent, or 542 students more than last year at this time. About 1,500 evening and off-campus part-time students are expected to enroll later in the quarter.

It is the sixth consecutive year of enrollment increases at the university, Engberg said, amounting to 36 per cent overall rise in the student population here since 1974 — up more than 1,600 students.

Engberg said that more than a quarter of all students at Moorhead State are North Dakota residents attending under the reciprocal tuition agreement between the two states. In the last six years, the number of North Dakota students attending Moorhead State under reciprocity has climbed from 500 to 1,700.

Moorhead State has also shown a 53 per cent increase in women students, up from 2,150 to 3,300 in those same six years, according to 10th day figures.

Part-time students — including evening and off-campus — have doubled in this decade, from 700 in 1970 to over 1,400 expected this year.

This is the third year in a row that enrollment at Moorhead State has eclipsed the previous record of 5,310 students set on the 10th day of classes in 1970. University watched enrollment decline gradually from 1970 to 1974, but since 1975 it's been rising at an average rate of six per cent a year.

Number of classroom credits has increased slightly less than the total number of students, Engberg said. Full time equivalency figure, based on total enrolled credits, has gone up nine per cent over last year. That number affects how much money the university is allocated under the state university system budget.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In 1915 we got our first phonograph, today called a record player. It was a Silverton from Sears and Roebuck. Among the records were three Uncle Josh records; laughing records, very popular in those days.

One was called "Uncle Josh and the Lightning Rod Salesman". The salesman pestered Uncle Josh until he gave him consent to put lightning rods on his house. The salesman came to put them up when Uncle Josh was not home.

When Uncle Josh came home he had put lightning rods on the house, the barn, the granary, the hen house, the smoke house, the little shack out back, the grindstone, and he had the old brindle cow backed in a corner trying to put a lightning rod on her.

Well, that salesman is still alive and well, only now he is selling red and green stop and go lights.

Sincerely,
Frank Armstrong

Samuel Gompers, president of the AFL, died on December 13, 1924, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Important Events in Labor History."

JUNE THRANE, nurse's aide at Oakland Park Nursing Home in Thief River Falls for 21 years, described her feelings in her presentation, "It Has Been Home," during an open house celebration conducted Sunday in honor of the Home's 25th anniversary. Looking on is Percy Nabben, one of the oldest residents at the home, whom Thrane has cared for during most of her 21 years while at the home.

Refund Given For Solar Home Improvements

Up to 60 per cent of what you spend for solar energy improvements on your home is refundable through state and federal income tax credits.

With the federal insulation and conservation credit, you can take a 15 per cent credit on the first $2,000 spent on insulation and weatherization projects that are crucial in the installation of solar energy systems. This credit can only be used on existing homes.

With the federal renewable energy credit, you can collect a 40 per cent credit on the first $10,000 you spend on active solar domestic hot water or space heating systems, or many passive solar systems, with the exception of greenhouses.

The federal renewable credit can be used on new or existing houses for expenditures between Jan. 1, 1980 and Dec. 31, 1984, but the house must be the taxpayer's principal residence. Labor costs are included in this credit, but not design costs, and swimming pools and their heaters are also excluded. Systems must have an expected life of five years.

The federal income tax credits are subtracted from the federal tax liability each year, but if the tax is smaller than the credit, there is no rebate given. Instead, the tax credit may be spread out over future years' tax liability. To apply for the credit, use federal tax form 5695.

The state of Minnesota will give a tax credit for 20 per cent of the first $10,000 spent on renewable energy. The credit covers systems similar to the federal credit, except it also will give credit for greenhouses and passive solar systems. To qualify, however, passive solar projects must meet certain minimum requirements set by state rules such as a certain amount of south-facing glazing and thermal mass. Individuals who rent can claim their principal residence for the state credit, provided the unit is in a building of six units or less, with the exception of condominiums, townhouses and cooperatives, which can have more than six units.

In addition, the market value of solar systems installed in homes are excluded from property tax valuation.

Copies of the Minnesota tax credit rules are available for 78 cents from the Documents Division, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, 55155. Ask for Income Tax Energy Credit Rule, 13MCAR, Section 1.6020.

Sales Workshop Offered At AVTI October 15th

"Analyzing Your Sales Techniques", a 3.5 hour seminar, will be offered by the Thief River Falls AVTI October 15 from 1-4:30 p.m. and again from 6:30-10 p.m. in room 120. Tuition is $8 per person.

Workshop leader, Joe Galdiano, Minneapolis, is on the staff of two community colleges teaching marketing, human relations, advertising, sales and credit and collections on a part-time basis. He acts as a consultant and trainer for a number of companies in the various facets of management development and personnel practices.

The workshop is designed to review, analyze and improve sales techniques. Some of the topics include: what makes you a sales personality? Who hears your story? What do you do before you sell: You've got the advantage — preparation; the presentation; the ultimate goal — closing the sale; a suggested sales plan; making sales presentations.

Pre-register by October 8 by contacting Adult Education, AVTI; phone 681-5424.

Titles Given To Amendments To Constitution

Secretary of state Joan Growe announces that she had assigned the titles to the constitutional amendments that will appear on the November 4 ballot. The titles are as follows:

I. Reapportionment: Transfer to a Bipartisan Commission: Shall the Minnesota constitution be amended to transfer from the legislature to a bipartisan commission the power to draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts?

II: Campaign Spending: Limits and Disclosure: Shall the Minnesota constitution be amended to require campaign spending limits for candidates for executive and legislative offices and public disclosure of campaign spending for all state offices?

III. Highway Bonds: Removal of Certain Restrictions: Shall the Minnesota constitution be amended to remove restrictions on the interest rate for, and the amount of trunk highway bonds?

IV. Initiative and Referendum: Establishment of: Shall the Minnesota constitution be amended to provide for Initiative and Referendum?

V. Notaries Public: Removal of Senate Approval: Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove the requirement that notaries public be approved by the Senate?

Secretary of state is required by Minnesota law to assign descriptive titles to constitutional amendments.

"Because there will be so many proposed amendments on the November 4 ballot, it is important that citizens now begin to familiarize themselves with the issues," Mrs. Growe said.

Prior to the election, the secretary of state's office will publish a borchure which will contain a purpose and effect statement which the attorney general is required to develop for each of the amendments. This statement will also be provided to each of the state's legal newspapers for publication several weeks before the election.

"It is our goal", Growe said, "to ensure that every citizen has the information he or she needs to make an informed decision on these proposed changes to our state's constitution."

MSU Writing Workshop Aids Accountants

A one-day workshop designed to help accountants write better will be offered October 8 at Moorhead state university, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Room 228 of Comstock memorial union.

The workshop, called "Make Words Work For You," is aimed at sharpening the writing skills of accountants, giving practical advice on how to draft clear and concise memos, reports, letters and financial statements.

Eight hours of professional education credits have been approved for the course by the North Dakota society of certified public accountants. Don Samelson, CPA and assistant professor of accounting at MSU, will teach the workshop.

To register, or for further information, contact the MSU continuing education division at 236-2181. Registrations are due by October 1.

Midwest Horse Show Extended To Three Days

Great Midwest international horse show has been expanded to three full days, plus an open show. "This year's show will feature two separate Appaloosa and quarter horse shows in addition to an open show," said show secretary Tove Altepeter of Crookston.

"Every year the entries have continued to increase. This, combined with high gasoline prices, was the reason we decided to hold a double show. Exhibitors will be able to compete in two shows at the Red River Valley winter shows building on the same weekend."

Sixteenth annual Great Midwest, sponsored by the Agassiz Riders, will begin with an open show Thursday evening, October 16.

Approved quarter horse and Appaloosa halter classes will be conducted the mornings of October 17 and 18. Afternoon performance and Saturday evening shows will include alternating performance classes.

Ken Beseman of Morris will judge the open classes. Appaloosa classes October 16 will be judged by Charles Water of Kendallville, IN., and James Nance of El Reno, OK., will judge the quarter horse classes. They will alternate classes for the remainder of the weekend.

Premium books for the show are now available from show secretary Tove Altepeter of Crookston or by calling 281-4798. Entries will close today (Monday).

The show is one of the largest in Minnesota and is completely indoors with stalls available for about 400 horses.

Dr. Stafford To Be Installed At Bemidji SU

In a series of events designed to involve academic and outlying communities, Dr. Rebecca Stafford will be installed during October as the fifth president in Bemidji state university's 61-year history. Stafford, the first woman appointed to the top administrative position at BSU, was selected last January following an extensive search process.

Inauguration events will officially begin October 23 with a BSU foundation dinner, planned for the Holiday Inn.

Howard Casmey, Minnesota commissioner of education, and Ken Peatross, executive secretary of the Minnesota board of teaching, will be the guest speakers Wednesday, October 29, at a noon Beaux Arts ballroom luncheon. Bemidji state department chairpersons, program directors and superintendents from Minnesota school districts are all expected to be in attendance.

Thursday, October 30, BSU faculty and staff will be in attendance at a 6 p.m. inauguration banquet at the Holiday Inn. Friday will feature the formal convocation beginning at 10 a.m. in the university gymnasium. State governmental and university board representatives will be joining members of the Bemidji state community, as well as those from visiting institutions, in full regalia for Stafford's installation.

An inaugural ball, open to BSU students, faculty, staff and community residents will conclude the activities. The ball is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m., Saturday, November 1, Holiday Inn poolside.

Name Director For VA Center In St. Cloud

A Minnesota native has been appointed director of the Veterans administration medical center in St. Cloud.

Robert T. Dacy, director of the VA medical center in Altoona, Pa, will replace Dr. Raymond E. Reinert, who retired.

Dacy joined the VA in 1946 as a staff social worker at the former VARO mental health clinic in St. Paul. He also worked as chief of social work service at VAMCs at Knoxville, Iowa, and Downey, IL.

He was chosen for the assistant director training program at the VAMC at Hines, IL, in 1963, and was assigned as assistant director at the VAMC in Erie, PA, in January 1965. He later served in the same capacity at medical centers in Brecksville and Cleveland, Ohio, and Chicago West Side before his appointment at Altoona in July 1976.

Dacy received his BS degree in 1939 and his MA degree in 1946 from the University of Minnesota and an MHA degree from the University of Northwestern in 1961.

Shogun Or President, Rent Is Free

Following comments are from the Newhouse News Service:

Last week was confusing for campaign watchers who watched on television. They were required to follow both a 20th century campaign for control of the United States and a 17th century campaign for control of Japan. There were so many similarities between the two battles that confusion was inevitable and the observer was left wondering whether there had been any progress at all in the business of choosing leaders in the last 380 years.

"Shogun," the TV version of James Clavell's powerful novel, occupied NBC for 12 hours of prime time during the week, preceded, followed and interrupted by news flashes and commercials pertaining to the battle to see who will become Shogun in November. The show, the news flashes and the commercials blurred into one great battle leaving viewers certain only that at the beginning of the 17th century, Lord Toronaga made it to the White House.

Japan was choosing not an emperor but a military ruler. So are we, according to the candidates. President Carter, made Shogun in 1976 on a campaign promise to cut defense spending by $7 billion, is promising us that he has failed, and that if reelected he will fail even better in the future. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, charging that President Carter has not failed well enough, says that as Shogun he would provide us with a margin of safety. Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., says we have to stop relying on bows and arrows (the MX missile) and go with the muskets (submarine-launched missiles).

The Japanese campaign was huge on ceremony and protocol. Bowing was required though scraping was optional. Anyone who thinks ceremony has gone away should consider the chair. Would there be an empty chair when two contending lords meet in Baltimore on Sept. 21, or would there not? The ladies who run the castle first said that there would be a chair, then that there would not. Lord Jimmy wanted the chair removed as much as he wanted to remove himself.

Lords Ronald and John wanted the chair to stay, and some of Lord Ronald's samurai protested bitterly that the ladies had promised to keep the chair. The ladies decided that not only would Lord Jimmy lose great face if the chair were kept, the ladies would lose face too, and the ceremony must proceed without the chair. Besides, Lord Jimmy is still very powerful in his own land, and his castle isn't all that far from Baltimore.

There were treachery, and stealths, and whispers and rumors and assassins in the night 380 years ago. There still are. One of Lord Jimmy's chief warriors, samurai Tim Kraft, was disarmed at the height of the battle by a rumor that he had broken the samurai code by sniffing in the presence of another of Lord Jimmy's warriors. Lord Jimmy's little brother was still held hostage in the castle on the hill where Lord Jimmy's allies were supposed to be in charge, but were working with his enemies.

There were problems in communicating from the battlefield to the castle then, and now. At a skirmish in Texas Lord Jimmy said that developments from the battlefield in Iran were encouraging, but the pigeon which was supposed to carry that word to the castle of Lord Muskie got eaten by a hawk, so the battle plan had to be redrawn. The aim of the campaign, then as now, was to take charge, command great armies, live in a nice castle with many servants and loyal retainers, and not worry about paying the rent.

The way you got to be Shogun was to chop the other guy's head off, or at least get him down on the ground and spray him with fishheads or other unpleasant substances. The TV version of the Japanese campaign made it seem exactly like our own. Heads were chopped off without a drop of blood flowing. Ships were buffeted by violent storms without rocking. As Lords Jimmy and Ronald and John hack, chop, swing and shoot at each other, observers from 17th century Japan would be confused, but no more than 20th century Americans watching last week's television campaigns.

Even the commercials got in the act. As the lords of both the 17th and 20th centuries pounded on each other, the tube applauded in song, "Reach out, reach out and touch someone." As the barbarian from the West exported modern technology to the Japanese warriors, he was interrupted by an American automobile lord assuring us that "Yankee ingenuity is alive and well."

We knew, at the end of the confusing week, who got to be Shogun. As to who will get to be president, the ancient Japanese had the right attitude. "You must leave Karma to Karma," said the heroine.

Obit For A Newspaper

Editor and publisher John Coleman of the Orchard Park (NY) Suburban Press wrote the following recently in his "Town Crier" column:

Another western New York community newspaper has bit the dust. After more than 75 years of operation, the Gowanda News & Observer announced recently it was ceasing publication.

The newspaper has been edited for the past 20 years by Edward Byrne, who nine years ago sold it to the Gowanda Pennysaver. The crusty Byrne, a fine journalist, has retired.

The owners cited steadily rising costs for their decision. In the future, they will incorporate community handouts and announcements into their pennysaver under the guise of news to fill four pages.

The number of community newspapers in western New York has declined substantially in the past decade, all victims of spiraling costs and shrinking advertising revenues. A few we receive in the mail as exchanges struggle against the odds — inflation and the diversion of substantial advertising dollars to the mass media and throw-away — to stay alive.

It is sad, tragic really, when a newspaper dies. No matter how mediocre the content, a newspaper gives its community identity, purpose and a sense of belonging. It helps hold a community together because it records the joys and tragedies and the strengths and frailties of the citizenry it serves. It is usually the community's only continuing history book, its prime source of the minute local detail you won't find anywhere else.

Leafing through any community newspaper, it sometimes is surprising to see how much the citizens do. They write books, win ball games, get promotions and graduate from college. They get married, have children and celebrate 50th anniversaries. They vote for other citizens who run the school board and set local tax rates. They make their positions known on political issues.

Sometimes, they get into accidents. Some steal and vandalize and get into hot water. But for every burglar or other malefactor, there are many more who volunteer their time and energy to help others. There are many more who care about their town and their neighbors, and do something about it.

Along with the negative side of the news that must record our shortcomings, a responsible community newspaper will balance its contents with the good and positive occurrences that make it all worthwhile. Each edition can be as satisfying to the editor as it is informative to the readers.

Contrary to some opinion, newspapers do pay attention to the positive things that people do. A community newspaper is closer to the people than any other medium. Most work harder for the community than any other professional or commercial enterprise.

Many years ago, a friend published a weekly in a nearby community. For some 20 years, he turned out a journal that did his community proud, even surviving two fires that would have forced most to give up. The community took its newspaper for granted.

Finally, he decided he no longer needed the life-death financial struggle of limited community support. He took an executive editorial position with a large daily, with twice the money for half the hours. Ironically, the day his last edition came off the press, local officials, the Chamber of Commerce and community leaders were at his doorstep begging him not to quit. The pledge of support was too late. His decision was made.

The town lost its newspaper, a good one, and has been without one since. In almost every instance, the newspaper obituary is the same.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Sitting on the riverbank, a fisherman glanced down to see a garter snake with a frog in its mouth. He caught the snake, extracted the frog to use for bait, then was struck with remorse for having deprived the reptile of its meal. Reaching in his coat pocket, he produced a pint flask and gave the snake a shot of the contents. In 10 minutes the snake was back with another frog.

KNUTE THORSGARD, a third-year medical student at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities will spend the next year in Thief River Falls with his wife, Nancy, and daughter, Marit, working with his father, Dr. E.O. Thorsgard. He will be joining other students in family practice and internal medicine who will experience medical practice in rural Minnesota communities.

Knute Thorsgard To Work With Father Here

Knute Thorsgard, a third-year medical student at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, will spend the next year working with his father, Dr. E.O. Thorsgard, in Thief River Falls.

Through the rural physician associate program at the university, Thorsgard and other students in family practice and internal medicine experience medical practice in rural Minnesota communities. The program, under the direction of Dr. John Verby, professor of family practice and community health, is beginning its 10th year as an optional educational experience for third-year medical students.

Each student receives a scholarship from the state and an additional amount from the local physician who acts as his or her tutor. Although they are not required to return to rural practice, the majority of the 340 students who have participated in the program and completed their medical education are now working as physicians in rural settings.

Eight departments of the university medical school participate in the program. Students receive two quarters of academic credit for the experience.

Thorsgard will be working closely with his father in the clinic and hospital and on house calls, becoming familiar with the daily work of the family practitioner or internist in a small community.

Thorsgard, a 1972 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, earned his undergraduate degree from Concordia college in Moorhead in 1976.

While in Thief River Falls, Thorsgard, his wife, Nancy, and daughter, Marit, will be living at 320 Merriam av. N.

If You Don't Like the Numbers Just Change The Calculations

The Department of Agriculture has decided to engage in "creative accounting." The grain embargo, drought, high interest rates and inflation particularly have made it hard to make a buck in rural America. Figures projected to come out of the Department of Agriculture would show a significant drop in net farm income.

Early projections showed that the net farm income would be down about 35 per cent from 1979 — a drop from $32.5 billion last year to as low as about $21 billion this year. Such figures are not helpful in getting the farm vote in an election year.

So, not wanting to show a drop of one-third in farm income, the Department of Agriculture has come up with a new method of calculating that income. . . it's creative accounting.

Although details of the new accounting method are not clear, the net result will be to increase projected farm income this year to some $34 billion and up the figure for 1979 to $39 billion. So, instead, of a drop of $11.5 billion, farmers have lost only $5 billion — or so the administration will say.

To arrive at these new figures, the Department of Agriculture eliminated some items that had previously been considered as income such as the value of commodities produced but not sold. In turn, they deleted from the expense side such items as housing provided for hired hands. Thus the new figures are based only on actual cash income and actual cash expenses.

What this means is that any carryover of grain from 1979, that was sold in 1980 will count as 1980 income. Under the old method it counted as 1979 income which is the year in which it was produced. So we cover up a bad year, like 1980, by counting as new income the money a farmer receives from grain he stored in 1979 and sold this year.

Well, the administration may have brightened the picture on paper and the figures in the headlines may look a little better, but I find that farmers aren't that easily fooled.

They know that nobody just put $6 billion in their checking accounts! It doesn't make much difference if the Washington accountants say farmers lost $5 billion rather than $11 billion in 1980. In fact the figures don't mean much at all to the farmer who couldn't get cash to start his crop this year, or to the farmer who will have no income because the drought took his crop.

Those figures won't mean much to rural businessmen either. The Administration can use any figures it wants, but local retailers know they aren't selling as much as they have in the past. Fewer cars and pickups are moving off the lots; fewer pieces of equipment are leaving the salesroom; in fact, in rural towns and cities less of everything is being sold.

If the Department of Agriculture really wants to help rural America, they should change policy, not accounting methods.

Here are some policy change suggestions:

(1) Lift the embargo. This will clearly not be done before the election, so soon afterward would be soon enough.

(2) Change Department of Agriculture policies to be a Department of Agriculture not a Department of Consumerism that battles producers on everything from nitrites to dietary content.

(3) More aggressively seek out international markets and keep food out of international politics. Selling Communist nations food (or anything else they can't shoot at us) is proper and uses up their hard currency so they can't buy weapons.

(4) The Department of Agriculture must recognize the enormous strength this nation gains through our unique ability to produce food. An ongoing cheap food policy by the Department of Agriculture weakens the whole fabric of agriculture and particularly the family farm.

Congress and the Lame Duck Session

Congress will undoubtedly be unable to complete its heavy legislative schedule before the October 4th adjournment date which means a post election session will be convened as early as one week after the November 4th general elections.

Such sessions, often referred to as "lame duck" meetings, have not been commonplace in recent years. A post election session occurred in 1974 and, previous to that, the last "lame duck" meeting following a presidential election was in 1948.

The term "lame duck" dates back to 18th century England when it was used to signify "a bankrupt businessman." By the 1830's the phrase was used to label politically bankrupt politicians and, during the 1920's, the phrase had been modernized and publicized by the campaign for the "lame duck amendment" which was ratified as the Twentieth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Prior to ratification, a newly-elected President did not assume office until March, while the old Congress, some of whose members had been defeated in November, met in December and held nominal legislative powers until March.

Under the Twentieth Amendment, November's winners are brought into office in January, and, in the absence of an emergency, the lame duck session has become a thing of the past, at least until now.

In recent years, approximately one-fourth of the Members of the House became lame ducks on election day. So, it is likely a large number of men and women who would participate in a lame duck session will have been relieved of the political responsibility of their actions. Furthermore, because it is a Presidential election year, we also face the possibility that a lame duck President would be given the opportunity to approve or veto Acts of Congress.

One of the reasons this "lame duck" session will be necessary is because, in 1974, the House authorized the use of an electronic voting system for recorded votes. Votes can be taken in 15 to 20 minutes, while it used to take about 35 minutes to call the roll. Since this system was introduced, however, the number of recorded votes has been increased and used as a tool by Members of both parties to frustrate the legislative process.

Another reason is that the House leadership has done a haphazard job of scheduling legislative business during this session. Schedules are frequently changed abruptly without prior notification, measures are often partially debated and then deferred for final action, and popular legislation is often approved while more pressing matters are left for later consideration.

Perhaps the biggest factor this year is the congressional budget process. Under the congressional budget procedure, the statutory deadline for approval of the second budget resolution, which sets binding ceilings, is supposed to be September 15. That date was chosen to make sure that the implementation of the budget is running smoothly at the beginning of the new fiscal year, which starts October 1. Here we are in mid to late September and nothing has been accomplished on the second resolution and it is apparent nothing will be done until after the election.

Holding a lame duck session of Congress is no way to run the country. After the election many Members will know they are not coming back in 1981 and they may feel they can vote the way they want because they will not have to account for their vote. It is also possible the President will not be reelected and that he may not hold true to the will of the people. A lame duck session would only add to the uncertainty that people already feel about government. We should not have people voting on various laws without the obligation of being responsible to their constituency.

Mrs. Orlando Chervestad
Oklee, Minn.

The following from the Clearwater congregation motored to Crookston Sunday to take in the dedication of the new Grace Lutheran church: Pastor Keeler and wife Lovonne, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hofstad, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Torkel Gunderson and Mable Hofstad.

Orlando and Helen Chervestad visited Sunday evening at the Hofstad brothers home. They visited with Tommy who recently returned home from Chester, Mont. Tommy worked at the grain farm Marlan Skreland worked here for many years. The farmer has a dozen oil wells on his land pumping barrels of oil daily.

Lovonne visited with neighbor Luela Peterson Tuesday afternoon.

Korydon and Carol Chervestad entertained Friday evening in honor of Aaron's sixth birthday at a supper and birthday cake enjoyed by great-grandmothers Sena Chervestad and Signe Evenson, grandparents, Orlando and Helen Chervestad, Brad and Lana Nelson, Ryan, Kyle, Quinten and Tyler, Robert Platen, Kevin, Danny and Dwayne Nelson, Andy and Karen Peterson, Isaac and Paul.

Cindy Myrum and friend from Chisholm spent the weekend doing some grouse hunting and were guests at the Fred Lundeen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lundeen attended a family reunion and pot luck supper at the John Sundlund home in Dakota Sunday and to help John, 89 and his wife Birdie, 82, celebrate their birthdays. Birdie is Evelyn's oldest sister. Evelyn and Fred were weekend overnight guests at brother Oscar and Sally Swanson's home in Grafton and the Herbert Wagners of St. Thomas.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gunderson of Fosston and brother Clarence Gunderson and son of Minneapolis visited at the Julian Gunderson home. Archie and Ella have sold their farm recently and are busy building their new home adjacent to the farm near the lake.

Some people only give financial support to the large, well-known charities. That's fine, but there are also a lot of small agencies providing vital aid to a lot of people. And United Way helps them do it. Because it helps not just the well-known causes, but those people you wouldn't turn your back on if you knew how much they really needed your help.

Thanks to you, it works. For all of us.

Air Force Seeks Graduates For Pilot Training

U.S. air force is conducting a special recruiting drive seeking men and women who are college graduates for pilot and navigator training.

Men and women with a four-year degree from an accredited institution, or who will soon graduate, and are physically and mentally qualified, are eligible to apply, according to Sgt. Roger Fortin, air force recruiter at 2015 Library Circle in Grand Forks.

Those selected will attend officer training school (OTS) near San Antonio, Texas, where graduates are commissioned second lieutenants in the air force. Upon graduation from OTS, they enter undergraduate pilot training (UPT) at one of several bases throughout the South and Southwest, or undergraduate navigator training (UNT) at Mather air force base, located near Sacramento, CA.

"After earning their pilot's or navagator's wings," Sgt. Fortin said, "they are assigned flying missions at operational units throughout the air force in aircraft ranging in size from small jets to large transports."

Further information about air force flying and other air force service is available from Sgt. Roger Fortin at 2015 Library Circle, Grand Forks, ND or by calling 701-775-9361 collect.

On December 1, 1914, the President appointed the Colorado Coal Commission which investigated the Ludlow Massacre and labor conditions in Colorado coal mines following an unsuccessful strike by the United Mine Workers, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Important Events in Labor History."

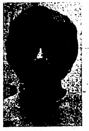
Brenda Ulrich Commended For Scholarship



Brenda J. Ulrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ulrich, route 1, St. Hilaire, has received a letter of commendation from the National Merit scholarship corporation, according to Frank Hamerlinck, principal at Lincoln high school.

More than one million students entered the 1981 program by taking the PSAT-NMSQT in 1979. About 33,000 of these students throughout the United States will receive a commendation for outstanding test performance.

Commended students rank below the level required for program semifinalists — the only participants who will continue in the 1981 competition for merit scholarships. Nonetheless, commended students have shown exceptional academic promise by scoring among the top five per cent of program participants, Hamerlinck said.

"To be designated a commended student in the program is an attainment deserving of public recognition," the principal added. "The continued educational and personal development of such students will benefit the entire nation."

Commended students who requested it have been referred as worthy candidates to admissions and financial aid officers at two higher education institutions of their choice. The referral service and program recognition may result in assistance for these students as they pursue their educational goals.

EQB Reports Examine Power Plant Siting

Minnesota environmental quality board (EQB) chairman Art Sidner recently released the latest in a continuing series of reports on power plant siting and transmission line routing entitled, "Biological Effects and Physical Characteristics of Fields, Ions and Shock."

The 164-page report prepared for the EQB by Dow Associates, Inc. of Berkeley, CA reviews relevant scientific and medical information on electric and magnetic fields caused by high voltage transmission lines and their effects on living organisms and objects.

Viewed as an update of the 1977 report, "Public Health and Safety Effects of High Voltage Transmission Lines" prepared by the department of health for EQB, this latest report considers ac and dc transmission lines and discusses at length the biological effects of air ions.

Authors of the report conclude that laboratory studies have shown electric fields can cause measurable biological "effects" under certain conditions. They caution, however, that there is a significant difference between biological "effects" and "harm" and that great care must be taken in transferring laboratory findings to the transmission line environment.

The report is being reviewed by the Minnesota department of health and by the technical review committee established by Sidner.

DID YOU KNOW?

University Dispenses Free Drinks

The University of Washington now has a $12,000 cocktail lounge, which dispenses free booze to students selected to study the influence of social factors on drinking behavior. The school's avowed purpose is to help people become "responsible drinkers."

Quite aside from the fact that there is no such animal—anyone who uses alcoholic beverages acts in an irresponsible manner—this silly program helps to illustrate why, as a group, the most highly educated Americans are also the most heavily addicted to alcohol.

Every Gallup poll ever taken on this subject shows that the higher the level of formal education received, the more likely an American is to drink liquor. Surely this says something loud and clear about the kind of "education" most Americans are receiving.

FINAL COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PROGRAM PLAN

—State of Minnesota—

Program Year October 1, 1980 to September 30, 1981

The State Department of Public Welfare and local County Social Service Agencies have jointly developed a plan of social service for the State of Minnesota. Social services provided under this final plan are designed to help individuals achieve the maximum level of independent living and self support of which they are capable; to prevent and remedy neglect, abuse and exploitation of children and adults; and to preserve, reunite and strengthen families. A proposed plan was previously developed and published on July 1, 1980. Based on public comments and suggestions there are some differences from the proposed plan.

- Some counties have made specific modifications in their estimated expenditures and number of people to be served.
- One county has elected to delete group eligibility for two specific services.
- One county has elected to provide group eligibility for selected services.
- Two counties participating in the State Sliding Fee Experimental Program for the service Day Care-Children have made changes in specific client categories.

The plan contains detailed information concerning these changes.

There are variations in the plan from county to county. In each county, services to be provided and the people eligible were selected from the following:

SERVICES:

Adoption
Chore
Counseling
Developmental Achievement
Day Care - Children
Day Care - Adult
Educational Assistance
Employability
Family Planning
Foster Care for Adults
Foster Care for Children
Health
Home Delivered & Congregate Meals
Homemaking
Housing
Information & Referral
Legal Money Management
Protection - Children
Protection - Adult
Residential Treatment
Social & Recreational Transportation

ELIGIBILITY:

Fully Paid by Federal, State or County Funds
- Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.
- Recipients of Supplemental Security Income and Minnesota Supplementary Assistance.
- Persons whose annual gross income is below the following:

$ 6,694 for a 1 person family.
$ 8,753 for a 2 person family.
$10,813 for a 3 person family.
$12,873 for a 4 person family.
$14,933 for a 5 person family.
$16,993 for a 6 person family.
$17,378 for a 7 person family.
$17,765 for a 8 person family.
$18,051 for a 9 person family.
$18,537 for a family of 10 or more persons.

Fees for Services:
- Persons whose gross family income is greater than shown in the above table may be eligible for services on a fee basis related to income.

Services Without Regard to Income:
- Information and Referral.
- Protection — Children.
- Protection — Adult.

FUNDING:

Estimated expenditures for Program Year for an estimated 591,184 units of service to persons are as follows:

Total Federal allotment	$ 50,827,000
State allotment	$ 18,991,206
Local funding	$ 57,113,482
Other funding	$ 1,511,791
TOTAL	$128,443,479

MARV HANSON
Concerned About Today & Tomorrow

FARMING AND AGRICULTURE They're the backbone of Northwest Minnesota. That's why Marv Hanson has worked hard to improve our roads and highways to keep our crops moving to market and strongly supports increased promotion of our ag. products.

Concerned about rising farm real estate taxes, Marv has proposed that farmland valuations be based on what those lands can produce for a farmer and his family. He does not believe speculative sales prices are a fair basis for assessing ag. lands. He wants a change.

SENIOR CITIZENS Our senior citizens should be able to live independently with security and dignity. Marv Hanson worked to ease taxes, improve transportation, provide adequate housing and expand opportunities for older citizens.

EDUCATION It's our investment for the future. Marv Hanson is determined that our schools receive the support they need. He's sought recognition of the special needs of schools in rural areas such as ours and pushed for stronger support of our community colleges and vocational programs. Marv has proposed revising state school aids so our local schools receive their fair share. The future for our youth and for ourselves depends on the effort we make now.

TAX REFORM Marv Hanson worked to inflation-proof state income taxes so the average Minnesota taxpayer doesn't have to bear the major tax burden in our state. State income taxes were deflated by indexing the tax brackets. No more automatic tax increases as occurred previously when taxpayers were pushed into higher tax brackets while trying to keep up with inflation.

He's concerned about taxes on small business and has proposed a special real estate tax classification for them. He wants to see the Minnesota income tax rate on small business corporations reduced on the first $50,000 net income.

The crushing impact of inheritance taxes on family farms and small businesses was substantially reduced and Minnesota's gift tax was totally repealed through Marv's efforts.

He's committed to making Minnesota's taxes fair and equitable.

HOMEOWNERS Homeowners benefited from many changes in real estate taxes which Marv Hanson proposed and saw enacted. The homestead credit was increased for 1980 and will be increased again to 58% of taxes payable in 1981 with a maximum credit of $650.00 Just a few years ago the credit was only $350.00 maximum. These changes have helped to reduce real estate taxes for homeowners.

re-elect MARV HANSON your State Senator

Prowlers Deserve Praise

Congratulations are in order for the Lincoln high school football players and coaches following Saturday's chest-pounding 33-21 win over Moorhead on a beautiful fall evening at Moorhead State University's Alex Nemzek Field. The Prowlers, their coaches and fans will cherish for a long time the memory of the first Thief River Falls football win over Moorhead in 40 years.

It was a determined effort by the Prowlers who played a nearly flawless defensive game in the first half, then staged two gutsy second half come-backs to win. In the past, out-manned Thief River Falls has stayed with the perennially strong Moorhead teams for perhaps a half before losing ground. Saturday it was the Spuds who were out-played in the later stages of the game.

Thief River Falls' game-opening touchdown drive set the tempo for the night. The 63-yard, 16-play march that took the first 8:01 of the game was a magnificent piece of football by the Prowlers. It was easily their best drive of the year and probably rivals anything most Thief River Falls football fans can remember over the years. The long touchdown strikes that the Prowlers have been getting with stunning regularity this fall are naturally great, but a drive like the Prowlers put together at the start Saturday is a real confidence-builder. It proved in a hurry that Thief River Falls could match up to Moorhead physically as the Prowlers dominated the line of scrimmage.

"That first drive was really a good indication of what we could do," confirmed Thief River Falls head coach John Schmitz. "We had tremendous blocking by our line."

Maybe even more impressive was the way Thief River Falls battled from behind in the second half. The Prowlers in the past might have folded when the Spuds struck for a 59-yard touchdown pass with just 2:11 left in the first half, and then took the second half kickoff downfield in just nine plays to go ahead 14-8 only 3:19 into the third quarter. But the game Prowlers battled back to tie it 14-14. And even when a 31-yard Moorhead touchdown pass rebuilt the Spuds lead to 21-14 just four plays later the Prowlers did not fold. Instead they scored three fourth quarter touchdowns and were marching toward a fourth score when the game ended with Thief River Falls at the Moorhead 12-yard line.

It was an outstanding effort by the Prowlers; maybe one of their best performances ever. It certainly ranks up there with Thief River Falls' 12-6 win over No. 1-rated St. Cloud Apollo in 1972 and rivals last year's 22-21 upset of No. 2-ranked Bemidji.

Since Thief River Falls hadn't beaten Moorhead in 13 tries since 1940, the outcome has to be considered an upset. But Moorhead coach Craig McComb said, "I wasn't surprised by Thief River's strength. I knew they had a good football team. We just didn't play a good football game and they did."

TRF Off To A Surprising Start

Even the most optimistic Thief River Falls football fan has to be a little surprised at the Prowlers' strong 4-1 start this fall. After all, this is a team that returned just one offensive and three defensive starters off a 3-6 club from a year ago. And to complicate matters, the coaching staff was reshuffled just prior to the start of 1980 preseason practice drills when Gene Jurgens, the Prowlers' head coach since 1976, resigned to accept a job opportunity in Fergus Falls.

But things have obviously worked out well for new head coach John Schmitz and his inexperienced Prowlers. They opened with a mild upset of Grand Forks Red River 12-7; handled Detroit Lakes 32-21; challenged No. 2-rated Class AA power Grand Rapids 14-6 through three quarters before losing 30-6; dominated Staples 29-7; and Saturday night stunned Moorhead 33-21.

That puts Thief River Falls in pretty good shape heading into the Prowlers' season-ending Northwest Athletic Conference schedule against Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston. Thief River Falls will be at Bemidji Friday to begin its NWAC slate.

"It sure gives us the feeling that we are capable (of winning the conference)," said Schmitz about the Prowlers' strong nonconference record. "But we have talked very little about the conference. We just want to take them one at a time, beginning with Bemidji."

Unbeaten Crookston, the defending Northwest Athletic Conference champion, has left little doubt that the Pirates are the team to beat again this year in the NWAC. But Thief River Falls, if the Prowlers play up to the high standard they've set for themselves, can certainly be a big factor in the pennant race.

Miscellaneous

+Senior Dean Dokkin continued his impressive punting Saturday in Thief River Falls' 33-21 football win over Moorhead. The 6-1, 198-pounder averaged an NFL-style 46.3 yards on three punts, including an eye-opening 66-yarder that must have covered 50 yards in the air. That bettered a 62-yarder he hit earlier this year. His Northwest Athletic Conference-best 38.7-yard average on 18 punts has taken the Prowlers out of the hole several times already. His 66-yarder against the Spuds came from the Thief River Falls 13 and traveled to the Moorhead 21.

+Goalie Marchell Cuppett of Thief River Falls, a junior on the University of North Dakota women's field hockey team, posted an 0.64 goals-against-average through the first 11 Sioux games this fall. She gave up seven goals in 11 games, posting five shutouts in leading UND to a 9-2 record before heading to the North Country invitational at Bemidji over the weekend, reports UND sports information director Lee Bohnet.

+ Hallock high school will have an asphalt surfaced track in time for the 1981 track season after a group of concerned parents agreed to spearhead a campaign to raise $8,000 for the project. It was pointed out that Hallock had more boys and girls out for track last spring than any other sport at the school, with nearly one-third of the student body participating in the sport.

First TRF Football Win Over Moorhead Since 1940 . . .

Prowlers End Spuds Domination, 33-21

Thief River Falls achieved an athletic milestone Saturday night when the Lincoln high school football team knocked off Moorhead 33-21 on the Alex Nemzek Field at Moorhead State University. It was the Prowlers' first gridiron win over the Spuds since 1940. Granted, the two haven't met on a regular basis all those years, but Moorhead had won all 13 meetings during that span, including four straight since the often-interrupted series was resumed in 1976. And that included lopsided scores like 46-6, 49-14 and 41-14 last fall.

"The kids played very well. It feels really good to beat Moorhead," said a proud John Schmitz, Thief River Falls' first-year head coach who has the Prowlers 4-1 heading into a string of four straight season-ending Northwest Athletic Conference games against Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

A week earlier Thief River Falls' defense starred in a 29-7 victory over Staples. Saturday night the spotlight belonged to the offense as the Prowlers racked up a remarkable 406 yards worth of offense against the traditionally strong Spuds.

The Prowlers, who had shown a penchant for sudden scoring strikes from long range through the first month of the season, used ball control to beat the Spuds, rattling off 62 rushing plays that netted 356 yards. Junior halfback Tom Ose had his best day as a Prowler, rushing for 126 yards and averaging seven yards on 18 carries. Fullback Scott Kezar bulled his way for 96 yards, quarterback Scott Wiebolt added 73 and halfback Dan Odegaard contributed 58 on just nine carries.

But the real stars were the front line people: center Mark Harder; guards Rob Jorstad and Wade Hruby; tackles Dean Dokkin and Dave Kays; and tight end Greg Harder. That group dominated the Spuds with their crisp blocking that gave the backs room to run.

"The line just did a super job blocking from end-to-end," explained Schmitz. "We were getting the yards. Our option was working well, and we got some tremendous blocks by our line."

Moorhead coach Craig McComb naturally wasn't as enthused about the outcome that dropped his Spuds to 2-3 for the year.

"It was very disappointing," he said of the defeat as he walked off the MSU field. "We played poorly and they played very well."

Thief River Falls started in impressive fashion by taking the opening kickoff and smartly marching it 63 yards in 16 nearly flawless plays for an 8-0 head start. It began with a game-opening 13-yard burst by Odegaard and included a 14-yard sprint through the middle by Kezar to the Moorhead 32; a fourth-and-one quarterback sneak by Wiebolt to the Moorhead 10; and was capped by Odegaard's two-yard touchdown run. Odegaard took a late pitch around the left side, pulling out of the grasp of defensive back Mark Rice to reach the end zone. Weibolt hit Kent Kainz with a dump pass over the middle on the conversion. The drive ate up the first eight minutes of the game.

And while the offense performed remarkably well, Thief River Falls' defense wasn't taking a back seat. The Prowlers limited Moorhead's ground game to just 139 yards, with the Spuds averaging just 3.8 yards per carry.

But an outstanding first half defensive effort was marred by a late Moorhead score when wide receiver-turned quarterback Reid Christopherson hit Brian Leines with a 59-yard touchdown pass just 2:11 before intermission. Leines was wide open behind the Thief River Falls secondary, and Christopherson's pass was right on target. Hruby broke though to stop Bill Fay short on the goal line on the Spuds' try for a tying two-point conversion.

Moorhead appeared to be in high gear at the start of the second half when the Spuds covered 63 yards in nine quick plays after receiving the kickoff. Christopherson rolled to his right to find runningback Kurt Larson for a 30-yard pass play to the Thief River Falls 28 for the drive's biggest gain, with Larson then bouncing off tackles on a 13-yard carry to the Thief River Falls eight. Three plays later Larson, hit at the line of scrimmage, carried two defenders into the end zone from the one. Fay's two-point conversion run made it 14-8 with just 3:19 elapsed in the second half.

But Thief River Falls responded with a 72-yard touchdown march in 11 plays, with Wiebolt turning a third-and-10 play into a 17-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Keith Grochow. It was a straight drop-back for Wiebolt, who put a nice soft touch on the ball for Grochow, who made a fingertip reception as he crossed through the middle of the Moorhead secondary with 3:46 left in the third quarter.

Four plays later it was Moorhead back on top 21-14 as Christopherson laid a perfectly thrown 31-yard touchdown pass into the hands of John Stearns, who was a half step behind two Thief River Falls defensive backs on the right sidelines. Christopherson added the conversion kick.

Thief River Falls' gutsy performance produced another comeback, however, when the Prowlers rattled off gains of 33 and 35 yards on back-to-back plays to set up a three-yard Wiebolt touchdown run with 7:04 remaining in the game. Kezar was wide open on a fullback swing pass against the flow that covered 33 yards to the Moorhead 38. And on the very next play Ose sped 33 yards around the right side to the Moorhead three. Wiebolt followed his blockers to the right corner for the touchdown, tumbling into the end zone after being upended at the goal line. But the same play came up short on the conversion, leaving the Prowlers one-point shy, 21-20.

It didn't take long to make up that deficit, though. Moorhead fumbled on its first snap after the kickoff, with Hruby recovering for the Prowlers at the Moorhead 45. Odegaard went 25 yards with a reverse on first down, with Ose getting the go-ahead touchdown on a six-yard sweep to the right on a pitch-out with 4:35 left.

Moorhead ran out of downs at the Spuds' 35 with 2:53 to play, and the Prowlers followed with an insurance touchdown, a four-yard run off right tackle by Kezar, who scored standing up with just 52 seconds on the clock.

"Our big concern in the second half was, were we going to be able to stop them?" admitted Schmitz. "But the kids were confident they would win; they never thought about losing the game."

200-YARD INDIVIDUAL MEDLEY swimmer Mary Geatz, a Thief River Falls sophomore, neared the wall for a turn on the backstroke leg of the event during Thursday's high school swimming meet involving the Prowlers, Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River in the Franklin middle school pool. The Prowlers defeated both the Redskins and Roughriders in the double-dual meet competition.

Central, EGF Runners Win Races At Grafton

Grand Forks Central and East Grand Forks won varsity races Thursday in the Grafton invitational high school cross country meet.

Central, with two-time defending North Dakota state champion Jim Herberg running a 15:48 over the 3.2-mile course, took the boys title with 41 points, followed by Thief River Falls 62, Grand Forks Red River 72, East Grand Forks 79, Belcourt 110 and Crookston 159.

East Grand Forks won the girls crown with 32 points, followed by Thief River Falls 46, Fort Totten 110 and Belcourt 111.

Elsewhere, Thief River Falls emerged the winner in the junior varsity race while Grand Forks and Schroeder runners won the junior high and seventh and eighth-grade races.

"Our best performances came from the girls varsity and the boys junior varsity," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer.

The Thief River Falls girls, even without their top two runners, closed the point spread on a strong East Grand Forks squad. Susie Hanna, the Prowlers' No. 1 runner missed the meet because of a sore back, and Sherry Sabo, the team's No. 2 runner, was sidelined because of illness.

That left the Prowlers with four eighth graders and two juniors running in the girls varsity, with eighth graders Trisha Armstrong, Jackie Thune, Delaine Johnson and Jina Mules all finishing among the top 11 runners.

"I was very happy to be only six points away from East Grand Forks without our top two runners," mentioned Dyer.

Thief River Falls boys junior varsity continued to show well with a win at Grafton. Tom Kenville led Thief River Falls with a third place finish that earned him a spot on the Prowlers' varsity for a Tuesday race at East Grand Forks.

"The boys varsity reached one of its goals by beating Red River," mentioned Dyer, "but I had hoped we'd be closer to Central. I think we ran better as a team at Grafton, but we're still having trouble keeping our fourth and fifth runners in the pack."

Thief River Falls invitational meet — the Prowlers' only home appearance of the season, will be run Thursday on the Thief River Country Club golf course beginning at 4 p.m.

Otters Upset Jacks 20-13 In NWAC Play

The Otters, struggling through a scoreless three-game losing streak, overcame a 13-6 fourth quarter deficit to win it.

Dan Snustad, who opened the game with an eight-yard touchdown run hauled in a 16-yard pass from Tony Dosen to start the Otters' fourth quarter rally. He later scored from the eight-yard line as Fergus Falls improved its record to 2-3, 1-1 in the NWAC.

Bemidji, now 3-2 overall, was making its first NWAC start. The Lumberjacks scored on a 12-yard John Herath-to-Troy Hendricks pass and on a nine-yard Pat Erhart run.

Northwest Athletic Conference competition awaits Bemidji again this Friday when the Lumberjacks will host Thief River Falls. Fergus Falls will be at Moorhead for a nonconference game that night.

EGF — Breckenridge

East Grand Forks quarterback Jeff Strandell scored on touchdown runs of four and 44 yards and hit Troy Laidley with a 46-yard touchdown pass as the Green Wave posted a surprisingly easy 21-0 Thursday night victory over a well-regarded Breckenridge ball club.

First Northwest Atehletic Conference game of the season awaits the 4-1 Green Wave Friday when East Grand Forks visits Crookston. The 4-0 Pirates, idle during the weekend, will be at Breckenridge Tuesday.

Triangular Tennis Match Has 3-Way Tie

A girls high school tennis triangular Friday in Thief River Falls produced a standoff as Thief River Falls, Moorhead and East Grand Forks all finished the day with five points.

All three matches ended with 3-2 scores as Thief River Falls beat East Grand Forks but lost to Moorhead, with the Green Wave, in turn, knocking off the Spuds.

Thief River Falls' frustrating setback to Moorhead included a trio of three-set losses.

The Prowlers will close out their 1980 regular season schedule this week by hosting Roseau Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. and them driving to Crookston Thursday for a 4 p.m. match.

North Half Region 8AA tournament play starts Friday, Oct. 10, in Fargo.

Roseau County Lake Converted Into A Refuge

Marvins lake in Roseau county near the Canadian border has been designated a waterfowl refuge by the Department of Natural Resources and closed to waterfowl hunting this year.

The lake is four miles northwest of Warroad.

Game managers said that ducks and geese have had virtually no secluded resting areas in the vicinity and it is hoped that the refuge will hold migrating birds in the area later in the fall.

They said better field hunting of mallards and Canada geese might result from establishment of the refuge.

The lake has been posted.

Outboard Use Is Restricted On Some Lakes

Department of Natural Resources reminded hunters that motor boats are not allowed from Oct. 4 through Nov. 22 on certain lakes.

These waters have been designated "migratory waterfowl feeding and resting areas" and are listed as follows:

CONCENTRATING BEFORE taking her starting position, Betsie Hallstrom of Thief River Falls (lane 4) awaited the start of the 50-yard freestyle during Thursday's high school swimming meet involving the Prowlers, Grand Forks Red River and Grand Forks Central in the Franklin middle school pool. Thief River Falls beat both Central 64-19 and Red River 55-28 in the double-dual competition. The Prowlers, who will be at Moorhead Tuesday, will host Fargo South Thursday.

TRF Girls Win Prowler Relays

Winning seven of nine events, host Thief River Falls was a surprisingly easy winner Saturday in the annual Prowler girls relays high school swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls ran away with things by scoring 50 points, followed by Park Rapids with 29, Bemidji 24, Fargo Shanley 23 and Detroit Lakes 9.

The outcome surprised even Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "The kids out-did themselves," he said. "They were doing things they had no right to be doing. They had good splits all the way around. It was just outstanding."

Thief River Falls wins came in the 200-yard freestyle (Brenda Lund, Shari McGann, Shelley McGann, Kathy Dillon); 200-yard backstroke (Mary Geatz, Karen Dillon, Sarah Green, Andrea Lia); 200-yard breaststroke (Franki Kuyath, Karla Lokken, Betsie Hallstrom, Robyn Dallmann); 800-yard freestyle (Shelley McGann, Geatz, Kuyath, Kathy Dillon); diving (Lund, Lisa Desrocher, Lori Swanson); 200-yard medley (Green, Kuyath, Joan Glauque, Hallstrom); and the 400-yard freestyle (Geatz, Shari McGann, Shelley McGann, Kathy Dillon).

Shanley took the other two events — the 600-yard individual medley and the 200-yard butterfly where the Deacons touched-out the Prowlers 2:09.39 to 2:09.70.

Another multiple team event awaits the Prowlers Saturday when they will participate in the Fergus Falls invitational.

Junior varsity competition followed the pattern set by the varsity Saturday as Thief River Falls entries won five of the six events to win that portion of the meet with 33 points, followed by Detroit Lakes 17, Bemidji 14 and Park Rapids 14.

Team totals — Thief River Falls 50, Park Rapids 29, Bemidji 24, Fargo Shanley 23, Detroit Lakes 9. Junior varsity — Thief River Falls 33, Detroit Lakes 17, Bemidji 14, Park Rapids 14.

Ten Rules Of Safety Listed For Hunters

There's a sentence in a pilot's flight manual that goes something like this: 'When you enter the cockpit of this aircraft, you become part of a system over which you have control — both in terms of operation and safe handling. You are the only one who can make the system safe or unsafe."

Think about that statement for a moment. The same is true of the shooter, whether a hunter, target shooter or casual weekend plinker. From the time he picks up a firearm, the shooter becomes a part of a system over which he has complete control. He is the only part of the system that can make a gun safe or unsafe.

Hunting and target shooting are among the safest of all sports, and we can all keep them that way if we adopt 10 basic rules of conduct as our Resolutions for 1980 and beyond. They're mostly basic common sense. Here they are, according to the national shooting sports foundation:

+Don't rely on your gun's safety. Treat every gun as if it were loaded and ready to fire.

+Never cross a fence, climb a tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun.

+Never load or carry a loaded gun until you are ready to use it.

+Watch your muzzle so the other fellow doesn't have to.

+Keep guns and ammunition separately and in locked storage.

+Know the range of your gun. Remember, even a 22 rimfire can travel over one mile.

+Always wear eye and ear protection when shooting.

+Always be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions. Only carry ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are using.

That's really not so hard to remember and, if you want to know more, write SAAMI Safety Series, 1075 Post Road, Riverside, CT 06878. We have booklets, posters, ads and a whole program dedicated to keeping a safe sport safe. Remember, firearms safety depends on you.

ONE OF THE top divers in the state, Lincoln high school senior Brenda Lund was a winner again Thursday as Thief River Falls hosted Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River in a double-dual swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool. The Prowlers won both portions of the meet, beating the Redskins 64-19 and knocking off the Roughriders 55-28.

Bobcats Shut Out Cards 38-0 To Remain Unbeaten

Paul Gunderson scored twice and rushed for 98 yards on 13 carries Friday as unbeaten Oklee defeated winless Plummer 38-0 in a North Tri County Conference nine-man high school football game played at Plummer.

The Bobcats scored three times in the second quarter to take an 18-0 lead into halftime, with Gunderson scoring on runs of four and one yard, and quarterback Richard Bronken getting the first of his two touchdowns on a 10-yard run.

"They (Plummer) moved the ball well on us," mentioned Oklee coach Dale Svaren, "but if you shut them out you have to be satisfied."

"Until we got down to their 20-yard line we moved the ball well on them," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "But when it came time for the big play we couldn't put it in."

Brad Rosten led the Cardinals with a performance that featured over 200 yards worth of total offense — 65 yards rushing and 137 yards in kick returns. The Cardinals ran and passed for 193 yards against the Oklee defense.

Rosten, Brian Delage, Ken Fisher and Dean Sletten were the Plummer leaders on defense, with the 5-4, 111-pound Delage coming up with 11 solo tackles.

"We saw some good things out there; we're improving, and that's the big thing," pointed out Brantl.

Bronken, playing a safety on defense, led the Bobcats' defensive charts with 22 points. Linebacker Dennis Magnell had 19 and tackle Randy Chaput had 18.

Oklee, after opening the year with four of its first five games on the road, will celebrate homecoming Friday against Erskine. Plummer, at 0-5 at the opposite end of the North Tri County Conference standings from Oklee, will be at Clearbrook Friday.

Clearbrook 44
Goodridge 20

Goodridge, playing its third game in eight days, ran out of stamina Friday in a 44-20 North Tri County Conference loss to Clearbrook.

"We were physically wore out," admitted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "Mentally and physically we just weren't there. Three games in eight days — including two overtime games — took a lot out of us."

A five-yard Rod Hill Clearbrook touchdown was matched by the Huskies' Kurt Wiseth in the first quarter, but the visiting Hornets broke away to a 24-6 halftime lead, including a half-ending 59-yard touchdown pass from Paul Ostby to Wayne Pulford that Nelson called a "back-breaker."

The Huskies, who despite a 1-4 start have committed very few turnovers, lost two fumbles and had two passes intercepted by Clearbrook.

Goodridge will be at Gonvick Friday.

Middle River 26
Erskine 0

Middle River, after dropping its 1980 season opener to Clearbrook 20-12, ran its winning streak to four games Friday with a 26-0 North Tri County Conference shutout of Erskine.

"We played well," noted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Since the first game it's been going good; that first one was a bummer. But the first game won't hurt us if we can win the rest; we can still win the conference title."

Scott McKeever scored twice for the Skippers at Erskine while quarterback Delray Ness scored once and passed for another touchdown.

Eugene Kaml, a defensive back and offensive end had "an outstanding game," according to Sparby. Kaml returned two pass interceptions 60 yards, caught a 10-yard touchdown pass from Ness and hauled in another 31-yarder.

McKeever rushed for 163 yards on 20 carries to lead the Skippers' offense while Ness, a defensive lineman, led the shutout effort with 12 tackles.

Middle River will visit Mentor Friday.

Two mistakes on punt plays cost Marshall County Central a pair of first quarter touchdowns Friday and the Nordics wound up losing a 26-8 Top of the State Conference nine-man football game to Argyle.

The Eagles' John Hedquist fell on a blocked punt in the Marshall County Central end zone to start the scoring, and Scott Labine went in from the one after an Argyle punt hit a Newfolden player on the shoulder and was recovered inside the Nordics' 15.

Marshall County Central came back to cut the margin to 14-8 on a three-yard Bill Johnson touchdown and a two-point conversion run by Johnson. And the Nordics had a chance to pull even at the end of the first half but instead surrendered the ball inside the Argyle one-yard line.

"Our defense played them tough, but our mistakes were too much to overcome," explained Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart.

It was a defensive battle. Argyle, after netting just seven yards offense in the first half, finished with a modest 116 yards for the night. Marshall County Central managed to gain just 74 yards on the Eagles' defense.

Gebhart praised the defensive play of Steve Boe, who was in on 23 tackles; Dan Maki, who had a hand in 14 tackles, had a quarterback sack and recovered a fumble; and Nate Stokke, who figured in 13 tackles.

KATHY DILLON grabbed a quick breath of air as she swam the 100-yard freestyle for the Prowlers Thursday in a double-dual high school swimming meet against Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River. Thief River Falls won both halves of the competition, beating Central 64-19 and downing Red River 55-28.

Prowlers Win Double-Dual

Thief River Falls collected two wins Thursday as the Prowlers overwhelmed both Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River in a double-dual girls high school swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool.

The Prowlers out-scored Central 64-14 and bettered Red River 55-28. Thief River Falls' depth enabled the Prowlers to win eight of 11 events in both match-ups.

Senior Kathy Dillon was a double winner for the Prowlers with a 59.99 in the 100-yard freestyle and a 2:14.96 in the 200-yard freestyle.

Junior varsity competition followed suit as Thief River Falls decisioned Central 61-9 and topped Red River 62-12.

Thief River Falls, now 4-1, returns to dual meet competition Tuesday with a 4 p.m. meet at Moorhead. The Prowlers will host Fargo South Thursday at 5 p.m.

Northwomen Will Continue Busy Volleyball Schedule This Week

Busy schedule for the Northland community college volleyball team continues this week when the Northwomen face three Minnesota community college women's athletic association (MCCWAA) foes.

Northland will host Fergus Falls in a 7 p.m. Tuesday match before playing Itasca Wednesday in Grand Rapids and returning home to entertain Brainerd Saturday at 11 a.m.

Last week Northland found itself playing at Fergus Falls, White Bear Lake and Brooklyn Park in a four-day span.

At a Northwest Division quadrangular Wednesday in Fergus Falls, Northland lost three matches. Brainerd beat the Northwomen 15-9, 15-12; Crookston won 15-8, 15-4; and Fergus Falls triumphed 15-10, 15-10.

"All of the division teams are beatable if we play up to our potential," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "I was satisfied with our offense, but our downfall was our defense; we were standing around and watching."

First stop on their Twin Cities trip found the Northwomen beating Lakewood 15-13, 16-14, 15-10 Friday night in White Bear Lake.

"I was real happy with the way they played that night," mentioned Jacobson who had special praise for freshman Kathy Walker who served eight straight second game points to help Northland rally from a 14-5 deficit.

It got a little tougher at the North Hennepin invitational tournament Saturday in Brooklyn Park where Northland lost to North Hennepin 15-0, 15-1; fell to Austin 15-2, 15-8; and split with eventual tournament finalist Hibbing, winning 15-13 but losing 15-5; before beating Itasca 16-14, 15-12, 15-13 in the match for seventh place in the eight-team field.

Overall, I was pleased with our offense Saturday," explained Jacobson. "A high percentage of our hits were sets for spikes. But we couldn't handle the serves."

Steel Shot Zones Fixed For Hunters

Areas where Minnesota waterfowl hunters will be required to use steel shot during the 1980 season have been set by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Wildlife officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources said they have been advised by the federal government that steel shot will be required for waterfowl hunting in the following zones:

+ All waters within the boundaries of all state wildlife management areas and federal waterfowl production areas and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of these waters. This includes lakes, ponds, marshes, swamps, rivers, streams and seasonally flooded areas of all types. Drainage ditches and temporary sheet water more than 150 yards from the water areas described above are excluded from the steel shot requirement. Controlled hunting zones of goose management areas are excluded from this provision, except the Roseau wildlife management area which is included.

+ On the waters on Swan and Middle lakes in Nicollet county, North and South Heron lakes in Jackson county, Pelican lake in Wright county, Bear lake in Freeborn county and Christina lake in Douglas and Grant counties and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of the above lakes.

+ Beginning at the intersection of the midline of the Mississippi river and U.S. Highway 61 at Hastings, thence southerly along U.S. Highway 61 to U.S. Highway 16 at LaCresent, thence southerly along U.S. Highway 16 to state trunk highway 26, thence southerly along state trunk highway 26 to the southern boundary of the state; thence along the southern and eastern boundaries of the state to the confluence of the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers, thence along the midline of the Mississippi river to the point of beginning.

+ Throughout the Lac qui Parle goose zone.

+ On the Tamarac national wildlife refuge in Becker county and the Sherburne national wildlife refuge in Sherburne county.

However, until October 18, only those Minnesota waterfowl hunters using 10 and 12 gauge shotshells will have to comply with the previously announced steel shot regulations.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, in making the announcement, said it was just notified by ammunition makers September 12 that the 20 gauge three-inch steel shotshells expected to be in good supply by now will not be widely available in time for the October 4 waterfowl opener.

Starting October 18, however, there will be no gauge exemptions and only steel shotsells may be used or possessed while hunting waterfowl in a steel shot zone.

Only areas where the two week delay will not apply are the three federal refuges that have certain lands open to waterfowl hunting. They are the Sherburne, Tamarac and Upper Mississippi national wildlife refuges. On these three federally administered areas all waterfowl hunting must be done with steel shot beginning October 4.

DNR Tightens Rules Affecting Foreign Fish

Department of Natural Resources has taken steps to control the spread of communicable fish diseases to Minnesota trout from infected fish brought in from other states.

Private fish hatcheries or individuals in Minnesota now need a permit from the DNR to import trout or salmon from other states.

Before an importation-transportation permit will be issued for trout or salmon the live fish, eggs or sperm must be certified as disease free by either a fish pathologist, a person approved by the fish health section of the American fisheries society, the Great Lakes fish disease control committee, or some other person or agency recognized by the commissioner to be competent in the diagnosis of fish diseases.

ANDREA LIA, a senior on the Lincoln high school swimming team, completed a turn during the 200-yard individual medley Thursday as the Prowlers faced Grand Forks Central and Grand Forks Red River in a double-dual meet in the Franklin middle school pool. Thief River Falls out-scored Central 64-19 and bettered Red River 55-28.

ROBYN DALLMANN swam the 100-yard breaststroke for the Prowlers Thursday as Thief River Falls staged a double-dual high school swimming meet with the two Grand Forks schools — Central and Red River — in the Franklin middle school pool.

Vermilion Tops Northland 26-3

Vermilion scored three times in the first quarter Saturday afternoon and finished with a 26-3 win over Northland in a MJCAA Northern Division community college football game played at Ely.

The defeat dropped Northland to 1-2 for the year. The Northmen will be back on the Minnesota Iron Range again this Saturday when they travel to Hibbing for a 1:30 p.m. game.

"They (Vermilion) played very well," noted Northland coach John Helley. "They beat us deep on the pass. We lost the game in the secondary; we broke down."

All four Vermilion touchdowns came on pass plays. Northland, on the other hand, had six passes intercepted.

"We couldn't get our offense going," acknowledged Helley who used all three Northland quarterbacks — Howard Belto, Jeff Westberg and Jeff Steuck.

Only—consolation for the Northmen was sophomore Jeff Gobell's 37-yard second quarter field goal. It marked the first time Northland has scored a point against Vermilion in five meetings.

It wasn't a complete breakdown on defense, explained Helley, who praised the play of Kelly Turgeon, Duane Kjono, Todd Tangen and Bob Benson. "They all played super," he said, "but our defensive backs just didn't follow their men. The long pass plays killed us."

— Pool Schedule —

Mon., Sept. 29 — 7:45-9:45 p.m. open swimming.
Tues., Sept. 30 — Northland community college.
Wed., Oct. 1 — 7:45-9:45 p.m. open swimming.
Thurs., Oct. 2 — 5 p.m. Prowlers vs. Fargo South swim meet.
Fri., Oct. 3 — 7:45-9:45 p.m. open swimming.
Sat., Oct. 4 — closed.
Sun., Oct. 5 — closed.

Changes Made In Conference Affiliations

Several football conferences in Class B, C and nine-man classifications of the Minnesota State High School League will be changed as a result of a meeting held September 11 in Marshall, it was reported by the MSHSL.

"It's time to set aside our petty grievances and set up some reasonable conferences with respect to school enrollments, geography and the responsibility we have to the energy situation," said superintendent Thomas Prunty, Jasper, who was one of about 70 people representing 46 schools at the meeting.

"All the schools could see that something had to be done," remarked Hugo Goehle, athletic director at Hills-Beaver Creek. "Some schools were traveling 130 to 150 miles for a game, going through towns that weren't members of their conference."

Superintendent John Feda, Marshall, who is president of the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League, was in attendance at the meeting. Feda said, "Schools must accept the idea that they may not end up the largest school in the conference, or be geographically in the middle of the conference, or be able to preserve all of their traditional rivalries."

Change effective for 1981 and 1982 football seasons was resolved involving nine-man schools in the area. Proposals will be considered for Class B and Class C conference realignment at a meeting in Wabasso, October 22.

Regarding the Class B and C realignment meeting in Wabasso in October, Leo Grossman, athletic director at Wabasso high school who will chair the meeting, said, "We expect to have representatives present from seven conferences and, from four independent schools. About 50 schools are involved in all."

Representatives from the following conferences will be represented: Middle Eight, Valley, West Lake, 212, Little Sioux, Tomahawk and Star. Independent schools expected to be in attendance include New Ulm Cathedral, Sleepy Eye St. Mary's, Wheaton and Prinsburg Central Christian.

Hunters Reminded They Are Guests Of The Landowners

"Hunters should remember that they are guests of the landowner — and conduct themselves accordingly, says Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander.

"If hunters will put themselves in the place of the landowner and look at things from his point of view," he said, "they will be far less likely to offend."

He reminded that hunters are required by law to obtain permission before entering on agricultural lands — even if the land is not posted. Agricultural lands mean lands containing plowed or tilled fields, standing crops or their residues, or lands with a maintained fence for the purpose of enclosing domestic livestock.

Among the things that infuriate landowners, said Alexander, are trampling unpicked crops, shooting near buildings, failure to close gates, littering and outright vandalism.

"Hunters should read the trespass law carefully," said Alexander, "and abide by its provisions." The law is printed in all the 1980 hunting regulation synopsis. He noted that one reason for passage of the law was complaints from private landowners of hunter conduct.

"More and more private land is being closed to hunting every year," he said, "largely because of a bad experience the owner has had with hunters."

But he said hunters can reverse this trend if they are willing to make the effort of policing their own ranks.

"And stop by and thank the landowner when you leave," said Alexander. "Further, if you have had a good shoot, it doesn't hurt to offer and landowner a bird or two. Sometimes farmers are so busy in the fall that they do not find time to get out and hunt.

"You can be sure that the landowner will appreciate your offer and even if he doesn't take any birds you will find that you will be very welcome the next time you stop by for hunting permission."

Card of Thanks

The members of the Telemarken congregation wish to acknowledge with thanks to everyone who helped make our 75th anniversary celebration such a memorable day.

Special thanks go to Pastor Huglen, to those who participated in the program, the gifts of money, food, flowers and help. 1t76c

In Memoriam

In loving memory of husband and father who passed away 12 yrs. ago Oct. 2, 1968:

The gates of heaven were opened that day
When so suddenly you were called away.
And tho you are gone, you are always near
Still loved, still missed, still very dear.

Sadly missed by wife, Hazel Christenson and family. 1t76p

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank our many friends and relatives who helped us celebrate our golden wedding anniversary.

We would especially like to thank our children for making this happy occasion extra special for us.

God bless you all.

Deadline For POW And MIA Benefits Near

Certain wives whose husbands are listed as missing in action or were prisoners of war for 90 days or more will lose eligibility for valuable Veterans administration education benefits if they don't act soon.

Morris Nooner Jr., director of the VA regional office and insurance center at Fort Snelling, said eligibility for the VA survivors' and dependents' education program expires on December 24, 1980, or 10 years from the date the listing was made, whichever is later.

He said the program, which is also open to children of POW-MIAs, provides tuition assistance for the spouses and children of veterans who died or suffered total and permanent disability resulting from their military service.

Since 1956, VA has spent $1.7 billion to educate and train some 409,000 eligibles including 193 wives and children of POW-MIAs.

Nooner said that education payments are available for up to 45 months of schooling or the equivalent in part-time training at the following monthly rates: $311 for full-time students; $233 for three-quarter time; and $156 for half-time. Tuition cost only — limited to $156 — will be paid to less than half-time students and $78 for one-quarter-time or less.

For information on how to apply, what type of training qualifies for benefits and eligibility information on this and other VA programs, contact should be made with the VA regional office at Fort Snelling. Toll-free numbers are listed in the white pages of the telephone book under "U.S. Government."

The Veterans Administration has provided vocational rehabilitation training to 835,000 disabled veterans since the program was authorized in 1943.

By driving 55 mph instead of 65 mph, you can stop in shorter distances and will have more time to react. Higher speeds magnify the impairment effects of alcohol and fatigue, faults in tires and headlights in inadequacies in road design or driver behavior. The Minnesota Safety Council urges you to be independent — drive 55 mph to save gasoline and lives.

Holmes Flies Kite, Glider Or Something

"Somebody monkeyed with the settings on the carburetors," he said. "It wasn't really any problem, but I had to land in a field a couple of miles from home and tow it home down the road by hand. Those engines aren't anything special so you always have to be ready for engine failure."

Holmes has been flying the unusual craft for about three years. He built his first one from a kit but says the present model is much improved. The country around here is ideal for using the machines, he said, because there are so many places to land. He even plans on equipping his present model with skis and pontoons. The air force, he says, has been experimenting with the craft in California for potential military use.

Stewart's wife Laura is a licensed practical nurse at Northwestern hospital. The fact that he flies motorized kites and married someone with medical knowledge is coincidental, he maintains. Laura is also interested in flying and Stewart hopes to get a flying machine for her so they can go soaring together.

"There are a few other guys who have bought units and we hope to get together and maybe fly to a lake and go camping," Holmes said. "It only costs $2 an hour to operate these things so you can have a lot of fun flying without spending a lot of money."

When Laura tells Stewart to go fly a kite, does she worry about him coming down with it?

"The biggest problem," Stewart says, "is grass stains. The seat of the 'Eagle' is only a few inches above the bottom of the wheels, and the alfalfa is sometimes over a foot tall."

Talk about flying by the seat of your pants. Stewart Holmes does it literally.

STEWART HOLMES, the intrepid birdman of Thief River Falls, poses by the Power plant of his flying machine at the Thief River Falls regional airport. Two 10-horsepower 2-cycle engines, started with pullropes like an ordinary lawnmower, push the contraption aloft and provide maneuverability. The crash helmet? Stewart is a cautious person who doesn't like to take chances.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Cheryl Ann Snetting Weds Merle Wesley At Trinity

Miss Cheryl Ann Snetting and Merle Wesley Friesen were united in marriage recently at a 3:30 p.m., wedding at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Snetting of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Friesen of Mountain Lake.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. Burton Hushagen. Music was provided by John Hustad with Mike Lehrer playing trumpet and singing harmony. Ida Norvall was organist and Tom Bjorkman, guitarist. Selections were "Longer," "Sarah's Prayer," and "The Lord's Prayer." Background music for the candlelighting ceremony was a guitar solo composed and played by Tom Bjorkman.

Forming the chancel setting were arrangements of mums and burgundy tipped carnations, complemented by candelabra entwined with greenery and ivory bows.

The traditional wedding march was played as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents.

For her wedding, the bride chose an old-fashioned styled gown of ivory qiana with a full skirt that flowed into a chapel train. The bodice was designed with a fitted inset waistband of Venice lace, corresponding with the square yoke and high collar. Her full bishop sleeves were gathered into deep lace cuffs trimmed with lace. To complete her attire, she wore a picture hat trimmed with Venice lace and English tulle that flowed into a walking train. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers featuring ivory roses, mauve carnations and roses, green ferns, wild babies' breath and ivory ribbon streamers.

Personal attendants were Margie Tantilla and Marcia Pirkel, friends of the bride.

Mrs. Becky Moe, the bride's sister, served as matron of honor. Other attendants were Mary Gilbert of this city and Mrs. Jan Skroms of Hastings, friends of the bride. All wore sashed peasant-styled gowns of nylon chiffon floral print with mauve background. Deep ruffles edged the rounded necklines and surrounded the bottom of the skirt. Their silk bouquets were of mauve, rose, burgundy, gray and gold flowers with ferns, babies' breath and mauve ribbon.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Scott Friesen, Mountain Lake. Groomsmen were Paul Ratzlaff, Edina, friend of the groom, and Brent Friesen, Mountain Lake, a brother of the groom. The ushers were the groom's brother, Troy Friesen, Mountain Lake, and a friend, Charles Mathiowetz, Hector. The men of the wedding party wore gray semi-formal, vested tuxedos with ivory wing-collared shirts and striped ascots. The groom's attire, similar to his attendants, included a cumberbund and a tuxedo with tails. All wore ivory rose boutonnieres.

A reception at the church parlors followed with the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Snetting of St. Paul as host and hostess. The bride's friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Tri, Moorhead, served the punch as Mary Snetting, Lansing, Mich.; the bride's cousin, presided at the guest book. The gifts were registered by Kraig Anderson, city, a friend of the bride, and Don Langevin, Rochester, a cousin of the bride.

The three-tiered wedding cake, made by Mary Ann Knutson, a friend of the bride's family, was iced in ivory and decorated with silk and icing roses in mauve and rose. Topping the cake was a gold Christogram surrounded with roses. Friends of the bride's family, Mrs. Margaret Peterson and Mrs. Elaine Anderson, both of Thief River Falls, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Rita Langevin, New Franken, Wis., and Mrs. Gayle Langevin, Rochester, aunts of the bride.

The day after the wedding, a garden reception was held at the bride's parental home, where the gifts were opened by the bride and groom.

Following a wedding trip of camping and canoeing in the Boundary Waters, the couple is at home in rural Butterfield. The groom is owner of Friesen Nursery and contracts landscaping. The bride is employed by Monarch Industries in Mountain Lake. Both are graduates of the University of Minnesota, Waseca. Photo R.L. Nieland Studio, Thief River Falls.

Steiger And Hallstrom Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss MaJeana Lynn Steiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Steiger, Red Lake Falls, and Robin Harlan Hallstrom exchanged marriage vows at an outdoor afternoon ceremony on August 23 at St. Hilaire. The ceremony took place on the deck of the riverside home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Hallstrom.

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double-ring wedding. Pianist was Craig Van Wechel, a friend of the couple. Joe Kezar, another friend, played the guitar and harmonica and sang "You Decorated My Life," prior to the processional, and "Love Lifted Me," during the service. Diane Mosbeck, also a friend of the couple, played the guitar and sang "God, A Woman, and A Man," and "Sarah's Prayer," which was sung during the recessional. Shelly Larson and Leslie Williamson, cousins of the bride, distributed the wedding program scrolls, handlettered in calligraphy on white parchment.

For the ceremony, the deck featured a triple trellis covered with greenery and flowers. On either side were large floral arrangments of peach carnations and gladioli. Also on the deck, on either side of the steps, were baskets of matching flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in an off-the-shoulder, white organza gown styled with a ruffled, tiered skirt with a chapel-length train. Venice and Schiffli lace accented the skirt and edged the deep ruffle that surrounded the neckline. A wreath of silk white and peach roses and babies' breath held her veil of bridal illusion, daintily embroidered at the edge. She carried a bouquet of tangerine roses, babies' breath, and peach silk roses accented with peach and white ribbon streamers.

The bride was attended by her sisters: Pam Boman, as matron of honor, and Angela and Vicki Steiger, as bridesmaids. Flower girls were Lisa Larson, a cousin of the bride, and Summer Paulson, a niece of the groom. All wore ballerina length gowns of a peach print with ivory lace trim. At the ruffled off-the-shoulder necklines, they wore peach ribbon chokers. In their hair, they wore roses and ribbon, matching the three long-stemmed tangerine roses carried by the bridesmaids. Matching rose petals filled the wicker baskets carried by the flower girls. All wore gold bracelets, gifts from the bride.

Wade Hallstrom, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Brad Steiger and Daye Sorvig, friends of the groom. The ring bearer was Adam Larson, a cousin of the bride. All wore beige Western-styled tuxedos, like the groom's, with silk lapels and front and back yoke trim. Their boutonnieres were tangerine roses and babies' breath.

Ushers were Chester Boman, brother-in-law of the bride, and Bryan Steiger, a cousin of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Steiger selected a burgundy dress with ivory lace trim, styled with a scoop neckline and a street-length skirt. Complementing the dress was an ivory lace jacket. The mother of the groom wore a cranberry chiffon street-length dress. Their wrist corsages of white orchids were accented with ribbon matching their dresses.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Selma Larson, Moorhead, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Hannah Kisch, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Mandie Hallstrom, St. Hilaire, grandmothers of the groom.
